Military Government Now In Command In Argentina

President Ousted In Bloodless Coup

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — A junta of military commanders took over the governing of Argentina today but the United States held off its recognition of them.

A U.S. Embassy spokesman said: "The U.S. government cannot decide whether diplomatic relations exist or not until a decision is made on the legal status of the new government. We are studying the situation to see what the legal relationship is."

President Ousted

The military leaders ousted President Juan Carlos Ongania, the general who was installed in a military coup four years ago. Not a shot was fired in the scramble for power Monday and life went on mostly as usual for the three million residents of Buenos Aires.

The new junta contends it is a continuation of Ongania's regime—with Ongania ousted to correct "distortions" in his policies.

The United States had endorsed Ongania's military rule, despite its authoritarian nature. U. S. officials frequently praised the Ongania government's economic policies, which emphasized austerity measures to limit inflation, stabilize the currency and attract foreign capital.

Officers Sworn In

The three military commanders—Lt. Gen. Alejandro Lanusse of the army, Adm. Pedro Gnavi of the navy and Brig. Gen. Juan Carlos Rey of the air force—were sworn in as provisional leaders of the nation of 23 million people. The junta said it would name a president within 10 days.

Among those being mentioned for the presidency are Eduardo Ortiz Basualdo, the conservative president of the Supreme Court who is reported to have powerful navy backing; Justice Minister Conrado Etchebarne, who has wide support in the army, and two retired army generals, Jean Enrique Guglielmelli and Osiris Villegas, both of whom are supported by factions that believe in rapid development of heavy industry.

Disagreement Noted

The junta said their basic disagreement with Ongania was "the lack of a political solution for the reovlution," the term used for the 1966 coup. Speeches in the last year by Lanusse indicate that he may seek a return to some democratic procedures before very long.

Growing dissatisfaction with Ongania came to a head Monday morning when Lanusse announced that the president had refused to accept a "political plan" from the armed forces calling on him to share power with the military and consult with civilian leaders. It appeared to suggest that a date be fixed for presidential elections.

Ongania then fired Lanusse, said he would take personal command of the 135,000 - man army and barricaded himself in Government House behind the loyal, heavily armed 1,200-man presidential guard.

Tanks Roll In

As military units took up positions in the capital and elsewhere in the country and tanks rolled into Buenos Aires, the junta announced over the government radio station that the commanders had "resolved to resume immediately the political conduct of the country" and "invited" Ongania to resign.

Moments later, a communique said the 55-year-old president was "deposed from his duties as president of the nation."

Ongania held out for 12 hours, then drove to the army headquarters and presented his resignation. He was the seventh Argentinian president to be overthrown by a military coup in 40 years.

Unrest Reported

Ongania's ouster came after months of severe and unpopular economic austerity, student disturbances, antigovernment violence, disenchantment of the nation's political leaders and—most recently—the kidnaping by unknown persons of former President Pedro Aramburu, another general who was considered a likely successor to Ongania.

Blackmun Sworn In As Court Justice

WASHINGTON (AP) — Harry A. Blackmun of Rochester, Minn., was sworn in today as the 98th justice in Supreme Court history.

Justice Blackmun

Blackmun, 61, took a seat vacant for 13 months and held in the past by Holmes, Cardozo, Frankfurter, and other judicial luminaries.

His hand on a Bible held by Chief Justice Warren E. Burger, the new justice swore to "do equal right to the poor and the rich" and to support and defend the Constitution against all enemies, foreign and domestic.

Burger, who is a longtime, etose friend of Blackmun, welcomed the justice on behalf of all members of the court and said "We look forward to many years together in our common calling."

The ceremony lasted seven minutes and concluded with Burger's announcement of the justices to their judicial circuits. Blackmun will supervise the 8th U.S. Circuit Court of St. Louis, on which he sat from 1959 until his appointment to the Supreme Court.

The justice's wife Dorothy; his three daughters, Mrs. D. Richard Funk of Vestal, N.Y., Mrs. Roger M. Karl of Greencastle, Ind., and Miss Nancy C. Blackmun of Cambridge, Mass.; his mother, Mrs. C. M. Blackmun of Minneapolis, and his sister, Mrs. P. R. Gilchrist of White Bear, Minn., attended.

In the audience were former Chief Justice Earl Warren and former Justices Tom C. Clark and Stanley F. Reed.

In one departure from tradition, six up-front seats that have always been occupied by the press since the court building opened in 1935 were cleared of newsmen and left unoccupied. The removal of newsmen to an alcove had been ordered in advance by Burger. The court press office said the press might be kept off the courtroom floor from the beginning of the next term.

To train the spotlight completely on Blackmun, the chief justice set the ceremony for a day in which the court conducted no other business.

King Hussein Assassination Plot Foiled

AMMAN, Jordan — (AP) — King Hussein escaped an assassination attempt today in the midst of fighting between the Jordanian army and Palestinian guerrillas, the Amman radio reported.

The army troops were trying to curtail guerrilla incursions into Israel.

The broadcast said Hussein's motorcade was fired upon this morning as heavy fighting raged in the streets of the capital.

Leaders of both sides worked out a cease-fire arrangement late in the morning but this was ignored and the bitter fighting raged into the afternoon.

The combatants battled with rockets, bazookas, machine guns and automatic weapons, filling the city with the crash of explosions and the bark of gunfire.

Hussein's motorcade was driving through the crossroads town of Sweileh 12 miles northeast of the capital, the radio said.

Guerrilla sources in Beirut, Lebanon, said the king's driver was wounded in the incident but gave no other details.

Jordanian authorities and the guerrilla central committee--the supreme Palestinian body—had met in Amman and agreed to an immediate cease-fire, the radio said in an earlier report. They also agreed to set up a joint operations room to "supervise and control the situation."

Secrecy Plan For Computer Data Proposed

WASHINGTON (AP) — A computer manufacturing executive today urged new laws to make personal information a property right and thus provide criminal penalties for any "pollution of privacy" by misuse of computer-kept records.

Robert P. Henderson, vice president and general manager of Honeywell's electronic data processing division, said the computer's efficiency—despite many benefits—"could threaten some of our prized individual freedoms."

His remarks were prepared for a national symposium of the National Archives and Record Service of the government's General Services Administration.

"The computer itself does not create any invasion of privacy. The only new element in the centuries-old threat to privacy posed by surveillance and record-keeping is the computer's fantastic efficiency."

He said that extra devices can be built into computers to help prevent stored personal information about people getting into improper hands.

But he said "really determined men, unfortunately, can find ways to get around the best security systems."

"Frankly, I feel that we will need some new legislation in this area," he added. "Our old legal framework may not be adequate to defend our privacy against these new techniques of data collection and record-keeping.

He recommended that citizens be given the ability to challenge in court the release of private data about them without their consent.

U.S. Sticking With Denial Of Lost Ship

PANMUNJOM, Korea (AP) — The United States and North Korea refused to back down today from their conflicting accounts of last Friday's gunboat encounter in the Yellow Sea.

U.S. Army Maj. Gen. James H. Skeldon repeated South Korea's claim that North Korean forces attacked a lightly armed South Korean vessel south of the demilitarized zone, towed it into North Korean waters, and is now "illegally detaining" it and its 20 crewmen.

North Korean Maj. Gen. Lee Choon-sun insisted that the vessel was a heavily armed spy ship dispatched by the United States and that the North Koreans sank it north of the DMZ.

The exchange took place at the 302nd session of the Korean Armistice Commission, with Lee representing North Korea and Skeldon representing the U.N. Command.

Skeldon demanded a report on the condition of the vessel's crew members and the prompt return of the men and the boat. Lee demanded that the United States apologize for "dispatching the spy ship" into North Korean waters and punish the individuals responsible.

The United States has denied any responsibility, and the U.S. Navy has denied that any American snips were operating in the area.

No Surprise:

Milliken Seeks Top Lansing Post

LANSING (AP)— Flanked by his wife and two children, Gov. William Milliken today announced his candidacy for a first full term as chief executive of Michigan.

The announcement, made at a Capitol news conference, had long been expected.

In emphatic tones, Milliken said:

"I refuse in the course of this campaign to be packaged and sold to the people of this state. I'm not going to be."

Milliken promised he would not wage a "slick advertising and public relations campaign. I am what I am," he said, "good, bad or otherwise."

He repeated an announcement made in mid-April that he wanted U.S. Atty. James Brickley of Detroit as a running mate on the Republican ticket.

Issues Campaign Topic

Milliken, who took over the governor's chair in January 1969, when George Romney went to Washington as U.S. Secretary of Housing and Urban Development, promised to campaign "not on personalities, but on issues — not on narrow partisanship, but on sound public policy."

"Last year, in this Capitol, I took the oath of office as governor, pledging responsible leadership to improve the quality of life in Michigan," said the Traverse City department store owner.

"I developed a wide range of programs for education, pollution, crime control, drug abuse, the cities, housing, employment and other vital areas," he said.

Wants To Continue Job

"Some of these programs have already been implemented —some are in final stages of legislative consideration.

"I have begun the job," Milliken said. "I want to continue that job."

The governor, at 48 still boyishly handsome, said his announcement did not mean his formal campaign has begun. A Michigan for Milliken Committee, however, set up operations some weeks ago, aiming to show support for the governor. That group is headed by S. John Byington, former campaign manager for Romney.

"There is legislative work that must first be completed in this Capitol, work that must be done cooperatively between the Legislature and the governor, between Democrats and Republicans.

Understanding Needed

"In the conduct of political campaigns, as in the conduct of public office, leaders must be accountable and responsive," the governor said.

"They must speak to the best in men, not to their fears and anger; they must encourage understanding, not antagonism, in relations between the races, between the generations and between the parties; and they must ask of each citizen honesty and courage in facing our most crucial problems."

Milliken, a Yale graduate, was elected lieutenant governor in 1964 after having served four years in the Michigan Senate. He was re-elected lieutenant governor again in 1966.

Howell Magazine Publisher James Turner already has announced that he will seek the Republican nomination for governor.

Four Demos In Race

Four Democrats seek to oppose the Republican nominee. They include State Sen. Sander Levin of Berkley, Rep. George F. Montgomery of Detroit, former Democratic State Chairman Zolton Ferency and Macomb County Prosecutor George Parris.

House Planning War Zone Trip

WASHINGTON (AP) — Declaring it needs a new look at Indochina, the House has decided to send its own task force to Vietnam to review the progress of the war.

After three hours of wrangling and four roll calls, the House Monday approved 223 to 101 a resolution creating a special 12-member committee to investigate all aspects of U.S. military involvement in Southeast Asia within 45 days.

The resolution was sponsored by Rep. G. V. "Sonny" Montgomery, D-Miss., who is expected to lead the committee. He said it would provide the House with information independent of that gathered by presidential commissions or other study groups.

It is planned for the House committee to leave after a special group of senators, representatives and other governmental leaders returns from a Vietnam trip requested by President Nixon.

Monday night a farmer, a housewife, a minister and a retired professor left at Nixon's instigation as part of an eight-member delegation going to Vietnam for a repeat of a trip they made more than two years ago.

"It is my firm opinion," said President Nixon in a letter last March to Rep. Fred Schwengel, R-Iowa, an organizer of the trips, "that it would be useful for you . . . to make another visit to the same places you saw before."

The House debate Monday split along hawk-dove lines, with antiwar members contending the committee would be "carrier pigeons" of the military view of the war.

Rep. Wayne L. Hays, D-Ohio, suggested all 430 House members be armed with rifles and go to Southeast Asia to relieve two Army battalions.

The committee will be composed of six members of each party. Two members each will come from the House Armed Services and Foreign Affairs committees, with the remainder from the House at large.

Forget 'Golden Eagle,' Nature Lovers Told

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nature lovers eager to "Follow the Golden Eagle to America's Great Outdoors" are being told by embarrassed Interior Department spokesmen they'll have to get along with the old fashioned green eagle—the one on the dollar bill.

The Golden Eagle, a bargain priced admission ticket to more than 3,000 federal recreation areas, is grounded waiting for the fog to lift in the House of Representatives.

With the vacation season already well under way outdoorsmen have no choice for the time being but to pay as they go, shelling out individual fees for each day they spend in federal parks, forest and preserves.

For the past five years, vacationers have been able to purchase for $7 a Golden Eagle passport admitting a carload of people for unlimited visits to national recreation areas throughout a full year.

Single admissions, on the other hand, usually cost about $1 a day per carload.

The Golden Eagle covered areas under the Interior Department, Forest Service and U.S. Corps of Engineers. The legislation supporting it, however, expired March 31.

The Senate has approved an unlimited extension. The House version, which stalled after clearing committee, extends the Golden Eagle only until next Dec. 31.

A spokesman said the House Interior committee was not completely sold on the Golden Eagle and felt a temporary extension would allow time for "a real long look at it."

A House vote on the extension was postponed two weeks ago and has yet to be rescheduled.

Pending legislation may eventually increase the cost of the Golden Eagle from $7 to $10, but even that would be a bargain for frequent visitors.

Interior Department spokesmen say they have no way of knowing exactly how many people visited national recreation areas using the Golden Eagle, or how often or how long they stayed. But nearly 681,000 of the passes were sold in fiscal 1969.

A survey made in 1967 estimated the average vacation group included three or four people and spent five or six days in the national recreation areas.

Golden Eagle holders, in contrast, spent an average of 13 days in federal areas, the survey estimated.

An Interior Department spokesman said inquiries about the Golden Eagle were flowing in recently at the rate of about 500 a week.

Mailmen-Mafia Ties Questioned

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress wants to quiz the Post Office on links between mailmen and the Mafia.

A House government operations subcommittee has asked Chief Postal Inspector William J. Cotter to a hearing June 18 on his force's efforts to combat the spreading epidemic of thefts from the mails.

A subcommittee source said the hearing would zero in on what he called an apparent lack of training for postal inspectors in coping with organized crime.

The panel, headed by Rep. Dante B. Fascell, D-Fla., has been conducting a series of hearings on the preparedness of federal agencies' investigators to deal with Mafia-related crimes.

The Mafia has been connected in court cases with the misuse of credit cards stolen from the mails by postal employes in Brooklyn and elsewhere.

An Associated Press study last month found millions of dollars in credit cards, stocks, checks, and merchandise are being stolen by postal employes each year. More than 1,100 mailmen have been arrested for theft in the past 10 months.

Mental Patient Sought In Deaths Of Three Persons

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — Police are seeking a ritualistic slayer who calls himself "The Candlelight Killer" and is blamed for three murders—including one which landed him in a mental hospital for three years.

Named by police was Robert Liberty, 23, who was declared insane in 1966 in the strangulation of his 31-year-old girl friend. Burning candles were found by her body.

Liberty was released from a state mental hospital in Atascadero in Sept. 15, 1969, after six court-appointed psychiatrists testified he had regained his sanity.

He was charged with murder and flight to avoid prosecution after his roommate, Thomas Astronia, 25, was found shot to death March 12 in Orange County south of Los Angeles.

Kent Sniper Fire Claims Rebuffed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The man heading the government's probe of student deaths on the Kent State and Jackson State campuses says there is "insufficient evidence" to support officials' claims of sniper fire.

"We have at this time insufficient evidence to establish the presence of a sniper," Asst. Atty. Gen. Jerris Leonard said of the May 15 deaths of two black youths in a fusillade of police bullets at Jackson State College in Mississippi.

His statement directly contradicts the report released last Thursday by Mississippi Gov. John Bell Williams that said a investigation showed state troopers were shot at by a sniper before opening fire on a group of students outside a women's dormitory on the predominently black campus.

Leonard is head of the Justice Department's civil rights division and leader of a federal investigation into the fatal shootings by law enforcement authorities of the two youths at Jackson State, four students at Kent State University in Ohio and six men in Augusta, Ga.

In an interview, Leonard was asked whether his statement could also be applied to the deaths at Kent State, where Ohio National Guardsmen said they had been fired upon by a sniper before shooting into a crowd of students demonstrating against U.S. military involvement in Cambodia.

"Yes, there is insufficient evidence at Kent," Leonard replied.

The civil rights chief refused to comment on whether the probes, in the case of Kent State more than a month along, had identified the officers or guardsmen who fired the fatal shots.

But he acknowledged, in the case of Jackson State, that "procedural problems" had hindered the investigation by FBI agents and Justice Department lawyers.

"The state patrol has not provided us with the weapons, nor have members of the state patrol been offered for interrogation," he said.

Leonard implied the refusal of Mississippi officials to cooperate with the investigation will necessitate calling a federal grand jury to subpoena evidence.

Fewer difficulties are being experienced in the Kent State investigation, Leonard said, although there are "unanswered factual and legal questions." He did not elaborate.

Military Government Now In Command In Argentina

President Ousted In Bloodless Coup

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — A junta of military commanders took over the governing of Argentina today but the United States held off its recognition of them.

A U.S. Embassy spokesman said: "The U.S. government cannot decide whether diplomatic relations exist or not until a decision is made on the legal status of the new government. We are studying the situation to see what the legal relationship is."

President Ousted

The military leaders ousted President Juan Carlos Ongania, the general who was installed in a military coup four years ago. Not a shot was fired in the scramble for power Monday and life went on mostly as usual for the three million residents of Buenos Aires.

The new junta contends it is a continuation of Ongania's regime—with Ongania ousted to correct "distortions" in his policies.

The United States had endorsed Ongania's military rule, despite its authoritarian nature. U. S. officials frequently praised the Ongania government's economic policies, which emphasized austerity measures to limit inflation, stabilize the currency and attract foreign capital.

Officers Sworn In

The three military commanders—Lt. Gen. Alejandro Lanusse of the army, Adm. Pedro Gnavi of the navy and Brig. Gen. Juan Carlos Rey of the air force—were sworn in as provisional leaders of the nation of 23 million people. The junta said it would name a president within 10 days.

Among those being mentioned for the presidency are Eduardo Ortiz Basualdo, the conservative president of the Supreme Court who is reported to have powerful navy backing; Justice Minister Conrado Etchebarne, who has wide support in the army, and two retired army generals, Jean Enrique Guglielmelli and Osiris Villegas, both of whom are supported by factions that believe in rapid development of heavy industry.

Disagreement Noted

The junta said their basic disagreement with Ongania was "the lack of a political solution for the reovlution," the term used for the 1966 coup. Speeches in the last year by Lanusse indicate that he may seek a return to some democratic procedures before very long.

Growing dissatisfaction with Ongania came to a head Monday morning when Lanusse announced that the president had refused to accept a "political plan" from the armed forces calling on him to share power with the military and consult with civilian leaders. It appeared to suggest that a date be fixed for presidential elections.

Ongania then fired Lanusse, said he would take personal command of the 135,000 - man army and barricaded himself in Government House behind the loyal, heavily armed 1,200-man presidential guard.

Tanks Roll In

As military units took up positions in the capital and elsewhere in the country and tanks rolled into Buenos Aires, the junta announced over the government radio station that the commanders had "resolved to resume immediately the political conduct of the country" and "invited" Ongania to resign.

Moments later, a communique said the 55-year-old president was "deposed from his duties as president of the nation."

Ongania held out for 12 hours, then drove to the army headquarters and presented his resignation. He was the seventh Argentinian president to be overthrown by a military coup in 40 years.

Unrest Reported

Ongania's ouster came after months of severe and unpopular economic austerity, student disturbances, antigovernment violence, disenchantment of the nation's political leaders and—most recently—the kidnaping by unknown persons of former President Pedro Aramburu, another general who was considered a likely successor to Ongania.

Blackmun Sworn In As Court Justice

WASHINGTON (AP) — Harry A. Blackmun of Rochester, Minn., was sworn in today as the 98th justice in Supreme Court history.

Justice Blackmun

Blackmun, 61, took a seat vacant for 13 months and held in the past by Holmes, Cardozo, Frankfurter, and other judicial luminaries.

His hand on a Bible held by Chief Justice Warren E. Burger, the new justice swore to "do equal right to the poor and the rich" and to support and defend the Constitution against all enemies, foreign and domestic.

Burger, who is a longtime, close friend of Blackmun, welcomed the justice on behalf of all members of the court and said "We look forward to many years together in our common calling."

The ceremony lasted seven minutes and concluded with Burger's announcement of the justices to their judicial circuits. Blackmun will supervise the 8th U.S. Circuit Court of St. Louis, on which he sat from 1959 until his appointment to the Supreme Court.

The justice's wife Dorothy; his three daughters, Mrs. D. Richard Funk of Vestal, N.Y., Mrs. Roger M. Karl of Greencastle, Ind., and Miss Nancy C. Blackmun of Cambridge, Mass.; his mother, Mrs. C. M. Blackmun of Minneapolis, and his sister, Mrs. P. R. Gilchrist of White Bear, Minn., attended.

In the audience were former Chief Justice Earl Warren and former Justices Tom C. Clark and Stanley F. Reed.

In one departure from tradition, six up-front seats that have always been occupied by the press since the court building opened in 1935 were cleared of newsmen and left unoccupied. The removal of newsmen to an alcove had been ordered in advance by Burger. The court press office said the press might be kept off the courtroom floor from the beginning of the next term.

To train the spotlight completely on Blackmun, the chief justice set the ceremony for a day in which the court conducted no other business.

King Hussein Assassination Plot Foiled

AMMAN, Jordan — (AP) — King Hussein escaped an assassination attempt today in the midst of fighting between the Jordanian army and Palestinian guerrillas, the Amman radio reported.

The army troops were trying to curtail guerrilla incursions into Israel.

The broadcast said Hussein's motorcade was fired upon this morning as heavy fighting raged in the streets of the capital.

Leaders of both sides worked out a cease-fire arrangement late in the morning but this was ignored and the bitter fighting raged into the afternoon.

The combatants battled with rockets, bazookas, machine guns and automatic weapons, filling the city with the crash of explosions and the bark of gunfire.

Hussein's motorcade was driving through the crossroads town of Sweileh 12 miles northeast of the capital, the radio said.

Guerrilla sources in Beirut, Lebanon, said the king's driver was wounded in the incident but gave no other details.

Jordanian authorities and the guerrilla central committee--the supreme Palestinian body—had met in Amman and agreed to an immediate cease-fire, the radio said in an earlier report. They also agreed to set up a joint operations room to "supervise and control the situation."

Secrecy Plan For Computer Data Proposed

WASHINGTON (AP) — A computer manufacturing executive today urged new laws to make personal information a property right and thus provide criminal penalties for any "pollution of privacy" by misuse of computer-kept records.

Robert P. Henderson, vice president and general manager of Honeywell's electronic data processing division, said the computer's efficiency—despite many benefits—"could threaten some of our prized individual freedoms."

His remarks were prepared for a national symposium of the National Archives and Record Service of the government's General Services Administration.

"The computer itself does not create any invasion of privacy. The only new element in the centuries-old threat to privacy posed by surveillance and record-keeping is the computer's fantastic efficiency."

He said that extra devices can be built into computers to help prevent stored personal information about people getting into improper hands.

But he said "really determined men, unfortunately, can find ways to get around the best security systems."

"Frankly, I feel that we will need some new legislation in this area," he added. "Our old legal framework may not be adequate to defend our privacy against these new techniques of data collection and record-keeping.

He recommended that citizens be given the ability to challenge in court the release of private data about them without their consent.

U.S. Sticking With Denial Of Lost Ship

PANMUNJOM, Korea (AP) — The United States and North Korea refused to back down today from their conflicting accounts of last Friday's gunboat encounter in the Yellow Sea.

U.S. Army Maj. Gen. James H. Skeldon repeated South Korea's claim that North Korean forces attacked a lightly armed South Korean vessel south of the demilitarized zone, towed it into North Korean waters, and is now "illegally detaining" it and its 20 crewmen.

North Korean Maj. Gen. Lee Choon-sun insisted that the vessel was a heavily armed spy ship dispatched by the United States and that the North Koreans sank it north of the DMZ.

The exchange took place at the 302nd session of the Korean Armistice Commission, with Lee representing North Korea and Skeldon representing the U.N. Command.

Skeldon demanded a report on the condition of the vessel's crew members and the prompt return of the men and the boat. Lee demanded that the United States apologize for "dispatching the spy ship" into North Korean waters and punish the individuals responsible.

The United States has denied any responsibility, and the U.S. Navy has denied that any American ships were operating in the area.

No Surprise:

Milliken Seeks Top Lansing Post

LANSING (AP)— Flanked by his wife and two children, Gov. William Milliken today announced his candidacy for a first full term as chief executive of Michigan.

The announcement, made at a Capitol news conference, had long been expected.

In emphatic tones, Milliken said:

"I refuse in the course of this campaign to be packaged and sold to the people of this state. I'm not going to be."

Milliken promised he would not wage a "slick advertising and public relations campaign. I am what I am," he said, "good, bad or otherwise."

He repeated an announcement made in mid-April that he wanted U.S. Atty. James Brickley of Detroit as a running mate on the Republican ticket.

Issues Campaign Topic

Milliken, who took over the governor's chair in January 1969, when George Romney went to Washington as U.S. Secretary of Housing and Urban Development, promised to campaign "not on personalities, but on issues — not on narrow partisanship, but on sound public policy."

"Last year, in this Capitol, I took the oath of office as governor, pledging responsible leadership to improve the quality of life in Michigan," said the Traverse City department store owner.

"I developed a wide range of programs for education, pollution, crime control, drug abuse, the cities, housing, employment and other vital areas," he said.

Wants To Continue Job

"Some of these programs have already been implemented —some are in final stages of legislative consideration.

"I have begun the job," Milliken said. "I want to continue that job."

The governor, at 48 still boyishly handsome, said his announcement did not mean his formal campaign has begun. A Michigan for Milliken Committee, however, set up operations some weeks ago, aiming to show support for the governor. That group is headed by S. John Byington, former campaign manager for Romney.

"There is legislative work that must first be completed in this Capitol, work that must be done cooperatively between the Legislature and the governor, between Democrats and Republicans.

Understanding Needed

"In the conduct of political campaigns, as in the conduct of public office, leaders must be accountable and responsive," the governor said.

"They must speak to the best in men, not to their fears and anger; they must encourage understanding, not antagonism, in relations between the races, between the generations and between the parties: and they must ask of each citizen honesty and courage in facing our most crucial problems."

Milliken, a Yale graduate, was elected lieutenant governor in 1964 after having served four years in the Michigan Senate. He was re-elected lieutenant governor again in 1966.

Howell Magazine Publisher James Turner already has announced that he will seek the Republican nomination for governor.

Four Demos In Race

Four Democrats seek to oppose the Republican nominee. They include State Sen. Sander Levin of Berkley, Rep. George F. Montgomery of Detroit, former Democratic State Chairman Zolton Ferency and Macomb County Prosecutor George Parris.

House Planning War Zone Trip

WASHINGTON (AP) — Declaring it needs a new look at Indochina, the House has decided to send its own task force to Vietnam to review the progress of the war.

After three hours of wrangling and four roll calls, the House Monday approved 223 to 101 a resolution creating a special 12-member committee to investigate all aspects of U.S. military involvement in Southeast Asia within 45 days.

The resolution was sponsored by Rep. G. V. "Sonny" Montgomery, D-Miss., who is expected to lead the committee. He said it would provide the House with information independent of that gathered by presidential commissions or other study groups.

It is planned for the House committee to leave after a special group of senators, representatives and other governmental leaders returns from a Vietnam trip requested by President Nixon.

Monday night a farmer, a housewife, a minister and a retired professor left at Nixon's instigation as part of an eight-member delegation going to Vietnam for a repeat of a trip they made more than two years ago.

"It is my firm opinion," said President Nixon in a letter last March to Rep. Fred Schwengel, R-Iowa, an organizer of the trips, "that it would be useful for you . . . to make another visit to the same places you saw before."

The House debate Monday split along hawk-dove lines, with antiwar members contending the committee would be "carrier pigeons" of the military view of the war.

Rep. Wayne L. Hays, D-Ohio, suggested all 430 House members be armed with rifles and go to Southeast Asia to relieve two Army battalions.

The committee will be composed of six members of each party. Two members each will come from the House Armed Services and Foreign Affairs committees, with the remainder from the House at large.

Forget 'Golden Eagle,' Nature Lovers Told

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nature lovers eager to "Follow the Golden Eagle to America's Great Outdoors" are being told by embarrassed Interior Department spokesmen they'll have to get along with the old fashioned green eagle—the one on the dollar bill.

The Golden Eagle, a bargain priced admission ticket to more than 3,000 federal recreation areas, is grounded waiting for the fog to lift in the House of Representatives.

With the vacation season already well under way outdoorsmen have no choice for the time being but to pay as they go, shelling out individual fees for each day they spend in federal parks, forest and preserves.

For the past five years, vacationers have been able to purchase for $7 a Golden Eagle passport admitting a carload of people for unlimited visits to national recreation areas throughout a full year.

Single admissions, on the other hand, usually cost about $1 a day per carload.

The Golden Eagle covered areas under the Interior Department, Forest Service and U.S. Corps of Engineers. The legislation supporting it, however, expired March 31.

The Senate has approved an unlimited extension. The House version, which stalled after clearing committee, extends the Golden Eagle only until next Dec. 31.

A spokesman said the House Interior committee was not completely sold on the Golden Eagle and felt a temporary extension would allow time for "a real long look at it."

A House vote on the extension was postponed two weeks ago and has yet to be rescheduled.

Pending legislation may eventually increase the cost of the Golden Eagle from $7 to $10, but even that would be a bargain for frequent visitors.

Interior Department spokesmen say they have no way of knowing exactly how many people visited national recreation areas using the Golden Eagle, or how often or how long they stayed. But nearly 681,000 of the passes were sold in fiscal 1969.

A survey made in 1967 estimated the average vacation group included three or four people and spent five or six days in the national recreation areas.

Golden Eagle holders, in contrast, spent an average of 13 days in federal areas, the survey estimated.

An Interior Department spokesman said inquiries about the Golden Eagle were flowing in recently at the rate of about 500 a week.

Mental Patient Sought In Deaths Of Three Persons

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — Police are seeking a ritualistic slayer who calls himself "The Candlelight Killer" and is blamed for three murders—including one which landed him in a mental hospital for three years.

Named by police was Robert Liberty, 23, who was declared insane in 1966 in the strangulation of his 31-year-old girl friend. Burning candles were found by her body.

Liberty was released from a state mental hospital in Atascadero in Sept. 15, 1969, after six court-appointed psychiatrists testified he had regained his sanity.

He was charged with murder and flight to avoid prosecution after his roommate, Thomas Astronia, 25, was found shot to death March 12 in Orange County south of Los Angeles.

Mailmen-Mafia Ties Questioned

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress wants to quiz the Post Office on links between mailmen and the Mafia.

A House government operations subcommittee has asked Chief Postal Inspector William J. Cotter to a hearing June 18 on his force's efforts to combat the spreading epidemic of thefts from the mails.

A subcommittee source said the hearing would zero in on what he called an apparent lack of training for postal inspectors in coping with organized crime.

The panel, headed by Rep. Dante B. Fascell, D-Fla., has been conducting a series of hearings on the preparedness of federal agencies' investigators to deal with Mafia-related crimes.

The Mafia has been connected in court cases with the misuse of credit cards stolen from the mails by postal employes in Brooklyn and elsewhere.

An Associated Press study last month found millions of dollars in credit cards, stocks, checks, and merchandise are being stolen by postal employes each year. More than 1,100 mailmen have been arrested for theft in the past 10 months.

Kent Sniper Fire Claims Rebuffed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The man heading the government's probe of student deaths on the Kent State and Jackson State campuses says there is "insufficient evidence" to support officials' claims of sniper fire.

"We have at this time insufficient evidence to establish the presence of a sniper," Asst. Atty. Gen. Jerris Leonard said of the May 15 deaths of two black youths in a fusillade of police bullets at Jackson State College in Mississippi.

His statement directly contradicts the report released last Thursday by Mississippi Gov. John Bell Williams that said a investigation showed state troopers were shot at by a sniper before opening fire on a group of students outside a women's dormitory on the predominently black campus.

Leonard is head of the Justice Department's civil rights division and leader of a federal investigation into the fatal shootings by law enforcement authorities of the two youths at Jackson State, four students at Kent State University in Ohio and six men in Augusta, Ga.

In an interview, Leonard was asked whether his statement could also be applied to the deaths at Kent State, where Ohio National Guardsmen said they had been fired upon by a sniper before shooting into a crowd of students demonstrating against U.S. military involvement in Cambodia.

"Yes, there is insufficient evidence at Kent," Leonard replied.

The civil rights chief refused to comment on whether the probes, in the case of Kent State more than a month along, had identified the officers or guardsmen who fired the fatal shots.

But he acknowledged, in the case of Jackson State, that "procedural problems" had hindered the investigation by FBI agents and Justice Department lawyers.

"The state patrol has not provided us with the weapons, nor have members of the state patrol been offered for interrogation," he said.

Leonard implied the refusal of Mississippi officials to cooperate with the investigation will necessitate calling a federal grand jury to subpoena evidence.

Fewer difficulties are being experienced in the Kent State investigation, Leonard said, although there are "unanswered factual and legal questions." He did not elaborate.

Millage Issue Approved In Area School District

A light turnout of only 2,045 voters in the Escanaba Area Public School District approved a millage issue of up to 12.6 mills for two years by a margin of 88 votes in Monday's annual school election.

The millage issue won in six precincts and also carried the vote on the absentee ballots, while losing in four precincts. A final tabulation of the votes showed 1,028 people voting in favor the 12.6 mills and 940 people against it.

Gaining seats on the Escanaba Area Public School Board were Alfred Troutt of Ford River, who ran unopposed for the four-year term, and John Pearson of Escanaba, a write-in candidate for one remaining year of a four year term.

Troutt, who is presently serving on the board as an appointee for the set vacated by the retirement of Dan Wellman, collected 1,324 votes, while Pearson, who will now take over the seat vacated by the retirement of his brother, Albin Pearson Jr., to serve on the Escanaba City Council, got 517 votes.

Also running as write-in candidates for the one-year term were Leo Alperovitz of Escanaba, who got 396 votes, and David Rivard of Soo Hill, who got 140 votes. Several other people also received votes for the one-year term, but their totals did not have any effect on the outcome.

The term "up to 12.6 mills" was used by the Escanaba Area Public School Board because of the continuing uncertainty as to the amount of state support for schools next year. Should there be a sufficient increase in state funds, the board would levy only as much of the 12.6 mill request as needed.

The approved millage was just a small increase over what was paid this past year. Of the 12.6 mills, 9.4 mills are expiring, 2.5 mills are for additional operating costs and .7 mills is to replace millage lost through allocation.

In commenting on the outcome of the election, Luther Barrett, superintendent of the Escanaba Area Public Schools, said "I feel great pleasure in the fact that the public expressed its vote of confidence in the way it did. It will now be much easier to plan for proper operation of the schools for the next year."

The approved millage also assures the Escanaba Area Public Schools state aid for the coming year. The present state law requires that for the 1970-71 school year, a school district must levy at least 12 mills for operation in order to receive state aid funds.

Cancer Appeal Heard By Club

The movie, "Journey Into Darkness," which was prepared by the American Cancer Society to help alert the public against the pitfalls of quack remedies for cancer, was shown to the Escanaba Kiwanis Club on Wednesday.

The program was arranged by Jack Beck, who is president of the local cancer chapter and was presented by Dave Mason who is chairman for the Delta County Cancer Crusade.

In a brief introduction to the film, Mason stated that the goal of the local society is $8,945 and that $7,403 has been collected at this date.

Mason urged contributions for the remaining $1,500 and said anyone interested in making a pledge, or an additional pledge, could contact either himself or Jack Beck.

Of the amount collected, 50% goes to the American Cancer Society, while the other 50% remains with the local chapter to aid patients in this area.

Milliken Spends 'Time' Behind Bars

LANSING (AP) — Gov. William Milliken went to prison Monday — several prisons — in an effort to see first hand what Michigan is doing at correctional facilities.

"Michigan has many outstanding programs for its prison population," said the governor, after a day-long tour that included talks with inmates and correctional employes at the State Prison of Southern Michigan, the Michigan Training Unit at Ionia and the Ionia Reformatory.

The governor added, however, that the state "also has many serious deficiencies that can contribute to the continuation of the crime problem in our society.

"Both the state and the public have an important responsibility to see that adequate correctional facilities are provided throughout the state," Milliken said.

Dispute Ended At Bay College Job

The dispute between iron workers and carpenters on the $600,000 Bay de Noc Community College construction project was shortlived Monday morning.

The proposed pact called for a 34-cent per hour wage increase over a two-year period.

Big Bay Voters Approve Millage

MANISTIQUE — Voters in the Big Bay de Noc School District approved a six-mill levy, elected Heman Strasler of Cooks and Gary Lang of Fayette to four-year terms on the Board of Education and raised board salaries to $8 per meeting in Monday's annual school election.

District electors approved the millage by a 217-90 margin. Five of the six mills approved is renewal of existing operational millage with the one mill requested to qualify for state aid based on a predicted 14-mill levy requirement of the unwritten school aid bill. The district received eight mills of allocated county revenue.

The board now receives a $96 annual stipend for meetings and requested an $8 per meeting schedule to balance the volume of school business and the amount of travel involved in attending meetings at various district locations. The vote was 171-131.

Mrs. Elaine Hartman of Cooks was defeated by a nine-vote margin in her bid for a board seat. She was appointed to serve the unexpired term of her husband, who resigned last year because of illness.

Musical Getting Into Everyone's 'Hair' In Detroit

DETROIT (AP)—Though they have never actually seen it two Detroit city council members have reviewed the musical "Hair" and found it wanting. They urge fellow citizens to do the same.

Councilmen Anthony J. Wierzbicki and William G. Rogell, a former All Star shortstop for the Detroit Tigers, introduced a resolution Monday calling on "all persons of goodwill and high moral standards to express their disgust and disapproval of the production by not supporting, promoting or attending the production" when it opens in Detroit next week.

The short-haired gentlemen, described locally as "over the age of Aquarius," claim the production "is a way out attack on the traditionally accepted values of the social order," as well as "an outrageous assault on morality, patriotism, the flag, religious practices and religion in general."

Beyond that, the resolution says the play "appears to condone drug abuse, homosexuality and other sexual perversion."

Not to be put off by his own resolution, Wierzbicki admitted he might see the play if someone would give him a free ticket.

Break-In Reported At Arnold Store

A break-in at the Kenneth Holmes store in Arnold, was reported to the State Police of the Gladstone Post.

Police are continuing their investigation.

Police Probe Area Thefts

Officers said the fuel oil, valued at about $27, was taken sometime during the past week. The fuel oil was stored in a locked tank located outside the cabin and was siphoned out after the gauge had been removed.

The camp is located in section 33 of Wells Township, police said.

State Police are also investigating the theft of a 14 foot aluminum boat, owned by Donald DeKeyser, 1226 Minneapolis Ave., Gladstone.

The boat, valued at about $150, was reported to have been taken from Garth Point, early Saturday morning, police said.

Cancer Appeal Heard By Club

The movie, "Journey Into Darkness," which was prepared by the American Cancer Society to help alert the public against the pitfalls of quack remedies for cancer, was shown to the Escanaba Kiwanis Club on Wednesday.

The program was arranged by Jack Beck, who is president of the local cancer chapter and was presented by Dave Mason who is chairman for the Delta County Cancer Crusade.

In a brief introduction to the film, Mason stated that the goal of the local society is $8,945 and that $7,403 has been collected at this date.

Mason urged contributions for the remaining $1,500 and said anyone interested in making a pledge, or an additional pledge, could contact either himself or Jack Beck.

Of the amount collected, 50% goes to the American Cancer Society, while the other 50% remains with the local chapter to aid patients in this area.

Milliken Spends 'Time' Behind Bars

LANSING (AP) — Gov. William Milliken went to prison Monday — several prisons — in an effort to see first hand what Michigan is doing at correctional facilities.

"Michigan has many outstanding programs for its prison population," said the governor, after a day-long tour that included talks with inmates and correctional employes at the State Prison of Southern Michigan, the Michigan Training Unit at Ionia and the Ionia Reformatory.

The governor added, however, that the state "also has many serious deficiencies that can contribute to the continuation of the crime problem in our society.

"Both the state and the public have an important responsibility to see that adequate correctional facilities are provided throughout the state," Milliken said.

Communication

Quite a bit has been written of late about communication or the lack of it between the young and the "old" worlds. The campus protesters say the "establishment" doesn't listen to the cries of the young. And they're probably right in some instances.

So when a pair of students, 1970 graduates of Escanaba and Holy Name High Schools, respectively, spoke to the Escanaba Rotary Club a week ago there was special reason to reflect on their messages.

Consider, for a moment a few of their remarks.

Constance Schoen, the Rotary Girl from Holy Name for 1970, said that maybe her "idea of man's existence is somewhat idealistic and yet I cannot help but think that idealistic is not the right word. Is it so highly improbable that we will never know true peace, genuine concern for others and life as it was intended to be? . . . I want to be able to walk down the street knowing I will be able to return home safely. I want to be able to say mine was the generation that saw no sense in war and did something about it. I want to be able to give my children and the generations to come not a world as I know it, but one to be proud of and one I helped to build."

Frederic Jurmu, the Rotary Boy from Escanaba Area High School, had another view:

"It would be naive, of course, to suggest that this society is a perfect one," Jurmu said. "But the problems which lie before us represent not the failures of one generation, but the challenges of the next. Our inheritance is not the same group of problems faced by each succeeding generation throughout history, but is the abundance of blessings which gives us the best opportunity yet to meet the challenge of these problems."

The concerns of Miss Schoen are not restricted to the young. They are those of the entire nation. As Jurmu says, however, it would be naive to suggest that this society is perfect.

But that applies to solutions as well as problems.

Perhaps the answers of the new generations will improve on the efforts of the recent past. Perhaps the streets of the cities can be made safe, that wars will become history and not current events and that all of the other current ills of the world and society can be satisfactorily resolved. The "establishment" holds these hopes for its children. But history teaches that as one problem is corrected a new one develops and that a "cause" will never be lacking. Today's young people may face even greater challenges in the future.

That's why communication is so important. Without free exchange of ideas and information there is nothing.

Selling Names

When a citizen gives information to the government in compliance with the law, he has a right to be assured that it will be held in confidence and not used for any other than its intended purposes.

It is disquieting to learn, therefore, that the Internal Revenue Service has been engaged in selling lists of the names and addresses of taxpayers to anyone who happens to want them. The practice can make any taxpayer the target of all kinds of unsolicited mailings and commercial schemes and even criminal activity.

The recent discovery of this new method of raising revenue caused considerable controversy, as well might. The controversy ended after awhile, but the selling of lists didn't. Apparently IRS generates too much easy revenue this way to abandon the practice without a fight.

And now Rep. John E. Hunt of New Jersey is raising the question anew as a result of his astonishing discovery that IRS has been selling to any and all comers lists of the names of gun dealers and collectors. It's a lucrative business, for IRS gets $140 for each list and sales reportedly are brisk.

Gun dealers and collectors, however, are probably less pleased with this invasion of their privacy, for the danger is that they could become even more of targets for criminals and militant revolutionaries bent on stealing firearms.

Hunt proposes legislation that would prohibit any agency of government, including the IRS, from exploiting the names and addresses and other information given them by citizens in fulfilling the requirements of the law. Such information would have to be held in the strictest confidence.

It is a most reasonable idea and one which the government would do well to institute on its own without being compelled by law. If the federal government owes a citizen nothing else, or does nothing else on his behalf, it should grant him the same respect that it asks for itself.

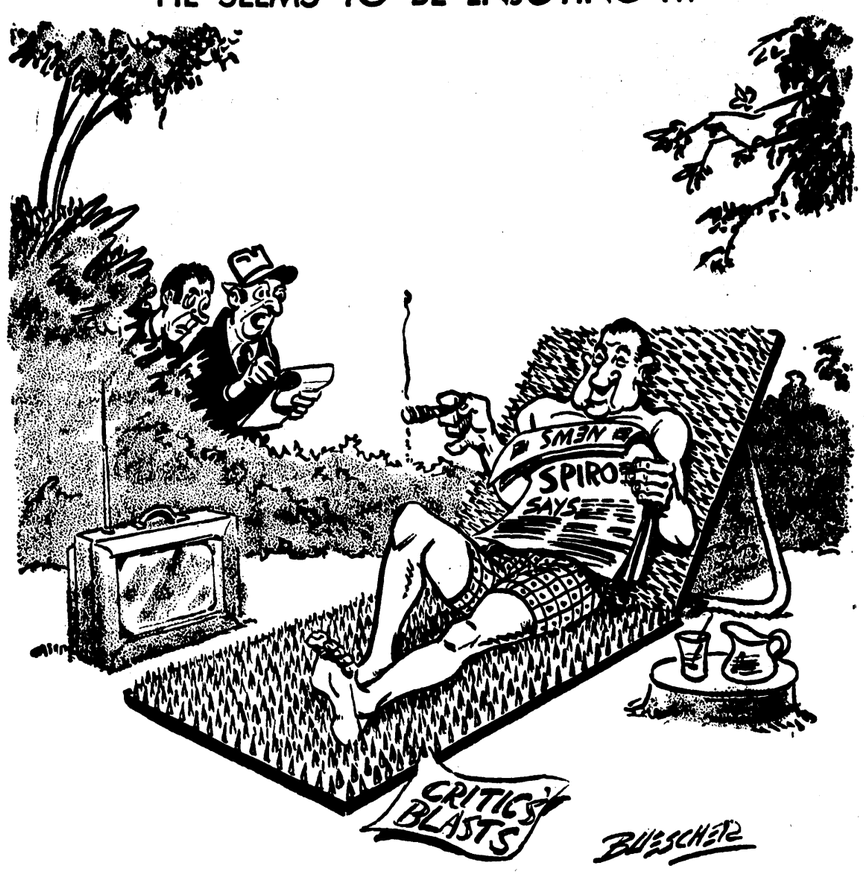
"HE SEEMS TO BE ENJOYING IT!"



Nixon Won't Repeat Mistakes Of Hoover

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

When the stock market broke a couple of weeks ago, the Democrats began to smell blood. Here was an ancient issue that had stood them in good stead over a 40-year period; they began to dress President Richard Nixon in the high collar of Herbert Hoover, assuming that the current recession, if that is the word for it, will very likely deepen to the point where no economic turn-around can be politically engineered in time for the autumn Congressional elections.

If the Democrats' National Committee boss, Larry O'Brien, is really historically minded, he must be conning the record of old Charlie Michelson, who, working with a bundle provided by John Raskob, set the propaganda machine in motion that smeared Herbert Hoover into defeat.

But there is a prime difference between Hoover and Nixon. Hoover had a definite economic theory; he thought the way to get rid of depression was to let it run its course. However, the voters, listening to Charlie Michelson's day-in, dayout- propaganda of woe, turned Hoover out of office in 1932 before the theory had a chance to work.

Nixon, a political animal, does not profess to any hard-and-fast economic theory. He has trusted his advisers. But he is not committed to a straight-line persistence in any economic policy. Can anyone really believe that he would nail the flag of bitter-end deflation to the mast and go down like Hoover with a sinking ship?

As a matter of fact, Nixon has at least one economic adviser whose general conservatism reckons with political realities — and possibilities. He is Arthur Burns, head of the Federal Reserve System.

Some years ago I had a friendly lunch with Arthur Burns at the Century Club in New York City. He surprised me by his frankness in talking about Herbert Hoover. It was not that he considered Hoover a stupid man; Hoover was correct in his general feeling that governments do things badly when they enter the economic field.

Yet there was one thing that Hoover did not understand, and this was the fact that governments are very good when it comes to creating money. Burns said this with a humorous glint in his eye. Unless he has greatly changed over the years I can't see him letting deflationary history run roughshod over Nixon between now and November.

My friend Eliot Paneway, who has had an enviable record in predicting woe for the Dow-Jones averages, thinks the stock market has not yet hit bottom. He could be right. Nonetheless the assumption that Wall Street securities are worth less than any particular level of currency value must be subject to some discount.

If a person owns title to a portion of Ford or General Motors he owns something substantial and useful. Despite high labor costs and the annoyance value of Ralph Nader, cars are going to be made and sold in America for many years to come.

The auto makers are quite prepared to make cars that will run efficiently with lead-free fuel, and Ford even has an emission control system that can be installed on an old car in an hour's time for $10. If anything is plain, the automotive market will adapt itself to the new world demanded by the ecologists and by Mr. Nader himself. And the unions will have to permit a profit margin of some kind.

To rush from stocks into money makes sense only on the assumption that bankruptcies threaten, or that money will continue to have greater purchasing power tomorrow than it has today.

Maybe some of the Nixon anti-inflationary policies will succeed in slowing down the deterioration of the dollar. But it is beyond belief that money, over the long run in a politically-dominated world that has cut loose from metallic standards, will continue to be worth more while titles to productive machinery are worth less.

Arthur Burns, I am reasonably sure, did not have that glint in his eye for nothing when he was talking about the mistakes of Herbert Hoover.

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
Pass	2 NT	Pass	3 NT

Opening lead—nine of hearts.

Perhaps the most striking aspect of Sylvia's game was that so many of her triumphs were the result of some gross misconception of a principle she supposedly had assimilated.

Sylvia never intentionally varied from what she understood to be the correct bid or play. As a matter of fact, she would almost woodenly follow her partner's suggestions, even though it seemed to her that many of the principles they vociferously espoused were in total conflict with one another.

One day, Sylvia was playing as usual in the expert game at the club and became declarer at three notrump with the South hand.

West had no really clear-cut opening lead, and chose the nine of hearts in an effort to find his partner's long suit.

East signaled enthusiastic approval with the six, but Sylvia, who had been told time and again of the virtues and advantages of the hold-up play at trick one, followed suit with the seven!

This extroordinary play was but one more example of the lengths to which Sylvia would go to please her partners.

West continued with a heart and Sylvia captured East's eight with the ten. When she now led the jack of diamonds, West won with the king and, unable to return a heart, shifted to a low spade. Sylvia won with the ace and led another diamond. East took the queen, but was absolutely helpless. A heart return was obviously futile, since Sylvia still had the A-Q, so East returned a spade.

Sylvia won and played still another diamond, finally establishing dummy's long suit to produce nine tricks.

Later analysis revealed that Sylvia would have gone down had she won the opening heart lead with the ten. East's hearts would have become established before Sylvia's diamonds, and the contract would inevitably have failed.

Ann Landers

Disappearing Clown May Stay With Act

Dear Ann Landers: I've been dating a very attractive guy for over a year. He is three years my senior—marriage-minded and he has made it clear I'm the one he wants. (I want him, too.)

There is one small thing that is bothering me, Ann. Every few weeks he simply doesn't show up for a date. I have stood at the appointed place for as long as an hour and a half and then gone home—worried sick.

The next day he calls and acts as if nothing happened. When I ask him why he stood me up he says, "Oh. Did we have a date?" Then he rattles off some preposterous story—as, "President Nixon summoned me to the White House." Or, "Queen Elizabeth needed an extra man at a dinner party." This morning he said, "I was with Ann Landers. She neded some advice."

Don't tell me to drop him. I'm in love with the guy. Just tell me how to cure him.—Bonita

Dear Bon: O. K. I won't tell you to drop him. But I will tell you that if you marry this clown you will spend your life witnessing disappearing acts that will make Houdini look like an amateur. You don't say anything about his liquid intake, but he sounds like a boozer who loses himself periodically and the cure for this is to dry up completely.

Dear Ann Landers: The woman who lives in the apartment down the hall is a delightful person. I could not ask for a finer friend. The problem is one I dare not discuss with anyone. I would hate to be misunderstood.

Lottie gives her age as 78. I suspect she has already seen 80. She is quite deaf and does not see well. She owns a '68 Chevrolet and is very generous about offering to drive me anywhere. Lottie has had several close calls when I have been in the car with her but she boasts that in the 40 years she has been driving she has never had an accident. I find this downright miraculous. How can I tell her I am afraid to let her drive me? I wouldn't hurt her for the world.—Perplexed

Dear Perp: Most states are smartening up and making it mandatory for people to be re-tested when they reach a certain age rather than allow them to renew their driver's license automatically. This will take the Lotties of our land out of the driver's seat. I say it is better to hurt your friend's felings than to let her kill you. Tell her candidly that you are afraid to ride with her. I know some terrible drivers who boast that they have never had an accident, but I'll bet they have caused a few.

Dear Ann Landers: A friend of mine is built like a penguin. She is small on top and opens up like an umbrella from the waist down. She has a terrible time finding clothes that fit beause she's a size 10 on top and a size 18 below.

She tried on my last year's spring coat a few weeks ago and it looked great on her. She asked if I would sell it to her and I did. Yesterday she told me she saw the same coat for $10 less than what she paid for mine. She asked what I wanted to do about it. I was dumbfounded and said I'd think it over. What should I do, Ann? I'm burning.—Dayton

Dear Day: Tell your former friend to come get her refund and bring the coat. And let this be a lesson to you. Stay out of the retail business. Let your friends buy their clothes in a store. Then if they have any complaints they can go to the manager.

SCHOOL ACTION

The action taken by the Interim School Board for the newly consolidated school system of the Powers-Spalding and Hermansville areas was definitely not in the best interest of public education. Jerome K. Albright, superintendent at Powers-Spalding for the past five years was, beyond a doubt, the most qualified of the two men considered for the position of superintendent for the newly consolidated district. His years of experience plus his high level of educational attainment and background substantially support this. As head of the larger of the two consolidated districts, Albright was the logical and only choice to lead us through the difficult times of union that lie ahead.

Albright's excellent record at the Powers-Spalding Public Schools is partially noted here to substantiate my previously stated position. Under his competent administrative leadership the following accomplishments took place:

A new science laboratory was developed; The home economics department was refurnished under an appliance exchange program; The hot lunch kitchen was renovated; Audio visual equipment and books were procured in unprecedented amounts; A previous debt related to an unfortuante incident was paid off which approximated twenty thousand dollars;

The football field received lights and bleachers;

All teachers in the system have degrees, a condition nonexistent previously; The music Festival of Song has begun for the elementary children; Special education classes were started for slow learners; A qualified band instructor was hired on a full time basis, resulting in a marching band and a chorus; Glass backboards were erected in the gymnasium; Powers-Spalding Schools was just recently accepted by Northern Michigan University for student teacher training; Good relationships with the teaching staff resulted in the construction of a trophy case, cabinets in the library, and installation of a public address system;

Student foreign exchange program began; Summer school programs have been initiated; Several millage and consolidation requests were passed by substantial majorities; Portable classrooms were obtained to provide temporary facilities for an ever increasing number of students; Personal contact with Bishop Charles Salatka secured vital classroom space in the parochial school building; Many of the above were purchased through federal Titles I, II, and III projects. These, if approved, require extensive administrative paperwork, time and effort.

Administrative - wise what complaints could cause an interim board to bypass one so qualified and competent? In all candor, I respectfully ask the interim board, while there is still time, to reassess their decision and employ the man they know is best suited for the position.

Besides hiring Jerome K. Albright to head our newly consolidated school. I feel Clifford Luft must also be retained in another administrative capacity. For all concerned this would promote the harmonious atmosphere needed to perform an enormous task that requires above all, "unity."

Communication

Quite a bit has been written of late about communication or the lack of it between the young and the "old" worlds. The campus protesters say the "establishment" doesn't listen to the cries of the young. And they're probably right in some instances.

So when a pair of students, 1970 graduates of Escanaba and Holy Name High Schools, respectively, spoke to the Escanaba Rotary Club a week ago there was special reason to reflect on their messages.

Consider, for a moment a few of their remarks.

Constance Schoen, the Rotary Girl from Holy Name for 1970, said that maybe her "idea of man's existence is somewhat idealistic and yet I cannot help but think that idealistic is not the right word. Is it so highly improbable that we will never know true peace, genuine concern for others and life as it was intended to be? . . . I want to be able to walk down the street knowing I will be able to return home safely. I want to be able to say mine was the generation that saw no sense in war and did something about it. I want to be able to give my children and the generations to come not a world as I know it, but one to be proud of and one I helped to build."

Frederic Jurmu, the Rotary Boy from Escanaba Area High School, had another view:

"It would be naive, of course, to suggest that this society is a perfect one," Jurmu said. "But the problems which lie before us represent not the failures of one generation, but the challenges of the next. Our inheritance is not the same group of problems faced by each succeeding generation throughout history, but is the abundance of blessings which gives us the best opportunity yet to meet the challenge of these problems."

The concerns of Miss Schoen are not restricted to the young. They are those of the entire nation. As Jurmu says, however, it would be naive to suggest that this society is perfect.

But that applies to solutions as well as problems.

Perhaps the answers of the new generations will improve on the efforts of the recent past. Perhaps the streets of the cities can be made safe, that wars will become history and not current events and that all of the other current ills of the world and society can be satisfactorily resolved. The "establishment" holds these hopes for its children. But history teaches that as one problem is corrected a new one develops and that a "cause" will never be lacking. Today's young people may face even greater challenges in the future.

That's why communication is so important. Without free exchange of ideas and information there is nothing.

Selling Names

When a citizen gives information to the government in compliance with the law, he has a right to be assured that it will be held in confidence and not used for any other than its intended purposes.

It is disquieting to learn, therefore, that the Internal Revenue Service has been engaged in selling lists of the names and addresses of taxpayers to anyone who happens to want them. The practice can make any taxpayer the target of all kinds of unsolicited mailings and commercial schemes and even criminal activity.

The recent discovery of this new method of raising revenue caused considerable controversy, as well might. The controversy ended after awhile, but the selling of lists didn't. Apparently IRS generates too much easy revenue this way to abandon the practice without a fight.

And now Rep. John E. Hunt of New Jersey is raising the question anew as a result of his astonishing discovery that IRS has been selling to any and all comers lists of the names of gun dealers and collectors. It's a lucrative business, for IRS gets $140 for each list and sales reportedly are brisk.

Gun dealers and collectors, however, are probably less pleased with this invasion of their privacy, for the danger is that they could become even more of targets for criminals and militant revolutionaries bent on stealing firearms.

Hunt proposes legislation that would prohibit any agency of government, including the IRS, from exploiting the names and addresses and other information given them by citizens in fulfilling the requirements of the law. Such information would have to be held in the strictest confidence.

It is a most reasonable idea and one which the government would do well to institute on its own without being compelled by law. If the federal government owes a citizen nothing else, or does nothing else on his behalf, it should grant him the same respect that it asks for itself.

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
Pass	2 NT	Pass	3 NT

Opening lead—nine of hearts.

Perhaps the most striking aspect of Sylvia's game was that so many of her triumphs were the result of some gross misconception of a principle she supposedly had assimilated.

Sylvia never intentionally varied from what she understood to be the correct bid or play. As a matter of fact, she would almost woodenly follow her partner's suggestions, even though it seemed to her that many of the principles they vociferously espoused were in total conflict with one another.

One day, Sylvia was playing as usual in the expert game at the club and became declarer at three notrump with the South hand.

West had no really clear-cut opening lead, and chose the nine of hearts in an effort to find his partner's long suit.

East signaled enthusiastic approval with the six, but Sylvia, who had been told time and again of the virtues and advantages of the hold-up play at trick one, followed suit with the seven!

This extroordinary play was but one more example of the lengths to which Sylvia would go to please her partners.

West continued with a heart and Sylvia captured East's eight with the ten. When she now led the jack of diamonds, West won with the king and, unable to return a heart, shifted to a low spade. Sylvia won with the ace and led another diamond. East took the queen, but was absolutely helpless. A heart return was obviously futile, since Sylvia still had the A-Q, so East returned a spade.

Sylvia won and played still another diamond, finally establishing dummy's long suit to produce nine tricks.

Later analysis revealed that Sylvia would have gone down had she won the opening heart lead with the ten. East's hearts would have become established before Sylvia's diamonds, and the contract would inevitably have failed.

Ann Landers

Disappearing Clown May Stay With Act

Dear Ann Landers: I've been dating a very attractive guy for over a year. He is three years my senior—marriage-minded and he has made it clear I'm the one he wants. (I want him, too.)

There is one small thing that is bothering me, Ann. Every few weeks he simply doesn't show up for a date. I have stood at the appointed place for as long as an hour and a half and then gone home—worried sick.

The next day he calls and acts as if nothing happened. When I ask him why he stood me up he says, "Oh. Did we have a date?" Then he rattles off some preposterous story—as, "President Nixon summoned me to the White House." Or, "Queen Elizabeth needed an extra man at a dinner party." This morning he said, "I was with Ann Landers. She neded some advice."

Don't tell me to drop him. I'm in love with the guy. Just tell me how to cure him.—Bonita

Dear Bon: O. K. 1 won't tell you to drop him. But I will tell you that if you marry this clown you will spend your life witnessing disappearing acts that will make Houdini look like an amateur. You don't say anything about his liquid intake, but he sounds like a boozer who loses himself periodically and the cure for this is to dry up completely.

★ ★ ★

Dear Ann Landers: The woman who lives in the apartment down the hall is a delightful person. I could not ask for a finer friend. The problem is one I dare not discuss with anyone. I would hate to be misunderstood.

Lottie gives her age as 78. I suspect she has already seen 80. She is quite deaf and does not see well. She owns a '68 Chevrolet and is very generous about offering to drive me anywhere. Lottie has had several close calls when I have been in the car with her but she boasts that in the 40 years she has been driving she has never had an accident. I find this downright miraculous. How can I tell her I am afraid to let her drive me? I wouldn't hurt her for the world.—Perplexed

Dear Perp: Most states are smartening up and making it mandatory for people to be re-tested when they reach a certain age rather than allow them to renew their driver's license automatically. This will take the Lotties of our land out of the driver's seat. I say it is better to hurt your friend's felings than to let her kill you. Tell her candidly that you are afraid to ride with her. I know some terrible drivers who boast that they have never had an accident, but I'll bet they have caused a few.

Dear Ann Landers: A friend of mine is built like a penguin. She is small on top and opens up like an umbrella from the waist down. She has a terrible time finding clothes that fit beause she's a size 10 on top and a size 18 below.

She tried on my last year's spring coat a few weeks ago and it looked great on her. She asked if I would sell it to her and I did. Yesterday she told me she saw the same coat for $10 less than what she paid for mine. She asked what I wanted to do about it. I was dumbfounded and said I'd think it over. What should I do, Ann? I'm burning.—Dayton

Dear Day: Tell your former friend to come get her refund and bring the coat. And let this be a lesson to you. Stay out of the retail business. Let your friends buy their clothes in a store. Then if they have any complaints they can go to the manager.

Students Bridge Generation Gap With Walkathon

By PETER MITCHELL
Bay de Noc Community College

At a time when there seems to be a polarization between the old and the young, the students of Bay de Noc Community College have been able to bridge the generation gap.

By soliciting sponsorships for their walkathon from the "Establishment" businessmen of the community, they have learned the importance of being concerned with the environment and the importance of working within the democratic framework.

Barb Marshall, sophomore from Gladstone noted, "the people were friendly and most cooperative when we approached them to sponsor walkers."

Terry Anderson, sophomore from Escanaba said, "the businessmen were willing to listen to us, and that means a great deal to college students."

Despite what we observe on television, I believe there are numerous students dedicating themselves to constructive action. As faculty coordinator of the "walkathon" I am certain that many of our young people need only the interested guidance and encouragement from college officials and civic leaders to channel their strong sense of immediacy into positive projects.

Mike Berro, president of the college student government reported the students have collected over $700 and are confident that they will reach their goal of $1,000.

The money will be used to finance a fountain to be placed in the Escanaba downtown rest area.

In addition to financing the fountain the project has two other purposes: To clean the litter along U.S. 2 between Gladstone and Escanaba. Since this is a heavily traveled route, the students feel that it is of aesthetic importance to prevent trash and debris from accumulating.

And secondly to perpetually remind citizens of the need to be concerned about the environment. Although the Escanaba area is relatively free from the serious pollutants of the larger metropolitan areas, it is essential to retain an active interest to prevent further pollution and to keep the environment clean.

DANCE STUDENTS of Mrs. Jeannette LeCaptain will perform a revue Thursday at 8 p. m. at the Escanaba Area High School Auditorium. A cast of over 100 local dancers will perform in, "The Legend of Tumbleweed," a musical story of song dances and pantomine. Pictured above at the "Last Chance Saloon," are left, can-can girl, Kathy Lyon and cowboy (girl); Linda Moras. Tickets are available from the dance students or may be purchased at the door. LSD Possession Charged To Youth

An Escanaba youth, Rodney Cartwright, 17, of the Robin Hood Motel, today is held in the Delta County jail awaiting preliminary hearing on a charge of possession of narcotics — LSD.

In District Court on Monday an attorney was named to represent him and his bond was set at $2,500, which he was unable to furnish. The preliminary hearing will determine whether he is to be bound over to Circuit Court on the felony charge.

Cartwright is presently on delayed sentence from District Court On March 26, 1970, he was in District Court on a charge of receiving stolen property of value under $100. Authorities said that Cartwright also has a juvenile court record.

The warrant for the arrest of Cartwright for possession of LSD was issued by Delta Prosecutor John Beauchamp following an investigation by city police of an incident that occurred on May 23.

On the afternoon of that date two girls, 4 and 7 years old, who live on the city's west side, became ill from tasting pellets which they found hidden in the neighborhood.

They suffered hallucinations, acted irrationally, and were rushed to St. Francis Hospital for treatment. They were hospitalized for several days. The older girl continues to have some slight problems and is under a doctor's care, authorities reported today.

The LSD pellet samples were sent by police to the Michigan State Crime Laboratory in Lansing for analysis. On May 26 a preliminary report was received indicating the pellets were the narcotic LSD; and this was confirmed following additional tests and a report received by police on June 4.

The arrest of Cartwright followed.

The incident involving the accidental discovery of the narcotics by the children, their illness after tasting the pellets, and other information was known to the news media of the community but publication was withheld for a time at the request of authorities.

The amount of LSD in pellets recovered by officers was described as "a considerable quantity."

Sault Mayor, Son Reportedly Safe

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (AP)—The mayor of Sault Ste. Marie, his son and a Board of Education member have been found alive and reportedly well on an island on Lake Nipigon, Ont.

The three, Mayor John Harrington, 56; his son John, 30, and Vern Coutant, 67, disappeared late Saturday while crossing the lake on a fishing trip.

Ontario Provincial police said a bush pilot spotted the trio about 11 a.m. today on the island, about 10 miles from the mainland.

The men apparently got off course while crossing the lake and ran out of gas, police said. A large contingent of planes and boats had been searching the lake and island since Sunday morning.

Police said the bush pilot landed on the water near the men's island campsite and left them sufficient gasoline for the return trip to the mainland.

The lake is in Ontario about 400 miles northwest of Sault Ste. Marie. Police said the three men were found about 30 miles from where they set out Saturday.

Identify Slain Dearborn Girl

DETROIT (AP) — A 16-year-old girl, found brutally slain in a suburban Dearborn park Sunday, disappeared within sight of her home while returning from school last Tuesday, police said.

Two boys at play found the nearly nude body of Frances Ann Foshee of Dearborn Heights and she was identified through fingerprints and by a scar on her left wrist.

Police said they are seeking an unidentified young blond motorist who was seen talking to the girl near her home.

Her mother, Mrs. Willie Oliver, said the family received several harassing telephone calls just before her daughter disappeared. The caller would not speak but only breathed heavily into the phone, Mrs. Oliver said.

The last phone call came last Tuesday about 12:15 p.m., just as Mrs. Oliver caught sight of her daughter approaching the house and had waved to her. When the mother returned to the porch after answering the telephone, the girl was gone, she said.

Mrs. Oliver said she notified police of her daughter's disappearance about 6 p.m. that night.

Police said an acquaintance of the girl reported seeing her talking to a "good-looking young man with blond hair" about two blocks from the Oliver home. The youth was alone in a dark blue car that was stopped in the street.

40 Youths Ousted From Lansing Park

EAST LANSING (AP)—Michigan State University police evicted about 40 youthful residents from a campus people's park today. Police said the youths were very cooperative and there were no arrests.

Michigan State University police said most of the youths were not students but rather "drifters, local kids or dropouts."

About a dozen MSU police and four university grounds trucks cleared the area after the youths left.

MSU Police Cpl. Harold Henderson said many unoccupied tents were impounded and will be returned to their owners.

The peoples park tent village was set up about a month ago in violation of a campus ordinance prohibiting the construction or erection of a tent or lean-to on university property.

The last phone call came last Tuesday about 12:15 p.m., just as Mrs. Oliver caught sight of her daughter approaching the house and had waved to her. When the mother returned to the porch after answering the telephone, the girl was gone, she said.

Mrs. Oliver said she notified police of her daughter's disappearance about 6 p.m. that night.

Police said an acquaintance of the girl reported seeing her talking to a "good-looking young man with blond hair" about two blocks from the Oliver home. The youth was alone in a dark blue car that was stopped in the street.

Is Agnew Worth $100 Price Tag?

DETROIT (AP)— The dinner is going for $100 a plate but those who've signed up think the main course, Vice President Spiro Agnew, will be well worth it.

Sponsored by the Republican State Finance Committee, next Monday's Agnew dinner at Detroit's Cobo Hall is expected to draw 3,900 persons.

Proceeds will be used for campaigns this fall.

40 Youths Ousted From Lansing Park

EAST LANSING (AP)—Michigan State University police evicted about 40 youthful residents from a campus people's park today. Police said the youths were very cooperative and there were no arrests.

Michigan State University police said most of the youths were not students but rather "drifters, local kids or dropouts."

About a dozen MSU police and four university grounds trucks cleared the area after the youths left.

MSU Police Cpl. Harold Henderson said many unoccupied tents were impounded and will be returned to their owners.

The peoples park tent village was set up about a month ago in violation of a campus ordinance prohibiting the construction or erection of a tent or lean-to on university property.

HOUGHTON—Three Upper Peninsula students, one from Gladstone, took top honors in the Class of 1970 at Michigan Technological University.

Keith N. Apelgren of Gladstone, and Thomas R. Greenlee of Calumet are the co-valedictorians.

The salutatorian is Thomas A. Ala of Chassell.

Apelgren and Greenlee achieved identical grade point averages of 3.99 (4.0 is a straight-A average). Ala's average was 3.98. The three will be recognized at Michigan Tech's June 13 commencement.

Apelgren, a graduate of Gladstone High School, served as president of Phi Eta Sigma Freshman Honor Society in 1966-67 and was a member of the Douglass Houghton Residence Hall Council in 1967-68. He is the recipient of the Walter Harnischfeger Commemorative Scholarship.

During the last year he has been working on a research project on primary perception mechanisms in plants, to determine if they really have "feelings." Apelgren will be awarded a bachelor of science degree with high honors in biological sciences.

His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Nels Apelgren, 807 Minnesota Ave.

Greenlee, a Calumet High School Graduate, has been a member of the American Chemical Society and Phi Eta Sigma. He received two Michigan Tech Board of Control scholarships. He recently was awarded a National Science Foundation Scholarship for full-time study of theoretical physics at the California Institute of Technology, Pasadena. He also has been selected by the Civil Service Commission to be a Summer Intern this year in Washington, D. C.

Army May Drop Murder Charges Against Captain

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — Charges of unpremeditated murder against an Army officer in connection with an alleged massacre in Vietnam may be dropped, his attorney says.

The attorney for Capt. Thomas K. Willingham, 25, was scheduled to meet today at Ft. Meade, Md., with members of the Ft. McPherson, Ga., Judge Advocate's staff which is handling the case.

The attorney, Robert A. McKinley, said Monday unofficial Army sources had told him all charges against Willingham would be dropped. He stressed he had heard nothing official.

Kosygin To Step Down, Paper Says

LONDON (AP) — The Daily Mail reported today that Alexei N. Kosygin will step down as Soviet Premier this month—but British and other Western diplomats reacted to the claim with some reserve.

One of the two deputy premiers — Kiril Mazurov, 56, or Dmitri Polyansky, 53 — will take over from the ailing, 61-year-old Kosygin, according to the newspaper.

It based its report on "well-authenticated reports reaching London."

British government and Western embassy officials said they have had no new indications suggesting Kosygin's departure may be imminent.

'Big Four' Envoys Meet In Berlin

BERLIN (AP) — The Big Four's ambassadors to Germany met in West Berlin today for the fourth session of their talks on the future of the divided city.

Pyotr Abrassimov, the Soviet ambassador to East Germany, was the chairman today. Meeting with him were Kenneth Rush of the United States, Sir Roger Jackling of Britain and Jean Sauvagnargues of France.

The talks opened March 26 and are being kept secret. No progress has been reported toward their goaleasing tensions in and around Berlin. Informed sources said things are still in the preliminary stage.

Brampton Voters Approve Levy

Vote on the tax proposal was 28 to 9. VanDeWeghe, who was unopposed, received 35 votes. A total of 37 voters turned out for the election.

Anti-Pollution Efforts To Boost Water Bills

Gladstone residents will realize the high cost of pollution abatement efforts when they receive their water bills in July.

To meet the cost of constructing facilities to provide secondary sewage treatment, the City Commission Monday night approved a 40 per cent increase in water rates and established a wastewater fee of 70 per cent of the water bill.

After Mayor Raymond Norton read the resolution to a large audience at the City Hall, City Manager Howard Keeton said the city has been cited for failing to provide adequate control of wastewater discharge and is being compelled to provide secondary treatment and removal of phosphorus compounds by the construction of facilities by 1972.

Based On Cost

Keeton said engineers from Williams & Works have submitted a plan to the Michigan Dept. of Public Health based on an estimated cost of $500,000 to $600,000.

New water and wastewater rates have been based on this cost and will provide Gladstone's share of the total cost of construction and operation. About 55 per cent of the project costs will come through federal and state government funding, he indicated.

The city manager said the engineers found that Gladstone is using twice as much water on a per customer basis as the average city its size and sometimes more than the City of Escanaba, which has three times the population.

Hanford White, 1224 Michigan Ave., asked what the new rates would mean for the average consumer and he was told that the average bill, based on a normal number of outlets, is $11.25 for a three-month period and would be raised to $16.17. The wastewater charge (70 per cent) would be added to the bill.

Meters Discussed

Edward Murphy, 1723 Montna Ave., said he believes the charges for additional outlets are hitting some customers "pretty hard" and Commissioner George Young said that in his case and in other similar circumstance the solution is to install a meter and pay only for the amount of water used.

Lionel Beaumier, 1710 Marble Ave., said he thought the last raise in the water rates was to have met needed improvements, but now with this additional charge he believes the city should install meters in all homes as people are using water day and night. Commissioner Young agreed that meters are the only fair method, but that a proposal to have meters installed had been defeated by the voters.

The city is not in a position at this time to provide meters for everyone, but persons desiring meters may install them at their own expense, Young said.

Rate Debated

Mrs. Florence DeHooghe, 1318 Delta Ave., asked what the rate for average consumption and she was told that based on the average consumption of 3,000 gallons per month the cost would be $5, if metered, and $5.39 unmetered.

Annexation of nine 40-acre tracts of city-owned property along M-35 now in Escanaba Township drew considerable comment from residents in the area. The city had permitted Habitant Fence Co. to use the land for refuse disposal since the company has been prohibited from burning in the Industrial Park.

William Gartland, Rte. 1, Gladstone, said his property is near the area where the company had been dumping the refuse and he believes it will soon become a city dumping area and water would be polluted.

Water A Problem

Gartland said that water is standing in the area now and that if further dumping is permitted it would be unsightly as well as unsafe.

The city manager said further dumping of refuse in the area has been prohibited since a complaint was made by Gartland.

The question of licensing for dumping was raised and Leo Harvey, county sanitarian, said a license would be needed and the commission agreed to discontinue any action in the area until the health department rules on the health hazard. The resolution to annex the property was approved, however.

In other business, the commission approved upgrading to Class C the liquor license for a tavern owned by William Engle, 1015 Delta Ave. and Frank and Lila Stipech, 1011 Delta Ave.; referred the matter of a proposed trailer park on the bluff to the Planning Commission and approved payment of $33,473 to Champion, Inc., for work on the water filtration plant.

Theft Of Bonds Big Problem

WASHINGTON (AP) — Theft of government securities has become so widespread that some insurance firms have balked at covering U.S. Treasury bonds, the Federal Reserve Board says.

Losses reached $20 million last year for banks in New York City alone. Wall Street brokerage firms were hit hard also, the board said.

The FBI, keeper of the only full list of which securities are stolen, won't market its data available to banks that may be confronted with a suspicious bond, the board told Congress.

The report was sent privately from the Federal Reserve Board to a House investigating subcommittee. A copy was obtained by the Associated Press.

The board made no mention of Mafia involvement in the rash of thefts from the multibillion-dollar flow on Wall Street of Treasury bills, bonds and notes —each a type of loan to the government that can be cashed in or sold.

But it said insurance firms have been hiking their fees for covering the government bonds in Wall Street hands since last fall and, in several cases, have refused to furnish any more protection.

The theft losses last year were substantially higher than any other year in history, the report said.

It cited the $13 million disappearance from the Morgan Guaranty Trust Co. as well as two other New York bank cases that each topped $1 million.

Many Treasury bills are payable to the bearer and can be cashed easily. Other stolen securities have been used as collateral to get loans at banks ranging from Miami, Fla., to a small town in central Pennsylvania. Still other stolen bonds are carried overseas for sale.

Communist Vote Dwindles In Italy

ROME (AP) — Italy's first regional elections have given Premier Mariano Rumor's center-left coalition government a strong boost, while the Communists did not do as well as generally expected.

The voting Sunday and Monday put Rumor's coalition in control of 12 of Italy's 15 new regional legislatures, and the four government parties got 58.2 per cent of the 32.7 million votes cast, an improvement of 2.8 per cent over the last national election in 1968.

The Communists and their allies, the Proletarian Socialist party, took 31.1 per cent of the total vote, won a majority in the legislature of the northcentral region of Emilia-Romagna, which includes Bologna, and were the biggest vote-getters in Tuscany — Florence—and Umbria. But in the latter two regions they fell short of a majority and will have to win the support of one of the center-left parties to govern.

Voters Approve Millage, Elect Edwin Apelgren

Gladstone residents who Monday approved a 3.5 mill increase in the school tax rate for operating purposes will get a tax cut of 2.0 mills on their December bills.

Supt. of Schools Wesley Fleet said today the Board of Education will reduce the debt retirement millage rate as promised before the election, assuring the reduction in total school taxes.

The 3.5 mills for school operating to meet local tax support levels to qualify for full state aid was overwhelmingly approved in a slim turnout of voters. A total of 460 voters favored the proposal. There were only 86 opposed.

Voters also elected Edwin Apelgren, 425 Minneapolis Ave. to the Board of Education over incumbent Jerrold Becvar. Apelgren received 286 votes for the four-year term. Becvar had 256 votes, according to the unofficial returns.

Apelgren is a partner in the Bay de Noc Lure Co. He is married to the former Marjorie Ann Wyatt. They have four children, Mrs. Stephen (Cynthia) Cowen, a teacher in the Calumet school district; Scott Apelgren, a gradaute of Bay de Noc Community College who will attend Ferris State College this fall; Jana, a 1970 graduate of Gladstone High School who will attend Bay de Noc Community College in the fall and Brett, 14, a junior high school student.

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — Charges of unpremeditated murder against an Army officer in connection with an alleged massacre in Vietnam may be dropped, his attorney says.

The attorney for Capt. Thomas K. Willingham, 25, was scheduled to meet today at Ft. Meade, Md., with members of the Ft. McPherson, Ga., Judge Advocate's staff which is handling the case.

The attorney, Robert A. McKinley, said Monday unofficial Army sources had told him all charges against Willingham would be dropped. He stressed he had heard nothing official.

Kosygin To Step Down, Paper Says

LONDON (AP) — The Daily Mail reported today that Alexei N. Kosygin will step down as Soviet Premier this month—but British and other Western diplomats reacted to the claim with some reserve.

One of the two deputy premiers — Kiril Mazurov, 56, or Dmitri Polyansky, 53 — will take over from the ailing, 61-year-old Kosygin, according to the newspaper.

It based its report on "well-authenticated reports reaching London."

British government and Western embassy officials said they have had no new indications suggesting Kosygin's departure may be imminent.

The talks opened March 26 and are being kept secret. No progress has been reported toward their goaleasing tensions in and around Berlin. Informed sources said things are still in the preliminary stage.

Anti-Pollution Efforts To Boost Water Bills

Gladstone residents will realize the high cost of pollution abatement efforts when they receive their water bills in July.

To meet the cost of constructing facilities to provide secondary sewage treatment, the City Commission Monday night approved a 40 per cent increase in water rates and established a wastewater fee of 70 per cent of the water bill.

After Mayor Raymond Norton read the resolution to a large audience at the City Hall, City Manager Howard Keeton said the city has been cited for failing to provide adequate control of wastewater discharge and is being compelled to provide secondary treatment and removal of phosphorus compounds by the construction of facilities by 1972.

Based On Cost

Keeton said engineers from Williams & Works have submitted a plan to the Michigan Dept. of Public Health based on an estimated cost of $500,000 to $600,000.

New water and wastewater rates have been based on this cost and will provide Gladstone's share of the total cost of construction and operation. About 55 per cent of the project costs will come through federal and state government funding, he indicated.

The city manager said the engineers found that Gladstone is using twice as much water on a per customer basis as the average city its size and sometimes more than the City of Escanaba, which has three times the population.

Hanford White, 1224 Michigan Ave., asked what the new rates would mean for the average consumer and he was told that the average bill, based on a normal number of outlets, is $11.25 for a three-month period and would be raised to $16.17. The wastewater charge (70 per cent) would be added to the bill.

Meters Discussed

Edward Murphy, 1723 Montna Ave., said he believes the charges for additional outlets are hitting some customers "pretty hard" and Commissioner George Young said that in his case and in other similar circumstance the solution is to install a meter and pay only for the amount of water used.

Lionel Beaumier, 1710 Marble Ave., said he thought the last raise in the water rates was to have met needed improvements, but now with this additional charge he believes the city should install meters in all homes as people are using water day and night. Commissioner Young agreed that meters are the only fair method, but that a proposal to have meters installed had been defeated by the voters.

The city is not in a position at this time to provide meters for everyone, but persons desiring meters may install them at their own expense, Young said.

Rate Debated

Mrs. Florence DeHooghe, 1318 Delta Ave., asked what the rate for average consumption and she was told that based on the average consumption of 3,000 gallons per month the cost would be $5, if metered, and $5.39 unmetered.

Annexation of nine 40-acre tracts of city-owned property along M-35 now in Escanaba Township drew considerable comment from residents in the area. The city had permitted Habitant Fence Co. to use the land for refuse disposal since the company has been prohibited from burning in the Industrial Park.

William Gartland, Rte. 1, Gladstone, said his property is near the area where the company had been dumping the refuse and he believes it will soon become a city dumping area and water would be polluted.

Water A Problem

Gartland said that water is standing in the area now and that if further dumping is permitted it would be unsightly as well as unsafe.

The city manager said further dumping of refuse in the area has been prohibited since a complaint was made by Gartland.

The question of licensing for dumping was raised and Leo Harvey, county sanitarian, said a license would be needed and the commission agreed to discontinue any action in the area until the health department rules on the health hazard. The resolution to annex the property was approved, however.

In other business, the commission approved upgrading to Class C the liquor license for a tavern owned by William Engle, 1015 Delta Ave. and Frank and Lila Stipech, 1011 Delta Ave.; referred the matter of a proposed trailer park on the bluff to the Planning Commission and approved payment of $33,473 to Champion, Inc., for work on the water filtration plant.

Theft Of Bonds Big Problem

WASHINGTON (AP) — Theft of government securities has become so widespread that some insurance firms have balked at covering U.S. Treasury bonds, the Federal Reserve Board says.

Losses reached $20 million last year for banks in New York City alone. Wall Street brokerage firms were hit hard also, the board said.

The FBI, keeper of the only full list of which securities are stolen, won't market its data available to banks that may be confronted with a suspicious bond, the board told Congress.

The report was sent privately from the Federal Reserve Board to a House investigating subcommittee. A copy was obtained by the Associated Press.

The board made no mention of Mafia involvement in the rash of thefts from the multibillion-dollar flow on Wall Street of Treasury bills, bonds and notes —each a type of loan to the government that can be cashed in or sold.

But it said insurance firms have been hiking their fees for covering the government bonds in Wall Street hands since last fall and, in several cases, have refused to furnish any more protection.

The theft losses last year were substantially higher than any other year in history, the report said.

It cited the $13 million disappearance from the Morgan Guaranty Trust Co. as well as two other New York bank cases that each topped $1 million.

Many Treasury bills are payable to the bearer and can be cashed easily. Other stolen securities have been used as collateral to get loans at banks ranging from Miami, Fla., to a small town in central Pennsylvania. Still other stolen bonds are carried overseas for sale.

Communist Vote Dwindles In Italy

ROME (AP) — Italy's first regional elections have given Premier Mariano Rumor's center-left coalition government a strong boost, while the Communists did not do as well as generally expected.

The voting Sunday and Monday put Rumor's coalition in control of 12 of Italy's 15 new regional legislatures, and the four government parties got 58.2 per cent of the 32.7 million votes cast, an improvement of 2.8 per cent over the last national election in 1968.

The Communists and their allies, the Proletarian Socialist party, took 31.1 per cent of the total vote, won a majority in the legislature of the northcentral region of Emilia-Romagna, which includes Bologna, and were the biggest vote-getters in Tuscany — Florence—and Umbria. But in the latter two regions they fell short of a majority and will have to win the support of one of the center-left parties to govern.

Voters Approve Millage, Elect Edwin Apelgren

Gladstone residents who Monday approved a 3.5 mill increase in the school tax rate for operating purposes will get a tax cut of 2.0 mills on their December bills.

Supt. of Schools Wesley Fleet said today the Board of Education will reduce the debt retirement millage rate as promised before the election, assuring the reduction in total school taxes.

The 3.5 mills for school operating to meet local tax support levels to qualify for full state aid was overwhelmingly approved in a slim turnout of voters. A total of 460 voters favored the proposal. There were only 86 opposed.

Voters also elected Edwin Apelgren, 425 Minneapolis Ave. to the Board of Education over incumbent Jerrold Becvar. Apelgren received 296 votes for the four-year term. Becvar had 256 votes, according to the unofficial returns.

Apelgren is a partner in the Bay de Noc Lure Co. He is married to the former Marjorie Ann Wyatt. They have four children, Mrs. Stephen (Cynthia) Cowen, a teacher in the Calumet school district; Scott Apelgren, a gradaute of Bay de Noc Community College who will attend Ferris State College this fall; Jana, a 1970 graduate of Gladstone High School who will attend Bay de Noc Community College in the fall and Brett, 14, a junior high school student.

Manistique at Powers

The Escanaba Cubs opened defense of their Waubung League Championship, which they shared with Manistique last year, with a 29-4 victory over Schaffer Sunday.

Coach Jim Bruce's Cubs leading 3-0 going into the fourth inning exploded for 10 runs when Wayne Peterson and Al Larsen walked, Steve Vanlerberghe was then hit by the pitcher to load the bases. Bob McGinn was safe on a fielders choice and Peterson crossed the plate for the first run of the inning.

Doug Howard, who carried a heavy bat all day for the Cubs, hit a grand slam homerun to put the Cubs out front 8-0, Dan Mylander followed with another homer, before Mike Cousineau and Joe Joran grounded out. With two out, Bill Baum and Peterson singled and Larsen walked again to load the bases. Vanlerberghe uncorked another grand slam homerun as the Cubs ended the inning leading 13-0.

Howard, who pitched the first four innings gave up only one hit and struck out three before being relieved in the bottom of the fifth by Larsen who went the last five innings, striking out ten and giving up four runs and five hits.

As the game progressed, it became a struggle for homerun power as Schaffer belted three consecutive homers by Russ Pirlot, Dale Klein and Bob Robinette while the Cubs were also continuing their homerun derby, as Howard blasted his second and third homers of the afternoon and Joe Joran, his first, as the defending champs raced to their first loop victory of the young season.

For the day Howard had five of six hits while Vanlerberghe and Joran had three hits apiece.

Next Sunday the Cubs will make their first home appearance of the season when they face Powers at the Al Ness Field at 2:00 p. m.

McLain Ready To Pitch July 1 Against Yanks

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP) — The kid on the mound had pitched the equivalent of 20 innings and his arm was getting sore, but he did as he was told and kept throwing because how can you say no to a pitching coach like Denny McLain?

In Bermuda shorts and teeshirt, McLain and coach didn't look like the Denny McLain who won 31 games for the Detroit Tigers two years ago. But the tanned young man with the sun bleached hair said he was looking forward to returning to baseball and pitching against the New York Yankees at Detroit July 1.

"My curve ball and slider are already in season form," said McLain as he coached 18-year-old Perry Benton on a slider and fast ball.

"All I've got to do now is get my fast ball in shape, and I'll have that back in a week or so," McLain said.

Benton, who pitched for Polk Junior College in Lakeland as a freshman this spring, whistled a beautiful slider across a corner of the plate.

"Whooee," roared McLain.

"When I was 18 I didn't throw that good."

Benton followed with a fast ball that streaked across the center at belly heights.

"That's a major league pitch. I know a few pros who'd like to have that," McLain laughed.

McLain Warms Up

A few minutes later, McLain took over the mound and pitched to Jim Handley, a former Detroit Tigers catcher who now teaches and coaches baseball at Lakeland High School.

"Let's play a little 'piggy move up,'" McLain yelled, and the high school kids who had been watching scurried into the field and waited their turn to try and hit Denny McLain's pitches.

McLain took it easy, but most of the batters struck out, popped out or grounded out in three or four pitches.

But Terry Beasley, an 18-year-old who played for Florida Southern College, slapped a single and a series of foul balls.

"I want you to come back in two weeks, kid," McLain grinned, then whistled across a curve that sent the kid back to right field.

Eager For Yanks

"I've got a tremendous amount of eagerness about that first game," McLain said. "Because of that, I'm going to be trying to win just that much harder."

McLain was suspended for three months for involvement with professional gamblers.

But the Detroit fans don't seem to mind—the game against the Yankees July 1 is already sold out.

"Actually, I don't think it makes much difference who we'll be played against. It could be the Buffalo Bisons. I don't mean that as a rip at the Bisons. I just mean I'd be going all out to beat whoever we were facing," he said.

At 5-feet-11 and 203 pounds, McLain says he is slightly under his playing weight.

"I usually weigh anywhere from 200 to 210 when I'm playing," he said. "Basically, we're trying to build up my endurance now. I think I could step in and go seven or nine innings tonight, but it's also a matter of building up control.

"I'm not too worried about that, either," he said. "I'm hitting the corners already, and everything seems to be coming back without much trouble."

McLain Relaxed

McLain seems relaxed in Lakeland, enjoying the warm Florida sun, working on his golf game and putting in an hour or so on the pitcher's mound each night.

When he stopped to yell at 2-year-old Denny Jr. to get away from a lake, McLain looked like any young suburban father working out to keep trim..

But when he steps on the mound, his chunky frame moves with the powerful grace of a well-oiled athletic machine.

He struck out the last batter, then said, "let's get up a basketball game."

The kids trotted in from the field and the group moved toward the school gym.

"If you really want to play basketball," Handley told McLain, "I can get some guys up here for a game tomorrow night."

"Don't you go bringing in any stars on me," McLain said. "If I can't win, I don't want to play."

Defense Ends Case In Curt Flood Suit

NEW YORK (AP) — Curt Flood's $3.1 million antitrust suit against baseball is expected to end Wednesday after rebuttal testimony by the exceutive director and counsel of the players' association and Bill Veeck, former big league club owner.

The defense finished its case Monday with a complete day of testimony by Dr. John Clark, an economist from the Arthur Little firm of Cambridge, Mass., who did an involved analyses of certain aspects of baseball.

After Jay Topkis, one of Flood's lawyers, finishes cross examination of Dr. Clark Tuesday, both Marvin Miller, executive director of the Major League Baseball Players Association, and Dick Moss, counsel for the group, were due to take the stand.

Veeck is expected to be the final witness Wednesday morning as both sides have told Judge Irving Ben Cooper the Federal Court case will be completed Wednesday.

Both sides will file written summations with the judge and it may be some time before a verdict is announced. No matter what the outcome, it is expected the case will be appealed to a higher court by the loser.

Dr. Clark said player salaries had increased from $19,500 in 1965 to $24,957 in 1969 and $28,088 in 1970 which actually became $28.376 with the addition of newly-won minimum salary increases.

Speaking of the pension fund by which a five-year player gets $300 a month at the age of 50 or $772.50 at 65 and a 20-year-player gets $800 at 50 and $1,945.11 at 65, Dr. Clark said Flood's current status as a 12-year-man would give him a monthly pension of $1,625.11 at the age of 65.

Dr. Clark testified from a percent analysis of baseball's revenue and expenses that the net margin (profit) had declined from 12.5 per cent in 1965 (up to 14.5 in 1966) to 3.7 in 1969. The figures showed player salaries and pension represented 20.5 per cent of costs (an increase of only 2 per cent from 1965) while costs of selling and general administrative expenses rose 4.4 per cent in the same period.

Dr. Clark followed the testimony of most baseball executives when he said elimination of the reserve system, which binds a player to a club for life, and most proposed modifications of the system would result in "the stronger teams getting stronger and the weaker teams getting weaker."

Whatever Became Of The Packers?

GREEN BAY — Remember those "old" Green Bay Packers who swept to three consecutive National Football League championships and two straight Super Bowl victories?

Well, the Packers aren't old anymore, but you'll need a scorecard to figure out who's playing next fall.

Quarterback Bart Starr will still be around to run the offense. And the defensive signal-caller, middle linebacker Ray Nitschke still wears No. 66.

Carroll Dale is ready to make more fantastic catches and Lionel Aldridge is still laying siege to enemy quarterbacks from his defensive end spot.

Willie Wood, Bob Jeter and Doug Hart roam the defensive backfield and Donny Anderson and Jim Grabowski are called on frequently to carry the football.

But many of the great names will be missing: Boyd Dowler, Henry Jordan, Zeke Bratkowski, Forrest Gregg, Bob Skoronski, Willie Davis, Tom Brown, Elijah Pitts, Jerry Kramer, Lee Roy Caffey, Jim Taylor and Paul Hornung.

Now the green and gold-garbed warriors bear names like Tim Mjos, Jim Heacock, Skip Butler, Larry Krause and Bob Lints — names unknown today but which could, in the future, take their place alongside the Johnny Bloods, Jim Ringos, Clarke Hinkles and Don Hutsons.

The Packers are in their third year under the direction of Coach Phil Bengtson. Following the highly-successful Vince Lombardi reign, Green Bay has finished third in the Central Division the last two seasons.

The climb back to the top will be arduous, at best, since the National Conference's Central Division also contains the Minnesota Vikings, last year's NFL Super Bowl representative.

Other stumbling blocks are the Detrait Lions and the Chicago Bears.

Bengston has completely revamped the Packers' interior offensive line and most of the defensive front four.

On offense, center Ken Bowman is flanked by guards Bill Lueck and Gale Gillingham and tackles Francis Peay and Dick Himes. Backing up the guards are Dave Bradley, a second year man from Penn State, and two rookies, Bob Reinhard and Lints.

Ready to speel Peay and Himes is Bill Hayhoe, the 6-foot-8, 258-pound sophomore from Southern Cal.

Defensively, the Packers have Aldridge at one end and big Bob Brown, a five-year veteran, at the other. Aldridge, 6-4 by 245, uses speer, quickness and his experience to complete the job, while Brown, taking over this season for the retired Willie Davis, puts his 260-pounds to work bowling over would-be blockers.

The defensive tackles probably will be manned by the youth brigade — second-year pro Rich Moore, last year's No. 1 draft pick, and this year's top choice, Mike McCoy of Notre Dame. Moore spreads 285 pounds over his 6-6 frame, while McCoy is 6-6 by 285.

Jim Weatherwax, 6-7 by 270 and a five-year veteran, will be in reserve if he has fully recovered from surgery that made him a 1969 part-time performer.

Nitschke teams with Dave Robinson and Fred Carr to give Green Bay a trio of hostile, agile and mobile linebackers.

The deep secondary will be manned mostly by Willie Wood, Bob Jeter and Doug Hart.

The Packers' strength, though lies in the quality and quantity of the running backs. Travis Williams and Dave Hampton are game-breakers. Add to that veterans Donny Anderson and Jim Grabowski, the "million-dollar backfield," and sophomore Perry Williams and Bengtson has a solid stable.

Don Horn and Bill Stevens back up Starr at quarterback.

Retirements have dug deeply into the Packer teams that rolled over all opposition in 1965-66-67. Hanging up their cleats have been Hornung, Bratkowski, Kramer, Gregg, Skoronski, Davis, Dowler and Jordan.

Trades removed Taylor, since retired, Brown, Pitts and Caffey.

Dowler surprised everybody earlier this year when he quit to help coach the Los Angeles Rams. The move puts second-year man John Spilis at one wide receiver spot. Other experienced help will come from Claudis James, who was traded, then brought back, then operated on last season, and Terry Fredenberg of the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee.

Former Akron, Ohio. South High School grid star Henry Matthews was the standout offensive player in Michigan State's 1970 spring wind-up game. He ran for 192 yards and scored twice to get the MVP award among the backs for his team.

Stewart Is Cleared In Sawchuk Case

MINEOLA, N.Y. (AP) — The Nassau County Grand Jury decided Monday the death of hockey goalie Terry Sawchuk after a fracas with New York Ranger teammate Ron Stewart was "completely accidental" and declined to indict Stewart.

Dist. Atty. William A. Cahn, who reported the grand jury's findings, said both Sawchuk and Stewart were drinking in a bar when an argument over the cleaning of their rented house started and they "may have been slightly intoxicated."

Cahn said the case was "closed. . .so far as any further criminal investigation by this office is concerned."

He said that 3½ hours of testimony before the grand jury by nine witnesses, including Stewart, disclosed that it was "mainly a verbal argument and while a lot of pushing and shoving took place at the bar and the home and although some blows may have been attempted, none was struck" by either Stewart or Sawchuk.

Accident Reported

The argument took place April 29 and the 40-year-old Sawchuk, after a fall at the house, was admitted to Long Beach Memorial Hospital, where he underwent surgery for removal of his gall bladder.

Several weeks later, he was transferred to a New York City hospital, where he died May 31 of a pulmonary embolism.

Cahn said that after Sawchuk and Stewart, 37, had words in a Long Beach bar, "The argument continued at the home. . .and apparently Stewart fell backward over an obstacle in the yard and Sawchuk and one Ben Weiner, who had hold of Sawchuk, fell and the injuries which caused the embolism leading to the death of Sawchuk occurred."

Weiner, manager of a restaurant, was identified as a friend of Sawchuk's.

Cahn said that while "the exact cause of Sawchuk's injury remains unkonwn. . .there was no evidence by any of the eyewitnesses that any blows were struck."

Tragic, Senseless

Cahn termed Sawchuk's death "tragic, senseless, bizarre."

Stewart, who testified under a waiver of immunity, was on the stand for about 45 minutes, longest of any of the witnesses. The other witnesses were Dr. Denis Nicholson, who first examined Sawchuk after the fall; Dr. Elliott Gross, a deputy New York City medical examiner who conducted the autopsy; Rosemary Sasso, a friend of Stewart's who was at the house during the second scuffle; Emile Francis, general manager and coach of the Rangers; Weiner; Margaret Wilson, a waitress at the Long Beach bar where the argument started; Joseph Craine, the bartender, and Detective Conrad Kessler of the Nassau County Police Department's homicide squad.

Sawchuk, one of hockey's great goalies who played 20 seasons in the National Hockey League, and Stewart, a veteran right wing, had rented a house for the season in East Atlantic Beach, a suburb on Long Island.

They were due to move out a few days after the accident.

Harper Homers; Brewers Triumph

By The Associated Press

All good things must come to an end and so must all bad ones. A good thing ended for Houston's Jack Billingham Monday night and it helped a bad one end for the New York Mets.

Billingham was duelling Jim McAndrew in a scoreless match through five innings and had extended his personal shutout streak to a healthy 25 innings. Then Art Shamsky did a very unhealthy thing to the streak, cracking a two-run homer that carried the Mets to a 2-0 victory over the Astros.

Shamsky's shot not only ended Billingham's good thing but also halted New York's bad one—a five-game losing streak.

It was New York's fourth straight victory over the Astros—two more than the Mets managed against Houston all of last year. And it came in the Astrodome where the Mets were 0-6 en route to their World Championship in 1969.

McAndrew allowed just five singles and had his only trouble spot in the seventh inning when the Astros bunched three of their hits. But a double play pitch to Jimmy Wynn pulled him out of the jam.

The victory moved McAndrew's record to 2-4. Billingham is 3-1.

In the only other game scheduled Monday, Milwaukee trimmed the Chicago White Sox 5-2 with Tommy Harper's first-pitch homer setting the pace.

Lew Krausse scattered six hits to pick up his fourth victory with the Brewers making it easy by bunching four hits for four runs in the third inning.

Ed Herrmann homered for the White Sox.

The Escanaba Cubs opened defense of their Waubung League Championship, which they shared with Manistique last year, with a 29-4 victory over Schaffer Sunday.

Coach Jim Bruce's Cubs leading 3-0 going into the fourth inning exploded for 10 runs when Wayne Peterson and Al Larsen walked, Steve Vanlerberghe was then hit by the pitcher to load the bases. Bob McGinn was safe on a fielders choice and Peterson crossed the plate for the first run of the inning.

Doug Howard, who carried a heavy bat all day for the Cubs, hit a grand slam homerun to put the Cubs out front 8-0, Dan Mylander followed with another homer, before Mike Cousineau and Joe Joran grounded out. With two out, Bill Baum and Peterson singled and Larsen walked again to load the bases. Vanlerberghe uncorked another grand slam homerun as the Cubs ended the inning leading 13-0.

Howard, who pitched the first four innings gave up only one hit and struck out three before being relieved in the bottom of the fifth by Larsen who went the last five innings, striking out ten and giving up four runs and five hits.

As the game progressed, it became a struggle for homerun power as Schaffer belted three consecutive homers by Russ Pirlot, Dale Klein and Bob Robinette while the Cubs were also continuing their homerun derby, as Howard blasted his second and third homers of the afternoon and Joe Joran, his first, as the defending champs raced to their first loop victory of the young season.

For the day Howard had five of six hits while Vanlerberghe and Joran had three hits apiece.

Next Sunday the Cubs will make their first home appearance of the season when they face Powers at the Al Ness Field at 2:00 p. m.

McLain Ready To Pitch July 1 Against Yanks

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP) — The kid on the mound had pitched the equivalent of 20 innings and his arm was getting sore, but he did as he was told and kept throwing because how can you say no to a pitching coach like Denny McLain?

In Bermuda shorts and teeshirt, McLain and coach didn't look like the Denny McLain who won 31 games for the Detroit Tigers two years ago. But the tanned young man with the sun bleached hair said he was looking forward to returning to baseball and pitching against the New York Yankees at Detroit July 1.

"My curve ball and slider are already in season form," said McLain as he coached 18-year-old Perry Benton on a slider and fast ball.

"All I've got to do now is get my fast ball in shape, and I'll have that back in a week or so," McLain said.

Benton, who pitched for Polk Junior College in Lakeland as a freshman this spring, whistled a beautiful slider across a corner of the plate.

"Whoooee," roared McLain.

"When I was 18 I didn't throw that good."

Benton followed with a fast ball that streaked across the center at belly heights.

"That's a major league pitch. I know a few pros who'd like to have that," McLain laughed.

McLain Warms Up

A few minutes later, McLain took over the mound and pitched to Jim Handley, a former Detroit Tigers catcher who now teaches and coaches baseball at Lakeland High School.

"Let's play a little 'piggy move up,'" McLain yelled, and the high school kids who had been watching scurried into the field and waited their turn to try and hit Denny McLain's pitches.

McLain took it easy, but most of the batters struck out, popped out or grounded out in three or four pitches.

But Terry Beasley, an 18-year-old who played for Florida Southern College, slapped a single and a series of foul balls.

"I want you to come back in two weeks, kid," McLain grinned, then whistled across a curve that sent the kid back to right field.

Eager For Yanks

"I've got a tremendous amount of eagerness about that first game," McLain said. "Because of that, I'm going to be trying to win just that much harder."

McLain was suspended for three months for involvement with professional gamblers.

But the Detroit fans don't seem to mind—the game against the Yankees July 1 is already sold out.

"Actually, I don't think it makes much difference who we'll be played against. It could be the Buffalo Bisons. I don't mean that as a rip at the Bisons. I just mean I'd be going all out to beat whoever we were facing," he said.

At 5-feet-11 and 203 pounds, McLain says he is slightly under his playing weight.

"I usually weigh anywhere from 200 to 210 when I'm playing," he said. "Basically, we're trying to build up my endurance now. I think I could step in and go seven or nine innings tonight, but it's also a matter of building up control.

"I'm not too worried about that, either," he said. "I'm hitting the corners already, and everything seems to be coming back without much trouble."

McLain Relaxed

McLain seems relaxed in Lakeland, enjoying the warm Florida sun, working on his golf game and putting in an hour or so on the pitcher's mound each night.

When he stopped to yell at 2-year-old Denny Jr. to get away from a lake, McLain looked like any young suburban father working out to keep trim..

But when he steps on the mound, his chunky frame moves with the powerful grace of a well-oiled athletic machine.

He struck out the last batter, then said, "let's get up a basketball game."

The kids trotted in from the field and the group moved toward the school gym.

"If you really want to play basketball," Handley told McLain, "I can get some guys up here for a game tomorrow night."

"Don't you go bringing in any stars on me," McLain said. "If I can't win, I don't want to play."

Defense Ends Case In Curt Flood Suit

NEW YORK (AP) — Curt Flood's $3.1 million antitrust suit against baseball is expected to end Wednesday after rebuttal testimony by the exeecutive director and counsel of the players' association and Bill Veeck, former big league club owner.

The defense finished its case Monday with a complete day of testimony by Dr. John Clark, an economist from the Arthur Little firm of Cambridge, Mass., who did an involved analyses of certain aspects of baseball.

After Jay Topkis, one of Flood's lawyers, finishes cross examination of Dr. Clark Tuesday, both Marvin Miller, executive director of the Major League Baseball Players Association, and Dick Moss, counsel for the group, were due to take the stand.

Veeck is expected to be the final witness Wednesday morning as both sides have told Judge Irving Ben Cooper the Federal Court case will be completed Wednesday.

Both sides will file written summations with the judge and it may be some time before a verdict is announced. No matter what the outcome, it is expected the case will be appealed to a higher court by the loser.

Dr. Clark said player salaries had increased from $19,500 in 1965 to $24,957 in 1969 and $28,088 in 1970 which actually became $28,376 with the addition of newly-won minimum salary increases.

Speaking of the pension fund by which a five-year player gets $300 a month at the age of 50 or $772.50 at 65 and a 20-year-player gets $800 at 50 and $1,945.11 at 65, Dr. Clark said Flood's current status as a 12-year-man would give him a monthly pension of $1,625.11 at the age of 65.

Dr. Clark testified from a percent analysis of baseball's revenue and expenses that the net margin (profit) had declined from 12.5 per cent in 1965 (up to 14.5 in 1966) to 3.7 in 1969. The figures showed player salaries and pension represented 20.5 per cent of costs (an increase of only 2 per cent from 1965) while costs of selling and general administrative expenses rose 4.4 per cent in the same period.

Dr. Clark followed the testimony of most baseball executives when he said elimination of the reserve system, which binds a player to a club for life, and most proposed modifications of the system would result in "the stronger teams getting stronger and the weaker teams getting weaker."

Whatever Became Of The Packers?

GREEN BAY — Remember those "old" Green Bay Packers who swept to three consecutive National Football League championships and two straight Super Bowl victories?

Well, the Packers aren't old anymore, but you'll need a scorecard to figure out who's playing next fall.

Quarterback Bart Starr will still be around to run the offense. And the defensive signal-caller, middle linebacker Ray Nitschke still wears No. 66.

Carroll Dale is ready to make more fantastic catches and Lionel Aldridge is still laying siege to enemy quarterbacks from his defensive end spot.

Willie Wood, Bob Jeter and Doug Hart roam the defensive backfield and Donny Anderson and Jim Grabowski are called on frequently to carry the football.

But many of the great names will be missing: Boyd Dowler, Henry Jordan, Zeke Bratkowski, Forrest Gregg, Bob Skoronski, Willie Davis, Tom Brown, Elijah Pitts, Jerry Kramer, Lee Roy Caffey, Jim Taylor and Paul Hornung.

Now the green and gold-garbed warriors bear names like Tim Mjos, Jim Heacock, Skip Butler, Larry Krause and Bob Lints — names unknown today but which could, in the future, take their place alongside the Johnny Bloods, Jim Ringos, Clarke Hinkles and Don Hutsons.

The Packers are in their third year under the direction of Coach Phil Bengtson. Following the highly-successful Vince Lombardi reign, Green Bay has finished third in the Central Division the last two seasons.

The climb back to the top will be arduous, at best, since the National Conference's Central Division also contains the Minnesota Vikings, last year's NFL Super Bowl representative.

Other stumbling blocks are the Detrait Lions and the Chicago Bears.

Bengston has completely revamped the Packers' interior offensive line and most of the defensive front four.

On offense, center Ken Bowman is flanked by guards Bill Lueck and Gale Gillingnam and tackles Francis Peay and Dick Himes. Backing up the guards are Dave Bradley, a second year man from Penn State, and two rookies, Bob Reinhard and Lints.

Ready to speel Peay and Himes is Bill Hayhoe, the 6-foot-8, 258-pound sophomore from Southern Cal.

Defensively, the Packers have Aldridge at one end and big Bob Brown, a five-year veteran, at the other. Aldridge, 6-4 by 245, uses speer, quickness and his experience to complete the job, while Brown, taking over this season for the retired Willie Davis, puts his 260-pounds to work bowling over would-be blockers.

The defensive tackles probably will be manned by the youth brigade — second-year pro Rich Moore, last year's No. 1 draft pick, and this year's top choice, Mike McCoy of Notre Dame. Moore spreads 285 pounds over his 6-6 frame, while McCoy is 6-6 by 285.

Jim Weatherwax, 6-7 by 270 and a five-year veteran, will be in reserve if he has fully recovered from surgery that made him a 1969 part-time performer.

Nitschke teams with Dave Robinson and Fred Carr to give Green Bay a trio of hostile, agile and mobile linebackers.

The deep secondary will be manned mostly by Willie Wood, Bob Jeter and Doug Hart.

The Packers' strength, though lies in the quality and quantity of the running backs. Travis Williams and Dave Hampton are game-breakers. Add to that veterans Donny Anderson and Jim Grabowski, the "million-dollar backfield," and sophomore Perry Williams and Bengtson has a solid stable.

Don Horn and Bill Stevens back up Starr at quarterback.

Retirements have dug deeply into the Packer teams that rolled over all opposition in 1965-66-67. Hanging up their cleats have been Hornung, Bratkowski, Kramer, Gregg, Skoronski, Davis, Dowler and Jordan.

Trades removed Taylor, since retired, Brown, Pitts and Caffey.

Dowler surprised everybody earlier this year when he quit to help coach the Los Angeles Rams. The move puts second-year man John Spilis at one wide receiver spot. Other experienced help will come from Claudis James, who was traded, then brought back, then operated on last season, and Terry Fredenberg of the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee.

Harper Homers; Brewers Triumph

By The Associated Press

All good things must come to an end and so must all bad ones. A good thing ended for Houston's Jack Billingham Monday night and it helped a bad one end for the New York Mets.

Billingham was duelling Jim McAndrew in a scoreless match through five innings and had extended his personal shutout streak to a healthy 25 innings. Then Art Shamsky did a very unhealthy thing to the streak, cracking a two-run homer that carried the Mets to a 2-0 victory over the Astros.

Shamsky's shot not only ended Billingham's good thing but also halted New York's bad one —a five-game losing streak.

It was New York's fourth straight victory over the Astros —two more than the Mets managed against Houston all of last year. And it came in the Astrodome where the Mets were 0-6 en route to their World Championship in 1969.

McAndrew allowed just five singles and had his only trouble spot in the seventh inning when the Astros bunched three of their hits. But a double play pitch to Jimmy Wynn pulled him out of the jam.

The victory moved McAndrew's record to 2-4. Billingham is 3-1.

In the only other game scheduled Monday, Milwaukee trimmed the Chicago White Sox 5-2 with Tommy Harper's first-pitch homer setting the pace.

Lew Krausse scattered six hits to pick up his fourth victory with the Brewers making it easy by bunching four hits for four runs in the third inning.

Ed Herrmann homered for the White Sox.

Fastest American Liner In Storage

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — The proud liner United States, which holds the record for the fastest transAtlantic crossing by a ship, is being placed in dead storage —a victim of the jet age and the fiscal balance sheet.

The liner lost more than $4 million last year despite a $12 million federal subsidy.

The United States Lines said Monday it will pay the Norfolk Port and Industrial Authority $9,000 per month to keep the 18-year-old superliner at the Norfolk terminal.

She was rejected for storage by her builder the Newport News Shipbuilding & Dry Dock Co., whose officials said they had no room for her 940-foot length.

The British liner Queen Elizabeth left Cherbourg on a Thursday morning in August 1952 about 30 minutes before the United States left LeHavre. The next day the U.S. ship overtook the British liner near Cornwall, England. When the vessels were about one mile apart they dipped their ensigns in salute.

With that, the U.S. ship went on to beat the Queen to New York by about 12 hours. The United States' official record, set on another crossing, is three days, 10 hours and 40 minutes.

Manistique Facing Crisis With Water

By BARBARA JOHNSON

Manistique residents are drinking "potentially unsafe water" and the city must take immediate steps to correct the problem and begin planning construction of a filtration plant estimated to cost about $500,000.

This was the warning from the Michigan Dept. of Public Health to City Council Monday night.

The Health Dept. expects the city "to take positive action" on the water problem, said Engineer John Erickson of Escanaba, and should reorganize the water treatment plant operation by hiring additional men to check the chlorine content of the water.

Next, the city must update engineering plans of a proposed filtration plant and seek financing.

Court Action Possible

Unless the city agrees to "voluntarily follow the state agency's recommendations within a reasonable time" court action will force compliance, Erickson said.

A sampling of city water last September revealed a very low chlorine content, he said.

"This could happen again," he said. "Your water is potentially unsafe and our aim is to prevent this possibility."

Chlorine injections are manually adjusted relative to incoming water quality and the present operation relies too much on machinery treatment without human supervision. The equipment is not monitoring the water quality, Erickson pointed out.

Chlorine is added to the water after it is pumped from the Indian River and before it reaches the reservoir with samples taken beyond this point and just before it flows into the mains. By the time the chlorine checking is done, it's too late to corect an improper content.

Quality Changes

Erickson and Cletus Courchaine, Escanaba, chief engineer of the Northern Division of the State Health Dept., and water plant operators Ormel Repp and E. J. Doyle agreed that shallow Indian Lake, which feeds the Manistique River, is subject to turbulence (storms, shifting winds, etc.) which create an intake of dirt. The quality of water can change from clean to dirty rapidly and chlorine feed should be adjusted to cover such a contingency.

If such a situation develops over a weekend when no water plant operators are on duty, the water is potentially unsafe.

The plant is manned eight hours daily, five days a week with five weekly samples of bacteriological content taken. These samples reflect the water properties related to the spread of disease.

The Health Dept. has done a thorough survey of both treatment and system and found the water quality, turbidity (sediment content) and bacteriological count far above recommended levels with a suggestion that the quality is getting worse.

"A filtration plant will cope nicely with all three of these problems," Erickson said.

System Leaks

The conveyence system has leaks, is unable to carry water where needed because of inadequate pipes and contains many dead ends (mains that end without looping any other pipes for continuous flow and thus provide nests for sediment accumulation).

Flushing helps correct this deficiency, but city workers say they have noted a lengthy gush of black matter (sediment) when flushing operations are begun and an accumulation of dirt has been found caked inside pipes.

Erickson effectively contrasted the difference between Manistique's product and a filtered system when he showed slides of water samples taken from a city hall drinking fountain in 1964.

At that time the water was undrinkable because of color and taste. Although no disease elements or toxic materials were found in the samples, organic materials were much in evidence as the slides were speckled with amoeba and other bugs.

A filtering system would produce a clear, almost totally spotless specimen, he noted.

To Explore Bonds

Council agreed with Councilman A. J. Cayia's comment that the city has the responsibility of providing the community with good, safe water, but hedged on signing a "voluntary agreement" with the Health Dept. Instead, Council will further explore the possibility of requesting a voter approved bond issue to finance a filtration plant.

Councilman Leo DeMars commented that the current development creates an additional obligation on a city faced with complying with state directives to construct a phosphorus removal plant, deal with the Weston Ave. pollution problem and upgrade city dumping facilities.

The plant is manned eight hours daily, five days a week with five weekly samples of bacteriological content taken. These samples reflect the water properties related to the spread of disease.

The Health Dept. has done a thorough survey of both treatment and system and found the water quality, turbidity (sediment content) and bacteriological count far above recommended levels with a suggestion that the quality is getting worse.

"A filtration plant will cope nicely with all three of these problems," Erickson said.

System Leaks

The conveyence system has leaks, is unable to carry water where needed because of inadequate pipes and contains many dead ends (mains that end without looping any other pipes for continuous flow and thus provide nests for sediment accumulation).

Flushing helps correct this deficiency, but city workers say they have noted a lengthy gush of black matter (sediment) when flushing operations are begun and an accumulation of dirt has been found caked inside pipes.

Erickson effectively contrasted the difference between Manistique's product and a filtered system when he showed slides of water samples taken from a city hall drinking fountain in 1964.

At that time the water was undrinkable because of color and taste. Although no disease elements or toxic materials were found in the samples, organic materials were much in evidence as the slides were speckled with amoeba and other bugs.

A filtering system would produce a clear, almost totally spotless specimen, he noted.

To Explore Bonds

Council agreed with Councilman A. J. Cayia's comment that the city has the responsibility of providing the community with good, safe water, but hedged on signing a "voluntary agreement" with the Health Dept. Instead, Council will further explore the possibility of requesting a voter approved bond issue to finance a filtration plant.

Councilman Leo DeMars commented that the current development creates an additional obligation on a city faced with complying with state directives to construct a phosphorus removal plant, deal with the Weston Ave. pollution problem and upgrade city dumping facilities.

Nelson, Mrs. Waters Retain Board Seats

Denton Nelson and Mrs. Margaret Waters won re-election to the Manistique Area Board of Education in Monday's annual school election.

They led a field of five candidates by polling 855 and 762 votes, respectively, to reclaim their four-year seats.

Ronald Morton was third with 582 votes, followed by Boyd Briggs with 572 and David Kelly with 305.

About 1,500 of the 3,922 registered school district electors voted in the election.

Nelson and Mrs. Waters were first elected in 1962. He is currently president on the board and she is secretary.

The results will be certified by the Board of Canvassers tonight. The unofficial returns.

Compensation For Fishermen Under Study

LANSING (AP) — Gov. William Milliken has named a special task force to make recommendations about compensation for those affected by the ban on commercial and sport fishing caused by mercury contamination in Detroit area waters.

Chairman of the task force will be Carl Johnson of Grand Rapids, a member and former chairman of the Natural Resources Commission.

Also named by the governor were Robert Fraser, assistant city attorney for St. Clair Shores and counsel for the Michigan Marine and Snowmobile Dealers Association, and Fred Peterson of Monroe, a commercial fisherman.

Sen. Garland Lane, D- Flint, and Rep. David Serotkin, R - Mount Clemens, were named by the Legislature to serve on the task force.

"I expect the group to take an in-depth look at the hardships which the mercury contamination problem and the fishing limitations have caused in the affected areas," said the governor.

"The task force also will investigate all possible sources of compensation, especially, in existing state and federal government programs as well as explore compensation questions relating to those firms which were discharging mercury into the affected waters," Milliken said.

"I have asked the task force to develop a series of specific recommendations to be delivered to me by Sept. 30, 1970."

Under study will be effects of mercury contamination in Lake Huron, the St. Clair River, Lake St. Clair, the Detroit River and Lake Erie.

Milliken banned all fishing on most of those waters for a time, then loosened the ban to allow some sports fishing on a "catch-and-release" basis.

Jury Selection Slowing Trial

ANN ARBOR (AP) — The attempt to select a jury to hear the trial of John Norman Collins, accused of first-degree murder in the slaying of an Eastern Michigan University coed, continued for the seventh day today.

During Monday's session in Washington County Circuit Court, 13 prospective were dismissed, leaving 13 tentatively seated on the panel. Twelve jurors and two alternates will be chosen to hear the trial.

Of the original panel of 70 prospective jurors, only 12 remain to be interviewed.

Collins is charged with the murder of 18-year-old Karen Sue Beineman, who was the last of seven young women to be slain in the Ann Arbor area during a two year period which ended with her death last summer.

Meanwhile Monday, defense attorneys received permission to re-examine the basement of state trooper's house, where investigators believe Miss Beineman was slain before her body was taken to a wooded area outside Ann Arbor.

Attorneys obtained permission from Cpl. David Leik to have Dr. Samuel Golub of Dedham, Mass., to inspect the basement. Dr. Golub is expected to give expert testimony concerning hair found on the clothing of Miss Beineman.

Leik is Collins uncle and said he had given Collins the key to his home while the Leik family was on vacation last summer. The slaying occurred during the vacation.

Lawmaker Plans Sentence Appeal

MASON (AP) — State Rep. George Montgomery, D-Detroit, plans to appeal a drunken driving sentence of $100 or 30 days in jail, handed down Monday by Ingham County District Judge James H. Edgar.

Edgar imposed the sentence, which also included a $3 judgment fee, after Montgomery was convicted of the charge filed by State Police in late May 1969.

The appeal, to Ingham County Circuit Court, was expected to be heard in about one month, officials said.

Honor Guard Unit

LANSING (AP) — A Port Huron unit, Company C of the First Battalion 125th Infantry, has been named Michigan's outstanding Army National Guard unit for 1969, announced Maj. Gen. C.C. Schnipke, Adjutant General.

Compensation For Fishermen Under Study

LANSING (AP) — Gov. William Milliken has named a special task force to make recommendations about compensation for those affected by the ban on commercial and sport fishing caused by mercury contamination in Detroit area waters.

Chairman of the task force will be Carl Johnson of Grand Rapids, a member and former chairman of the Natural Resources Commission.

Also named by the governor were Robert Fraser, assistant city attorney for St. Clair Shores and counsel for the Michigan Marine and Snowmobile Dealers Association, and Fred Peterson of Monroe, a commercial fisherman.

Sen. Garland Lane, D- Flint, and Rep. David Serotkin, R - Mount Clemens, were named by the Legislature to serve on the task force.

"I expect the group to take an in-depth look at the hardships which the mercury contamination problem and the fishing limitations have caused in the affected areas," said the governor.

"The task force also will investigate all possible sources of compensation, especially, in existing state and federal government programs as well as explore compensation questions relating to those firms which were discharging mercury into the affected waters," Milliken said.

"I have asked the task force to develop a series of specific recommendations to be delivered to me by Sept. 30, 1970."

Under study will be effects of mercury contamination in Lake Huron, the St. Clair River, Lake St. Clair, the Detroit River and Lake Erie.

Milliken banned all fishing on most of those waters for a time, then loosened the ban to allow some sports fishing on a "catch-and-release" basis.

Jury Selection Slowing Trial

ANN ARBOR (AP) — The attempt to select a jury to hear the trial of John Norman Collins, accused of first-degree murder in the slaying of an Eastern Michigan University coed, continued for the seventh day today.

During Monday's session in Washington County Circuit Court, 13 prospective were dismissed, leaving 13 tentatively seated on the panel. Twelve jurors and two alternates will be chosen to hear the trial.

Of the original panel of 70 prospective jurors, only 12 remain to be interviewed.

Collins is charged with the murder of 18-year-old Karen Sue Beineman, who was the last of seven young women to be slain in the Ann Arbor area during a two year period which ended with her death last summer.

Meanwhile Monday, defense attorneys received permission to re-examine the basement of state trooper's house, where investigators believe Miss Beineman was slain before her body was taken to a wooded area outside Ann Arbor.

Attorneys obtained permission from Cpl. David Leik to have Dr. Samuel Golub of Dedham, Mass., to inspect the basement. Dr. Golub is expected to give expert testimony concerning hair found on the clothing of Miss Beineman.

Leik is Collins uncle and said he had given Collins the key to his home while the Leik family was on vacation last summer. The slaying occurred during the vacation.

Lawmaker Plans Sentence Appeal

MASON (AP) — State Rep. George Montgomery, D-Detroit, plans to appeal a drunken driving sentence of $100 or 30 days in jail, handed down Monday by Ingham County District Judge James H. Edgar.

Edgar imposed the sentence, which also included a $3 judgment fee, after Montgomery was convicted of the charge filed by State Police in late May 1969.

The appeal, to Ingham County Circuit Court, was expected to be heard in about one month, officials said.

Honor Guard Unit

LANSING (AP) — A Port Huron unit, Company C of the First Battalion 125th Infantry, has been named Michigan's outstanding Army National Guard unit for 1969, announced Maj. Gen. C.C. Schnipke, Adjutant General.

GOP To Hear Elly At Supper June 22

Mrs. Elly Peterson;, assistant chairman of the National Republican Committee and "one of the finest state chairmen and national committeewomen we've ever had" according to Republican National Committee Chairman Rogers C. B. Morton will be the main speaker and guest of honor at a fund-raising buffet supper June 22 at the Terrace sponsored by the Delta County Republican Committee.

Mrs. Elly Peterson was designated assistant chairman of the Republican National Committee by Chairman Morton on April 14, 1969, succeeding Mrs. Mary Brooks recently named by President Nixon as Director of the U.S. Mint. She will be accompanied to Escanaba by her sister, Mrs. Mary Richmond and Ray Chambers of Congressman Philip Ruppe's staff.

Elly M. Peterson

As assistant chairman of the GOP national committee Elly serves as liaison between the White House and government agencies on patronage, a brand new assignment for that position.

GOP Activist

Considered the best woman pro in politics Chairman Morton rates her "the most efficient, knowledgeable and the most likeable."

Elly's work in organizing GOP women is credited with being a vital factor in George Romney's gubernatorial campaign victory in 1962 which ended 14 years of State Democratic rule.

The first woman to be elected a state chairman in her party (1965), Elly was also the first woman in the National GOP chain of command to be designated as the person through whom all patronage requests are to be routed.

She hedgehops the country helping to beef up State GOP organizations and is an activist from the word "go" and seems to thrive on it. The first Michigan woman to seek a Senate seat, she is married to Army Col. Merrit Peterson who is attached to the Michigan Military establishment.

Elly's first major plunge into state-wide campaigning in Michigan was in 1852 as a volunteer for former President Eisenhower and the Republican candidate for governor of Michigan.

Tickets Available

From the White House to the ghetto Mrs. Peterson is making political history. She has set up "action centers" in the inner-city areas of Detroit, Hartford and Dallas where Republicans help residents with their day-to-day problems.

Elly is in charge of corralling more patronage for the GOP faithful with the accent on Negroes and women. She meets at least once a week at the White House with President Nixon's chief political advisor Harry Dent for a little polite arm-twisting.

Since taking the past as assistant chairman of the National Republican Committee, Elly has traveled extensively throughout the United States and Russia, keeping in touch with her Washington staff by long distance.

Everywhere she sells her ghetto action centers, an idea hatched two years ago to make friends and perhaps votes for the GOP in what have long been Democratic strongholds. This ghetto action center idea according to Elly, "is more than pure politics. It's the idea that built America . . . it is people helping people and learning to understand the problems of other people."

On the speakers podium, Elly is forceful, convincing and humorous. Tickets for the Delta County fund-raising event are availble at Gust Asp's, Ernie's Party Store, and in Gladstone at the First National Bank and Hupy's Insurance Agency and from members of the Delta County Republican Committee.

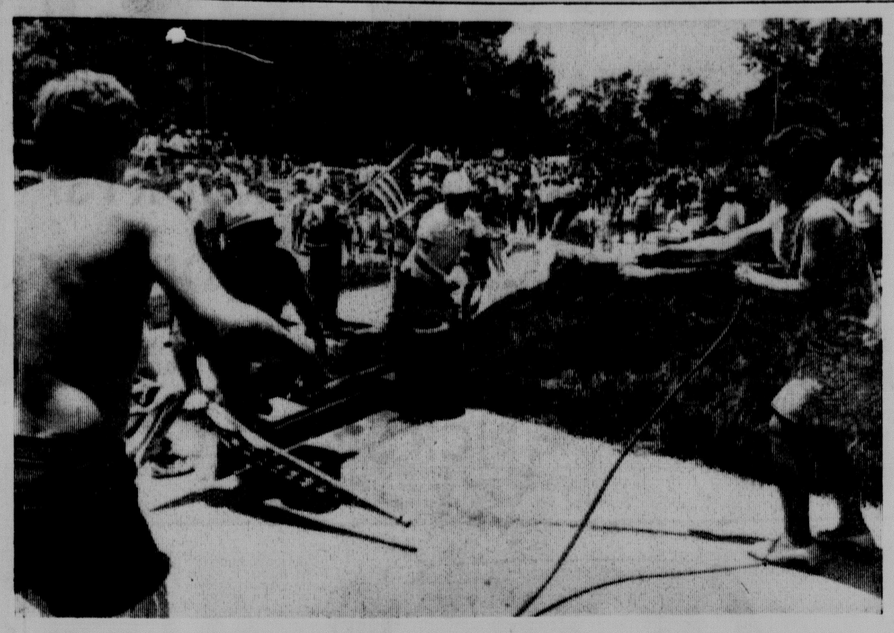
Military Government Now In Command In Argentina



MRS. WILLIAM HODEL turns a garden hose on the flag-bearing hard hat marchers during one confrontation between the group and on-lookers in a St. Louis "March for Peace" Sunday. The hard hats, made up the brunt of marchers, who police estimated about 20,000. Hodel came to the rescue of her son and son-in-law and was later knocked down by the marchers. (AP Wirephoto)

President Ousted In Bloodless Coup

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — A junta of military commanders took over the governing of Argentina today but the United States held off its recognition of them.

A U.S. Embassy spokesman said: "The U.S. government cannot decide whether diplomatic relations exist or not until a decision is made on the legal status of the new government. We are studying the situation to see what the legal relationship is."

President Ousted

The military leaders ousted President Juan Carlos Ongania, the general who was installed in a military coup four years ago. Not a shot was fired in the scramble for power Monday and life went on mostly as usual for the three million residents of Buenos Aires.

The new junta contends it is a continuation of Ongania's regime—with Ongania ousted to correct "distortions" in his policies.

The United States had endorsed Ongania's military rule, despite its authoritarian nature. U. S. officials frequently praised the Ongania government's economic policies, which emphasized austerity measures to limit inflation, stabilize the currency and attract foreign capital.

Officers Sworn In

The three military commanders—Lt. Gen. Alejandro Lanusse of the army, Adm. Pedro Gnavi of the navy and Brig. Gen. Juan Carlos Rey of the air force—were sworn in as provisional leaders of the nation of 23 million people. The junta said it would name a president within 10 days.

Among those being mentioned for the presidency are Eduardo Ortiz Basualdo, the conservative president of the Supreme Court who is reported to have powerful navy backing; Justice Minister Conrado Etchebarne, who has wide support in the army, and two retired army generals, Jean Enrique Guglielmelli and Osiris Villegas, both of whom are supported by factions that believe in rapid development of heavy industry.

Disagreement Noted

The junta said their basic disagreement with Ongania was "the lack of a political solution for the reovlution," the term used for the 1966 coup. Speeches in the last year by Lanusse indicate that he may seek a return to some democratic procedures before very long.

Growing dissatisfaction with Ongania came to a head Monday morning when Lanusse announced that the president had refused to accept a "political plan" from the armed forces calling on him to share power with the military and consult with civilian leaders. It appeared to suggest that a date be fixed for presidential elections.

Ongania then fired Lanusse, said he would take personal command of the 135,000 - man army and barricaded himself in Government House behind the loyal, heavily armed 1,200-man presidential guard.

Tanks Roll In

As military units took up positions in the capital and elsewhere in the country and tanks rolled into Buenos Aires, the junta announced over the government radio station that the commanders had "resolved to resume immediately the political conduct of the country" and "invited" Ongania to resign.

Moments later, a communique said the 55-year-old president was "deposed from his duties as president of the nation."

Ongania held out for 12 hours, then drove to the army headquarters and presented his resignation. He was the seventh Argentinian president to be overthrown by a military coup in 40 years.

Unrest Reported

Ongania's ouster came after months of severe and unpopular economic austerity, student disturbances, antigovernment violence, disenchantment of the nation's political leaders and—most recently—the kidnaping by unknown persons of former President Pedro Aramburu, another general who was considered a likely successor to Ongania.

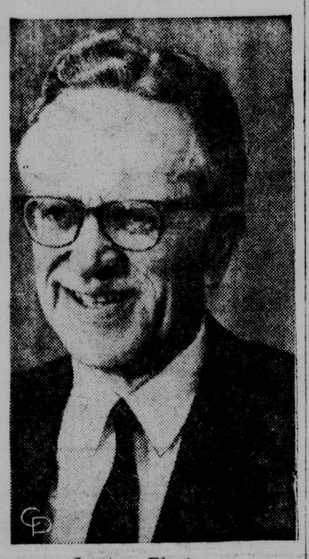
Blackmun Sworn In As Court Justice

WASHINGTON (AP) — Harry A. Blackmun of Rochester, Minn., was sworn in today as the 98th justice in Supreme Court history.

Blackmun, 61, took a seat vacant for 13 months and held in the past by Holmes, Cardozo, Frankfurter, and other judicial luminaries.

His hand on a Bible held by Chief Justice Warren E. Burger, the new justice swore to "do equal right to the poor and the rich" and to support and defend the Constitution against all enemies, foreign and domestic.

Burger, who is a longtime, ctose friend of Blackmun, welcomed the justice on behalf of all members of the court and said "We look forward to many years together in our common calling."



Justice Blackmun

The ceremony lasted seven minutes and concluded with Burger's announcement of the justices to their judicial circuits. Blackmun will supervise the 8th U.S. Circuit Court of St. Louis, on which he sat from 1959 until his appointment to the Supreme Court.

The justice's wife Dorothy; his three daughters, Mrs. D. Richard Funk of Vestal, N.Y., Mrs. Roger M. Karl of Greencastle, Ind., and Miss Nancy C. Blackmun of Cambridge, Mass.; his mother, Mrs. C. M. Blackmun of Minneapolis, and his sister, Mrs. P. R. Gilchrist of White Bear, Minn., attended.

In the audience were former Chief Justice Earl Warren and former Justices Tom C. Clark and Stanley F. Reed.

In one departure from tradition, six up-front seats that have always been occupied by the press since the court building opened in 1935 were cleared of newsmen and left unoccupied. The removal of newsmen to an alcove had been ordered in advance by Burger. The court press office said the press might be kept off the courtroom floor from the beginning of the next term.

To train the spotlight completely on Blackmun, the chief justice set the ceremony for a day in which the court conducted no other business.

King Hussein Assassination Plot Foiled

AMMAN, Jordan — (AP) — King Hussein escaped an assassination attempt today in the midst of fighting between the Jordanian army and Palestinian guerrillas, the Amman radio reported.

The army troops were trying to curtail guerrilla incursions into Israel.

The broadcast said Hussein's motorcade was fired upon this morning as heavy fighting raged in the streets of the capital.

Leaders of both sides worked out a cease-fire arrangement late in the morning but this was ignored and the bitter fighting raged into the afternoon.

The combatants battled with rockets, bazookas, machine guns and automatic weapons, filling the city with the crash of explosions and the bark of gunfire.

Hussein's motorcade was driving through the crossroads town of Sweileh 12 miles northeast of the capital, the radio said.

Guerrilla sources in Beirut, Lebanon, said the king's driver was wounded in the incident but gave no other details.

Jordanian authorities and the guerrilla central committee--the supreme Palestinian body—had met in Amman and agreed to an immediate cease-fire, the radio said in an earlier report. They also agreed to set up a joint operations room to "supervise and control the situation."

Secrecy Plan For Computer Data Proposed

WASHINGTON (AP) — A computer manufacturing executive today urged new laws to make personal information a property right and thus provide criminal penalties for any "pollution of privacy" by misuse of computer-kept records.

Robert P. Henderson, vice president and general manager of Honeywell's electronic data processing division, said the computer's efficiency—despite many benefits—"could threaten some of our prized individual freedoms."

His remarks were prepared for a national symposium of the National Archives and Record Service of the government's General Services Administration.

"The computer itself does not create any invasion of privacy. The only new element in the centuries-old threat to privacy posed by surveillance and record-keeping is the computer's fantastic efficiency."

He said that extra devices can be built into computers to help prevent stored personal information about people getting into improper hands.

But he said "really determined men, unfortunately, can find ways to get around the best security systems."

"Frankly, I feel that we will need some new legislation in this area," he added. "Our old legal framework may not be adequate to defend our privacy against these new techniques of data collection and record-keeping.

He recommended that citizens be given the ability to challenge in court the release of private data about them without their consent.

U.S. Sticking With Denial Of Lost Ship

PANMUNJOM, Korea (AP) — The United States and North Korea refused to back down today from their conflicting accounts of last Friday's gunboat encounter in the Yellow Sea.

U.S. Army Maj. Gen. James H. Skeldon repeated South Korea's claim that North Korean forces attacked a lightly armed South Korean vessel south of the demilitarized zone, towed it into North Korean waters, and is now "illegally detaining" it and its 20 crewmen.

North Korean Maj. Gen. Lee Choon-sun insisted that the vessel was a heavily armed spy ship dispatched by the United States and that the North Koreans sank it north of the DMZ.

The exchange took place at the 302nd session of the Korean Armistice Commission, with Lee representing North Korea and Skeldon representing the U.N. Command.

Skeldon demanded a report on the condition of the vessel's crew members and the prompt return of the men and the boat. Lee demanded that the United States apologize for "dispatching the spy ship" into North Korean waters and punish the individuals responsible.

The United States has denied any responsibility, and the U.S. Navy has denied that any American ships were operating in the area.

No Surprise:

Milliken Seeks Top Lansing Post

LANSING (AP)— Flanked by his wife and two children, Gov. William Milliken today announced his candidacy for a first full term as chief executive of Michigan.

The announcement, made at a Capitol news conference, had long been expected.

In emphatic tones, Milliken said:

"I refuse in the course of this campaign to be packaged and sold to the people of this state. I'm not going to be."

Milliken promised he would not wage a "slick advertising and public relations campaign. I am what I am," he said, "good, bad or otherwise."

He repeated an announcement made in mid-April that he wanted U.S. Atty. James Brickley of Detroit as a running mate on the Republican ticket.

Issues Campaign Topic

Milliken, who took over the governor's chair in January 1969, when George Romney went to Washington as U.S. Secretary of Housing and Urban Development, promised to campaign "not on personalities, but on issues — not on narrow partisanship, but on sound public policy."

"Last year, in this Capitol, I took the oath of office as governor, pledging responsible leadership to improve the quality of life in Michigan," said the Traverse City department store owner.

"I developed a wide range of programs for education, pollution, crime control, drug abuse, the cities, housing, employment and other vital areas," he said.

Wants To Continue Job

"Some of these programs have already been implemented —some are in final stages of legislative consideration.

"I have begun the job," Milliken said. "I want to continue that job."

The governor, at 48 still boyishly handsome, said his announcement did not mean his formal campaign has begun. A Michigan for Milliken Committee, however, set up operations some weeks ago, aiming to show support for the governor. That group is headed by S. John Byington, former campaign manager for Romney.

"There is legislative work that must first be completed in this Capitol, work that must be done cooperatively between the Legislature and the governor, between Democrats and Republicans.

Understanding Needed

"In the conduct of political campaigns, as in the conduct of public office, leaders must be accountable and responsive," the governor said.

"They must speak to the best in men, not to their fears and anger; they must encourage understanding, not antagonism, in relations between the races, between the generations and between the parties: and they must ask of each citizen honesty and courage in facing our most crucial problems."

Milliken, a Yale graduate, was elected lieutenant governor in 1964 after having served four years in the Michigan Senate. He was re-elected lieutenant governor again in 1966.

Howell Magazine Publisher James Turner already has announced that he will seek the Republican nomination for governor.

Four Demos In Race

Four Democrats seek to oppose the Republican nominee. They include State Sen. Sander Levin of Berkley, Rep. George F. Montgomery of Detroit, former Democratic State Chairman Zolton Ferency and Macomb County Prosecutor George Parris.

House Planning War Zone Trip

WASHINGTON (AP) — Declaring it needs a new look at Indochina, the House has decided to send its own task force to Vietnam to review the progress of the war.

After three hours of wrangling and four roll calls, the House Monday approved 223 to 101 a resolution creating a special 12-member committee to investigate all aspects of U.S. military involvement in Southeast Asia within 45 days.

The resolution was sponsored by Rep. G. V. "Sonny" Montgomery, D-Miss., who is expected to lead the committee. He said it would provide the House with information independent of that gathered by presidential commissions or other study groups.

It is planned for the House committee to leave after a special group of senators, representatives and other governmental leaders returns from a Vietnam trip requested by President Nixon.

Monday night a farmer, a housewife, a minister and a retired professor left at Nixon's instigation as part of an eight-member delegation going to Vietnam for a repeat of a trip they made more than two years ago.

"It is my firm opinion," said President Nixon in a letter last March to Rep. Fred Schwengel, R-Iowa, an organizer of the trips, "that it would be useful for you . . . to make another visit to the same places you saw before."

The House debate Monday split along hawk-dove lines, with antiwar members contending the committee would be "carrier pigeons" of the military view of the war.

Rep. Wayne L. Hays, D-Ohio, suggested all 430 House members be armed with rifles and go to Southeast Asia to relieve two Army battalions.

The committee will be composed of six members of each party. Two members each will come from the House Armed Services and Foreign Affairs committees, with the remainder from the House at large.

Forget 'Golden Eagle,' Nature Lovers Told

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nature lovers eager to "Follow the Golden Eagle to America's Great Outdoors" are being told by embarrassed Interior Department spokesmen they'll have to get along with the old fashioned green eagle—the one on the dollar bill.

The Golden Eagle, a bargain priced admission ticket to more than 3,000 federal recreation areas, is grounded waiting for the fog to lift in the House of Representatives.

With the vacation season already well under way outdoorsmen have no choice for the time being but to pay as they go, shelling out individual fees for each day they spend in federal parks, forest and preserves.

For the past five years, vacationers have been able to purchase for $7 a Golden Eagle passport admitting a carload of people for unlimited visits to national recreation areas throughout a full year.

Single admissions, on the other hand, usually cost about $1 a day per carload.

The Golden Eagle covered areas under the Interior Department, Forest Service and U.S. Corps of Engineers. The legislation supporting it, however, expired March 31.

The Senate has approved an unlimited extension. The House version, which stalled after clearing committee, extends the Golden Eagle only until next Dec. 31.

A spokesman said the House Interior committee was not completely sold on the Golden Eagle and felt a temporary extension would allow time for "a real long look at it."

A House vote on the extension was postponed two weeks ago and has yet to be rescheduled.

Pending legislation may eventually increase the cost of the Golden Eagle from $7 to $10, but even that would be a bargain for frequent visitors.

Interior Department spokesmen say they have no way of knowing exactly how many people visited national recreation areas using the Golden Eagle, or how often or how long they stayed. But nearly 681,000 of the passes were sold in fiscal 1969.

A survey made in 1967 estimated the average vacation group included three or four people and spent five or six days in the national recreation areas.

Golden Eagle holders, in contrast, spent an average of 13 days in federal areas, the survey estimated.

An Interior Department spokesman said inquiries about the Golden Eagle were flowing in recently at the rate of about 500 a week.

Mental Patient Sought In Deaths Of Three Persons

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — Police are seeking a ritualistic slayer who calls himself "The Candlelight Killer" and is blamed for three murders—including one which landed him in a mental hospital for three years.

Named by police was Robert Liberty, 23, who was declared insane in 1966 in the strangulation of his 31-year-old girl friend. Burning candles were found by her body.

Liberty was released from a state mental hospital in Atascadero in Sept. 15, 1969, after six court-appointed psychiatrists testified he had regained his sanity.

He was charged with murder and flight to avoid prosecution after his roommate, Thomas Astronia, 25, was found shot to death March 12 in Orange County south of Los Angeles.

Mailmen-Mafia Ties Questioned

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress wants to quiz the Post Office on links between mailmen and the Mafia.

A House government operations subcommittee has asked Chief Postal Inspector William J. Cotter to a hearing June 18 on his force's efforts to combat the spreading epidemic of thefts from the mails.

A subcommittee source said the hearing would zero in on what he called an apparent lack of training for postal inspectors in coping with organized crime.

The panel, headed by Rep. Dante B. Fascell, D-Fla., has been conducting a series of hearings on the preparedness of federal agencies' investigators to deal with Mafia-related crimes.

The Mafia has been connected in court cases with the misuse of credit cards stolen from the mails by postal employes in Brooklyn and elsewhere.

An Associated Press study last month found millions of dollars in credit cards, stocks, checks, and merchandise are being stolen by postal employes each year. More than 1,100 mailmen have been arrested for theft in the past 10 months.

Kent Sniper Fire Claims Rebuffed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The man heading the government's probe of student deaths on the Kent State and Jackson State campuses says there is "insufficient evidence" to support officials' claims of sniper fire.

"We have at this time insufficient evidence to establish the presence of a sniper," Asst. Atty. Gen. Jerris Leonard said of the May 15 deaths of two black youths in a fusillade of police bullets at Jackson State College in Mississippi.

His statement directly contradicts the report released last Thursday by Mississippi Gov. John Bell Williams that said a investigation showed state troopers were shot at by a sniper before opening fire on a group of students outside a women's dormitory on the predominently black campus.

Leonard is head of the Justice Department's civil rights division and leader of a federal investigation into the fatal shootings by law enforcement authorities of the two youths at Jackson State, four students at Kent State University in Ohio and six men in Augusta, Ga.

In an interview, Leonard was asked whether his statement could also be applied to the deaths at Kent State, where Ohio National Guardsmen said they had been fired upon by a sniper before shooting into a crowd of students demonstrating against U.S. military involvement in Cambodia.

"Yes, there is insufficient evidence at Kent," Leonard replied.

The civil rights chief refused to comment on whether the probes, in the case of Kent State more than a month along, had identified the officers or guardsmen who fired the fatal shots.

But he acknowledged, in the case of Jackson State, that "procedural problems" had hindered the investigation by FBI agents and Justice Department lawyers.

"The state patrol has not provided us with the weapons, nor have members of the state patrol been offered for interrogation," he said.

Leonard implied the refusal of Mississippi officials to cooperate with the investigation will necessitate calling a federal grand jury to subpoena evidence.

Fewer difficulties are being experienced in the Kent State investigation, Leonard said, although there are "unanswered factual and legal questions." He did not elaborate.

Millage Issue Approved In Area School District

A light turnout of only 2,045 voters in the Escanaba Area Public School District approved a millage issue of up to 12.6 mills for two years by a margi of 88 votes in Monday's annual school election.

The millage issue won in six precincts and also carried the vote on the absentee ballots, while losing in four precincts. A final tabulation of the votes showed 1,028 people voting in favor the 12.6 mills and 940 people against it.

Gaining seats on the Escanaba Area Public School Board were Alfred Troutt of Ford River, who ran unopposed for the four-year term, and John Pearson of Escanaba, a write-in candidate for one remaining year of a four year term.

Troutt, who is presently serving on the board as an appointee for the set vacated by the retirement of Dan Wellman, collected 1,324 votes, while Pearson, who will now take over the seat vacated by the retirement of his brother, Albin Pearson Jr., to serve on the Escanaba City Council, got 517 votes.

Also running as write-in candidates for the one-year term were Leo Alperovitz of Escanaba, who got 396 votes, and David Rivard of Soo Hill, who got 140 votes. Several other people also received votes for the one-year term, but their totals did not have any effect on the outcome.

The term "up to 12.6 mills" was used by the Escanaba Area Public School Board because of the continuing uncertainty as to the amount of state support for schools next year. Should there be a sufficient increase in state funds, the board would levy only as much of the 12.6 mill request as needed.

The approved millage was just a small increase over what was paid this past year. Of the 12.6 mills, 9.4 mills are expiring, 2.5 mills are for additional operating costs and .7 mills is to replace millage lost through allocation.

In commenting on the outcome of the election, Luther Barrett, superintendent of the Escanaba Area Public Schools, said "I feel great pleasure in the fact that the public expressed its vote of confidence in the way it did. It will now be much easier to plan for proper operation of the schools for the next year."

The approved millage also assures the Escanaba Area Public Schools state aid for the coming year. The present state law requires that for the 1970-71 school year, a school district must levy at least 12 mills for operation in order to receive state aid funds.

Predict Drop In Lake Levels

The summer highs for Great Lakes water levels this year are expected to be down from a year ago in all areas, reports the U. S. Lake Survey.

During thme first quarter of this year in the region comprising the Great Lakes basin, the precipitation was substantially below the averages of the past 70 years.

Lakes Michigan and Huron will declined only slightly, however, by approximately 9 inches or less by next month from the level set last year.

The most substantial decline will be about 10 inches in Lake Erie, the least (about 3 inches) on Lake Superior.

Cancer Appeal Heard By Club

The movie, "Journey Into Darkness," which was prepared by the American Cancer Society to help alert the public against the pitfalls of quack remedies for cancer, was shown to the Escanaba Kiwanis Club on Wednesday.

The program was arranged by Jack Beck, who is president of the local cancer chapter and was presented by Dave Mason who is chairman for the Delta County Cancer Crusade.

In a brief introduction to the film, Mason stated that the goal of the local society is $8,945 and that $7,403 has been collected at this date.

Mason urged contributions for the remaining $1,500 and said anyone interested in making a pledge, or an additional pledge, could contact either himself or Jack Beck.

Of the amount collected, 50% goes to the American Cancer Society, while the other 50% remains with the local chapter to aid patients in this area.

Milliken Spends 'Time' Behind Bars

LANSING (AP) — Gov. William Milliken went to prison Monday — several prisons — in an effort to see first hand what Michigan is doing at correctional facilities.

"Michigan has many outstanding programs for its prison population," said the governor, after a day-long tour that included talks with inmates and correctional employes at the State Prison of Southern Michigan, the Michigan Training Unit at Ionia and the Ionia Reformatory.

The governor added, however, that the state "also has many serious deficiencies that can contribute to the continuation of the crime problem in our society.

"Both the state and the public have an important responsibility to see that adequate correctional facilities are provided throughout the state," Milliken said.

It is probable that July and August metings will be in the form of picnics.

Pact Rejected

LANSING (AP)—City employes in Lansing, excluding police and firemen, Monday rejected a new contract offer from the city.

The proposed pact called for a 34-cent per hour wage increase over a two-year period.

The vote to reject was 169-6.

A spokesman for the workers said unless there's a reversal in contract talks, a strike is set for June 16.

Big Bay Voters Approve Millage

MANISTIQUE — Voters in the Big Bay de Noc School District approved a six-mill levy, elected Heman Strasler of Cooks and Gary Lang of Fayette to four-year terms on the Board of Education and raised board salaries to $8 per meeting in Monday's annual school election.

District electors approved the millage by a 217-90 margin. Five of the six mills approved is renewal of existing operational millage with the one mill requested to qualify for state aid based on a predicted 14-mill levy requirement of the unwritten school aid bill. The district received eight mills of allocated county revenue.

The board now receives a $96 annual stipend for meetings and requested an $8 per meeting schedule to balance the volume of school business and the amount of travel involved in attending meetings at various district locations. The vote was 171-131.

Mrs. Elaine Hartman of Cooks was defeated by a nine-vote margin in her bid for a board seat. She was appointed to serve the unexpired term of her husband, who resigned last year because of illness.

Strasler led with 196 votes, followed by Lang with 187 and Mrs. Hartman with 178.

The tallies are unofficial, Board Secretary Robert Johnson noted. The board will meet on July 13 for the annual reorganization meeting.

The school district includes Nahma, Garden and Fayette in Delta County and Cooks in Schoolcraft County.

Musical Getting Into Everyone's 'Hair' In Detroit

DETROIT (AP)—Though they have never actually seen it two Detroit city council members have reviewed the musical "Hair" and found it wanting. They urge fellow citizens to do the same.

Councilmen Anthony J. Wierzbicki and William G. Rogell, a former All Star shortstop for the Detroit Tigers, introduced a resolution Monday calling on "all persons of goodwill and high moral standards to express their disgust and disapproval of the production by not supporting, promoting or attending the production" when it opens in Detroit next week.

The short-haired gentlemen, described locally as "over the age of Aquarius," claim the production "is a way out attack on the traditionally accepted values of the social order," as well as "an outrageous assault on morality, patriotism, the flag, religious practices and religion in general."

Beyond that, the resolution says the play "appears to condone drug abuse, homosexuality and other sexual perversion."

Not to be put off by his own resolution, Wierzbicki admitted he might see the play if someone would give him a free ticket.

Break-In Reported At Arnold Store

A break-in at the Kenneth Holmes store in Arnold, was reported to the State Police of the Gladstone Post.

Officers said entry was made by breaking a window in the front of the store, during the night on Sunday.

Total value of loss was reported at about $96, including several cases of beer, 12 bottles of wine, and about $40 cash.

Police are continuing their investigation.

Police Probe Area Thefts

State Police are investigating the theft of about 125 gallons of fuel oil taken from an oil tank located at a camp owned by John Sharkey, Rte. 1, Gladstone.

Officers said the fuel oil, valued at about $27, was taken sometime during the past week. The fuel oil was stored in a locked tank located outside the cabin and was siphoned out after the gauge had been removed.

The camp is located in section 33 of Wells Township, police said.

State Police are also investigating the theft of a 14 foot aluminum boat, owned by Donald DeKeyser, 1226 Minneapolis Ave., Gladstone.

The boat, valued at about $150, was reported to have been taken from Garth Point, early Saturday morning, police said.

Communication

Quite a bit has been written of late about communication or the lack of it between the young and the "old" worlds. The campus protesters say the "establishment" doesn't listen to the cries of the young. And they're probably right in some instances.

So when a pair of students, 1970 graduates of Escanaba and Holy Name High Schools, respectively, spoke to the Escanaba Rotary Club a week ago there was special reason to reflect on their messages.

Consider, for a moment a few of their remarks.

Constance Schoen, the Rotary Girl from Holy Name for 1970, said that maybe her "idea of man's existence is somewhat idealistic and yet I cannot help but think that idealistic is not the right word. Is it so highly improbable that we will never know true peace, genuine concern for others and life as it was intended to be? . . . I want to be able to walk down the street knowing I will be able to return home safely. I want to be able to say mine was the generation that saw no sense in war and did something about it. I want to be able to give my children and the generations to come not a world as I know it, but one to be proud of and one I helped to build."

Frederic Jurmu, the Rotary Boy from Escanaba Area High School, had another view:

"It would be naive, of course, to suggest that this society is a perfect one," Jurmu said. "But the problems which lie before us represent not the failures of one generation, but the challenges of the next. Our inheritance is not the same group of problems faced by each succeeding generation throughout history, but is the abundance of blessings which gives us the best opportunity yet to meet the challenge of these problems."

The concerns of Miss Schoen are not restricted to the young. They are those of the entire nation. As Jurmu says, however, it would be naive to suggest that this society is perfect.

But that applies to solutions as well as problems.

Perhaps the answers of the new generations will improve on the efforts of the recent past. Perhaps the streets of the cities can be made safe, that wars will become history and not current events and that all of the other current ills of the world and society can be satisfactorily resolved. The "establishment" holds these hopes for its children. But history teaches that as one problem is corrected a new one develops and that a "cause" will never be lacking. Today's young people may face even greater challenges in the future.

That's why communication is so important. Without free exchange of ideas and information there is nothing.

Selling Names

When a citizen gives information to the government in compliance with the law, he has a right to be assured that it will be held in confidence and not used for any other than its intended purposes.

It is disquieting to learn, therefore, that the Internal Revenue Service has been engaged in selling lists of the names and addresses of taxpayers to anyone who happens to want them. The practice can make any taxpayer the target of all kinds of unsolicited mailings and commercial schemes and even criminal activity.

The recent discovery of this new method of raising revenue caused considerable controversy, as well might. The controversy ended after awhile, but the selling of lists didn't. Apparently IRS generates too much easy revenue this way to abandon the practice without a fight.

And now Rep. John E. Hunt of New Jersey is raising the question anew as a result of his astonishing discovery that IRS has been selling to any and all comers lists of the names of gun dealers and collectors. It's a lucrative business, for IRS gets $140 for each list and sales reportedly are brisk.

Gun dealers and collectors, however, are probably less pleased with this invasion of their privacy, for the danger is that they could become even more of targets for criminals and militant revolutionaries bent on stealing firearms.

Hunt proposes legislation that would prohibit any agency of government, including the IRS, from exploiting the names and addresses and other information given them by citizens in fulfilling the requirements of the law. Such information would have to be held in the strictest confidence.

It is a most reasonable idea and one which the government would do well to institute on its own without being compelled by law. If the federal government owes a citizen nothing else, or does nothing else on his behalf, it should grant him the same respect that it asks for itself.

"HE SEEMS TO BE ENJOYING IT!"

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

When the stock market broke a couple of weeks ago, the Democrats began to smell blood. Here was an ancient issue that had stood them in good stead over a 40-year period; they began to dress President Richard Nixon in the high collar of Herbert Hoover, assuming that the current recession, if that is the word for it, will very likely deepen to the point where no economic turn-around can be politically engineered in time for the autumn Congressional elections.

If the Democrats' National Committee boss, Larry O'Brien, is really historically minded, he must be conning the record of old Charlie Michelson, who, working with a bundle provided by John Raskob, set the propaganda machine in motion that smeared Herbert Hoover into defeat.

But there is a prime difference between Hoover and Nixon. Hoover had a definite economic theory; he thought the way to get rid of depression was to let it run its course. However, the voters, listening to Charlie Michelson's day-in, dayout- propaganda of woe, turned Hoover out of office in 1932 before the theory had a chance to work.

Nixon, a political animal, does not profess to any hard-and-fast economic theory. He has trusted his advisers. But he is not committed to a straight-line persistence in any economic policy. Can anyone really believe that he would nail the flag of bitter-end deflation to the mast and go down like Hoover with a sinking ship?

As a matter of fact, Nixon has at least one economic adviser whose general conservatism reckons with political realities — and possibilities. He is Arthur Burns, head of the Federal Reserve System.

Some years ago I had a friendly lunch with Arthur Burns at the Century Club in New York City. He surprised me by his frankness in talking about Herbert Hoover. It was not that he considered Hoover a stupid man; Hoover was correct in his general feeling that governments do things badly when they enter the economic field.

Yet there was one thing that Hoover did not understand, and this was the fact that governments are very good when it comes to creating money. Burns said this with a humorous glint in his eye. Unless he has greatly changed over the years I can't see him letting deflationary history run roughshod over Nixon between now and November.

My friend Eliot Paneway, who has had an enviable record in predicting woe for the Dow-Jones averages, thinks the stock market has not yet hit bottom. He could be right. Nonetheless the assumption that Wall Street securities are worth less than any particular level of currency value must be subject to some discount.

If a person owns title to a portion of Ford or General Motors he owns something substantial and useful. Despite high labor costs and the annoyance value of Ralph Nader, cars are going to be made and sold in America for many years to come.

The auto makers are quite prepared to make cars that will run efficiently with lead-free fuel, and Ford even has an emission control system that can be installed on an old car in an hour's time for $10. If anything is plain, the automotive market will adapt itself to the new world demanded by the ecologists and by Mr. Nader himself. And the unions will have to permit a profit margin of some kind.

To rush from stocks into money makes sense only on the assumption that bankruptcies threaten, or that money will continue to have greater purchasing power tomorrow than it has today.

Maybe some of the Nixon anti-inflationary policies will succeed in slowing down the deterioration of the dollar. But it is beyond belief that money, over the long run in a politically-dominated world that has cut loose from metallic standards, will continue to be worth more while titles to productive machinery are worth less.

Arthur Burns, I am reasonably sure, did not have that glint in his eye for nothing when he was talking about the mistakes of Herbert Hoover.

Letters To The Press

SCHOOL ACTION

The action taken by the Interim School Board for the newly consolidated school system of the Powers-Spalding and Hermansville areas was definitely not in the best interest of public education. Jerome K. Albright, superintendent at Powers-Spalding for the past five years was, beyond a doubt, the most qualified of the two men considered for the position of superintendent for the newly consolidated district. His years of experience plus his high level of educational attainment and background substantially support this. As head of the larger of the two consolidated districts, Albright was the logical and only choice to lead us through the difficult times of union that lie ahead.

Albright's excellent record at the Powers-Spalding Public Schools is partially noted here to substantiate my previously stated position. Under his competent administrative leadership the following accomplishments took place:

A new science laboratory was developed; The home economics department was refurnished under an appliance exchange program; The hot lunch kitchen was renovated; Audio visual equipment and books were procured in unprecedented amounts; A previous debt related to an unfortuante incident was paid off which approximated twenty thousand dollars;

The football field received lights and bleachers;

All teachers in the system have degrees, a condition nonexistent previously; The music Festival of Song has begun for the elementary children; Special education classes were started for slow learners; A qualified band instructor was hired on a full time basis, resulting in a marching band and a chorus; Glass backboards were erected in the gymnasium; Powers-Spalding Schools was just recently accepted by Northern Michigan University for student teacher training; Good relationships with the teaching staff resulted in the construction of a trophy case, cabinets in the library, and installation of a public address system;

Student foreign exchange program began; Summer school programs have been initiated; Several millage and consolidation requests were passed by substantial majorities; Portable classrooms were obtained to provide temporary facilities for an ever increasing number of students; Personal contact with Bishop Charles Salatka secured vital classroom space in the parochial school building; Many of the above were purchased through federal Titles I, II, and III projects. These, if approved, require extensive administrative paperwork, time and effort.

Administrative - wise what complaints could cause an interim board to bypass one so qualified and competent? In all candor, I respectfully ask the interim board, while there is still time, to reassess their decision and employ the man they know is best suited for the position.

Besides hiring Jerome K. Albright to head our newly consolidated school. I feel Clifford Luft must also be retained in another administrative capacity. For all concerned this would promote the harmonious atmosphere needed to perform an enormous task that requires above all, "unity."

Inmate Puts Trade To Work, Escapes

ATLANTA (AP) — Edsel McLaren, 34, learned the trade of locksmithing at Southern Michigan Prison, and he put it to good use for himself and another prisoner in the Montmorency County Jail Saturday night according to Sheriff Cecil Eagle.

McLaren and Albert Sinbert, 28, who had been McLaren's cellmate in the Montmorency County Jail at Atlanta were objects of a widespread search Sunday.

The sheriff's department reported the two asked a turnkey for coffee, and vanished while he was getting it from a kitchen at the back of the jail.

When the turnkey returned he found the cell door open and a wooden key propped up in a window. Deputies said McLaren apparently fashioned the key from a piece of wooden bench in the cell.

The American Wood Council says that when shopping for a new home the housewife should stand in the middle of the kitchen and visualize the family traffic flow. Are the appliances, sink and range conveniently located? Will family helpers get in each other's way? If these questions are answered, she will have a better basis of deciding about the home.

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
Pass	2 NT	Pass	3 NT

Opening lead—nine of hearts.

Perhaps the most striking aspect of Sylvia's game was that so many of her triumphs were the result of some gross misconception of a principle she supposedly had assimilated.

Sylvia never intentionally varied from what she understood to be the correct bid or play. As a matter of fact, she would almost woodenly follow her partner's suggestions, even though it seemed to her that many of the principles they vociferously espoused were in total conflict with one another.

One day, Sylvia was playing as usual in the expert game at the club and became declarer at three notrump with the South hand.

West had no really clear-cut opening lead, and chose the nine of hearts in an effort to find his partner's long suit.

East signaled enthusiastic approval with the six, but Sylvia, who had been told time and again of the virtues and advantages of the hold-up play at trick one, followed suit with the seven!

This extroordinary play was but one more example of the lengths to which Sylvia would go to please her partners.

West continued with a heart and Sylvia captured East's eight with the ten. When she now led the jack of diamonds, West won with the king and, unable to return a heart, shifted to a low spade. Sylvia won with the ace and led another diamond. East took the queen, but was absolutely helpless. A heart return was obviously futile, since Sylvia still had the A-Q, so East returned a spade.

Sylvia won and played still another diamond, finally establishing dummy's long suit to produce nine tricks.

Later analysis revealed that Sylvia would have gone down had she won the opening heart lead with the ten. East's hearts would have become established before Sylvia's diamonds, and the contract would inevitably have failed.

Ann Landers

Disappearing Clown May Stay With Act

Dear Ann Landers: I've been dating a very attractive guy for over a year. He is three years my senior—marriage-minded and he has made it clear I'm the one he wants. (I want him, too.)

There is one small thing that is bothering me, Ann. Every few weeks he simply doesn't show up for a date. I have stood at the appointed place for as long as an hour and a half and then gone home—worried sick.

The next day he calls and acts as if nothing happened. When I ask him why he stood me up he says, "Oh. Did we have a date?" Then he rattles off some preposterous story—as, "President Nixon summoned me to the White House." Or, "Queen Elizabeth needed an extra man at a dinner party." This morning he said, "I was with Ann Landers. She neded some advice."

Don't tell me to drop him. I'm in love with the guy. Just tell me how to cure him.—Bonita

Dear Bon: O. K. I won't tell you to drop him. But I will tell you that if you marry this clown you will spend your life witnessing disappearing acts that will make Houdini look like an amateur. You don't say anything about his liquid intake, but he sounds like a boozer who loses himself periodically and the cure for this is to dry up completely.

Dear Ann Landers: The woman who lives in the apartment down the hall is a delightful person. I could not ask for a finer friend. The problem is one I dare not discuss with anyone. I would hate to be misunderstood.

Lottie gives her age as 78. I suspect she has already seen 80. She is quite deaf and does not see well. She owns a '68 Chevrolet and is very generous about offering to drive me anywhere. Lottie has had several close calls when I have been in the car with her but she boasts that in the 40 years she has been driving she has never had an accident. I find this downright miraculous. How can I tell her I am afraid to let her drive me? I wouldn't hurt her for the world.—Perplexed

Dear Perp: Most states are smartening up and making it mandatory for people to be re-tested when they reach a certain age rather than allow them to renew their driver's license automatically. This will take the Lotties of our land out of the driver's seat. I say it is better to hurt your friend's felings than to let her kill you. Tell her candidly that you are afraid to ride with her. I know some terrible drivers who boast that they have never had an accident, but I'll bet they have caused a few.

Dear Ann Landers: A friend of mine is built like a penguin. She is small on top and opens up like an umbrella from the waist down. She has a terrible time finding clothes that fit beause she's a size 10 on top and a size 18 below.

She tried on my last year's spring coat a few weeks ago and it looked great on her. She asked if I would sell it to her and I did. Yesterday she told me she saw the same coat for $10 less than what she paid for mine. She asked what I wanted to do about it. I was dumbfounded and said I'd think it over. What should I do, Ann? I'm burning.—Dayton

Dear Day: Tell your former friend to come get her refund and bring the coat. And let this be a lesson to you. Stay out of the retail business. Let your friends buy their clothes in a store. Then if they have any complaints they can go to the manager.

IN BRIDGING THE GENERATION GAP it's not just the students who will be walking from Escanaba to Gladstone. Pictured at the Escanaba River bridge are some of the Bay College students and their fathers who will participate. The walkers are Carrie and her father Thomas Ttraebel from Michigan Bell Telephone Co.; Jim and Dr. Richard Rinehart, president of the College; Barb and Gordon Marshall from Harnischfeger Corp.; Peter Mitchell, college instructor, and his father-in-law Melvin Putnam of Harnischfeger Corp.; and Bev and Lyle Plowman, College instructor. Students Bridge Generation Gap With Walkathon

Bay de Noc Community College

At a time when there seems to be a polarization between the old and the young, the students of Bay de Noc Community College have been able to bridge the generation gap.

By soliciting sponsorships for their walkathon from the "Establishment" businessmen of the community, they have learned the importance of being concerned with the environment and the importance of working within the democratic framework.

Barb Marshall, sophomore from Gladstone noted, "the people were friendly and most cooperative when we approached them to sponsor walkers."

Terry Anderson, sophomore from Escanaba said, "the businessmen were willing to listen to us, and that means a great deal to college students."

Despite what we observe on television, I believe there are numerous students dedicating themselves to constructive action. As faculty coordinator of the "walkathon" I am certain that many of our young people need only the interested guidance and encouragement from college officials and civic leaders to channel their strong sense of immediacy into positive projects.

Mike Berro, president of the college student government reported the students have collected over $700 and are confident that they will reach their goal of $1,000.

The money will be used to finance a fountain to be placed in the Escanaba downtown rest area.

In addition to financing the fountain the project has two other purposes: To clean the litter along U.S. 2 between Gladstone and Escanaba. Since this is a heavily traveled route, the students feel that it is of aesthetic importance to prevent trash and debris from accumulating.

And secondly to perpetually remind citizens of the need to be concerned about the environment. Although the Escanaba area is relatively free from the serious pollutants of the larger metropolitan areas, it is essential to retain an active interest to prevent further pollution and to keep the environment clean.

DANCE STUDENTS of Mrs. Jeannette LeCaptain will perform a revue Thursday at 8 p. m. at the Escanaba Area High School Auditorium. A cast of over 100 local dancers will perform in, "The Legend of Tumbleweed," a musical story of song dances and pantomine. Pictured above at the "Last Chance Saloon," are left, can-can girl, Kathy Lyon and cowboy (girl), Linda Moras. Tickets are available from the dance students or may be purchased at the door. LSD Possession Charged To Youth

An Escanaba youth, Rodney Cartwright, 17, of the Robin Hood Motel, today is held in the Delta County jail awaiting preliminary hearing on a charge of possession of narcotics — LSD.

In District Court on Monday an attorney was named to represent him and his bond was set at $2,500, which he was unable to furnish. The preliminary hearing will determine whether he is to be bound over to Circuit Court on the felony charge.

Cartwright is presently on delayed sentence from District Court On March 26, 1970, he was in District Court on a charge of receiving stolen property of value under $100. Authorities said that Cartwright also has a juvenile court record.

The warrant for the arrest of Cartwright for possession of LSD was issued by Delta Prosecutor John Beauchamp following an investigation by city police of an incident that occurred on May 23.

On the afternoon of that date two girls, 4 and 7 years old, who live on the city's west side, became ill from tasting pellets which they found hidden in the neighborhood.

They suffered hallucinations, acted irrationally, and were rushed to St. Francis Hospital for treatment. They were hospitalized for several days. The older girl continues to have some slight problems and is under a doctor's care, authorities reported today.

The LSD pellet samples were sent by police to the Michigan State Crime Laboratory in Lansing for analysis. On May 26 a preliminary report was received indicating the pellets were the narcotic LSD; and this was confirmed following additional tests and a report received by police on June 4.

The arrest of Cartwright followed.

The incident involving the accidental discovery of the narcotics by the children, their illness after tasting the pellets, and other information was known to the news media of the community but publication was withheld for a time at the request of authorities.

The amount of LSD in pellets recovered by officers was described as "a considerable quantity."

Sault Mayor, Son Reportedly Safe

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (AP)—The mayor of Sault Ste. Marie, his son and a Board of Education member have been found alive and reportedly well on an island on Lake Nipigon, Ont.

The three, Mayor John Harrington, 56; his son John, 30, and Vern Coutant, 67, disappeared late Saturday while crossing the lake on a fishing trip.

Ontario Provincial police said a bush pilot spotted the trio about 11 a.m. today on the island, about 10 miles from the mainland.

The men apparently got off course while crossing the lake and ran out of gas, police said. A large contingent of planes and boats had been searching the lake and island since Sunday morning.

Police said the bush pilot landed on the water near the men's island campsite and left them sufficient gasoline for the return trip to the mainland.

The lake is in Ontario about 400 miles northwest of Sault Ste. Marie. Police said the three men were found about 30 miles from where they set out Saturday.

Johnson Heads Milliken Drive

Dr. Vernon Johnson of Escanaba will be chairman of the Michigan for Milliken Committee's campaign drive in Delta County, announced committee chairman S. John Byington.

Members of the committee, volunteers from throughout Michigan, are soliciting petition signatures to put Gov. William G. Milliken's name on the August 4 primary ballot.

Market Continues Uncertain Bobbing

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market continued bobbing uncertainly early this afternoon in very slow trading.

At noon the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was off 0.13 at 700.10. Throughout the morning it had been drifting in a range just fractionally lower than Monday's close.

Analysts said the market appeared to be in a process of consolidation, after its recent dramatic rally.

Many investors were waiting on the sidelines for some further indication of the market's direction, brokers said.

Advances and declines were running about neck to neck on the New York Stock Exchange.

At noon the Associated Press 60-stock average was off 0.2 at 241.8, with industrials off 0.3, rails up 0.3, and utilities off 0.6.

Airlines, chemicals, motors, and steels were generally higher. Rubber issues, mail order-retail, aircraft, and rails were off, while oils, metals, utilities and electronics were mixed.

Identify Slain Dearborn Girl

DETROIT (AP) — A 16-year-old girl, found brutally slain in a suburban Dearborn park Sunday, disappeared within sight of her home while returning from school last Tuesday, police said.

Two boys at play found the nearly nude body of Frances Ann Foshee of Dearborn Heights and she was identified through fingerprints and by a scar on her left wrist.

Police said they are seeking an unidentified young blond motorist who was seen talking to the girl near her home.

Her mother, Mrs. Willie Oliver, said the family received several harassing telephone calls just before her daughter disappeared. The caller would not speak but only breathed heavily into the phone, Mrs. Oliver said.

The last phone call came last Tuesday about 12:15 p.m., just as Mrs. Oliver caught sight of her daughter approaching the house and had waved to her. When the mother returned to the porch after answering the telephone, the girl was gone, she said.

Mrs. Oliver said she notified police of her daughter's disappearance about 6 p.m. that night.

Police said an acquaintance of the girl reported seeing her talking to a "good-looking young man with blond hair" about two blocks from the Oliver home. The youth was alone in a dark blue car that was stopped in the street.

Is Agnew Worth $100 Price Tag?

DETROIT (AP)— The dinner is going for $100 a plate but those who've signed up think the main course, Vice President Spiro Agnew, will be well worth it.

Sponsored by the Republican State Finance Committee, next Monday's Agnew dinner at Detroit's Cobo Hall is expected to draw 3,900 persons.

Proceeds will be used for campaigns this fall.

Agnew's appearance will be his 14th this year at Republican fund-raising dinners.

40 Youths Ousted From Lansing Park

EAST LANSING (AP)—Michigan State University police evicted about 40 youthful residents from a campus people's park today. Police said the youths were very cooperative and there were no arrests.

Michigan State University police said most of the youths were not students but rather "drifters, local kids or dropouts."

About a dozen MSU police and four university grounds trucks cleared the area after the youths left.

MSU Police Cpl. Harold Henderson said many unoccupied tents were impounded and will be returned to their owners.

The peoples park tent village was set up about a month ago in violation of a campus ordinance prohibiting the construction or erection of a tent or lean-to on university property.

Apelgren Is Top Student At Tech

HOUGHTON--Three Upper Peninsula students, one from Gladstone, took top honors in the Class of 1970 at Michigan Technological University.

Keith N. Apelgren of Gladstone, and Thomas R. Greenlee of Calumet are the co-valedictorians.

The salutatorian is Thomas A. Ala of Chassell.

Apelgren and Greenlee achieved identical grade point averages of 3.99 (4.0 is a straight-A average). Ala's average was 3.98. The three will be recognized at Michigan Tech's June 13 commencement.

Apelgren, a graduate of Gladstone High School, served as president of Phi Eta Sigma Freshman Honor Society in 1966-67 and was a member of the Douglass Houghton Residence Hall Council in 1967-68. He is the recipient of the Walter Harnischfeger Commemorative Scholarship.

During the last year he has been working on a research project on primary perception mechanisms in plants, to determine if they really have "feelings." Apelgren will be awarded a bachelor of science degree with high honors in biological sciences.

His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Nels Apelgren, 807 Minnesota Ave.

Greenlee, a Calumet High School Graduate, has been a member of the American Chemical Society and Phi Eta Sigma. He received two Michigan Tech Board of Control scholarships. He recently was awarded a National Science Foundation Scholarship for full-time study of theoretical physics at the California Institute of Technology, Pasadena. He also has been selected by the Civil Service Commission to be a Summer Intern this year in Washington, D. C.

He will receive a bachelor of science degree with high honors in chemistry. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Robert G. Greenlee.

Ala, a graduate of Houghton High School, has been a member of Tau Beta Pi, Phi Eta Sigma, the American Institute of Chemical Engineers, and Mu Beta Psi Music Fraternity. He is a recipient of the Martin J. Caserio Scholarship. This year he was president of Mu Beta Psi and chairman of the Michigan Tech Arts Festival and he recently received honorable mention for a Chemical and Enginering News Merit Award.

He will receive a bachelor of science degree with high honors in chemical engineering. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Ala, Rte. 1, Houghton.

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — Charges of unpremeditated murder against an Army officer in connection with an alleged massacre in Vietnam may be dropped, his attorney says.

The attorney for Capt. Thomas K. Willingham, 25, was scheduled to meet today at Ft. Meade, Md., with members of the Ft. McPherson, Ga., Judge Advocate's staff which is handling the case.

The attorney, Robert A. McKinley, said Monday unofficial Army sources had told him all charges against Willingham would be dropped. He stressed he had heard nothing official.

Kosygin To Step Down, Paper Says

LONDON (AP) — The Daily Mail reported today that Alexei N. Kosygin will step down as Soviet Premier this month—but British and other Western diplomats reacted to the claim with some reserve.

One of the two deputy premiers — Kiril Mazurov, 56, or Dmitri Polyansky, 53 — will take over from the ailing, 61-year-old Kosygin, according to the newspaper.

It based its report on "well-authenticated reports reaching London."

British government and Western embassy officials said they have had no new indications suggesting Kosygin's departure may be imminent.

The talks opened March 26 and are being kept secret. No progress has been reported toward their goaleasing tensions in and around Berlin. Informed sources said things are still in the preliminary stage.

Anti-Pollution Efforts To Boost Water Bills

Gladstone residents will realize the high cost of pollution abatement efforts when they receive their water bills in July.

To meet the cost of constructing facilities to provide secondary sewage treatment, the City Commission Monday night approved a 40 per cent increase in water rates and established a wastewater fee of 70 per cent of the water bill.

After Mayor Raymond Norton read the resolution to a large audience at the City Hall, City Manager Howard Keeton said the city has been cited for failing to provide adequate control of wastewater discharge and is being compelled to provide secondary treatment and removal of phosphorus compounds by the construction of facilities by 1972.

Based On Cost

Keeton said engineers from Williams & Works have submitted a plan to the Michigan Dept. of Public Health based on an estimated cost of $500,000 to $600,000.

New water and wastewater rates have been based on this cost and will provide Gladstone's share of the total cost of construction and operation. About 55 per cent of the project costs will come through federal and state government funding, he indicated.

The city manager said the engineers found that Gladstone is using twice as much water on a per customer basis as the average city its size and sometimes more than the City of Escanaba, which has three times the population.

Hanford White, 1224 Michigan Ave., asked what the new rates would mean for the average consumer and he was told that the average bill, based on a normal number of outlets, is $11.25 for a three-month period and would be raised to $16.17. The wastewater charge (70 per cent) would be added to the bill.

Meters Discussed

Edward Murphy, 1723 Montna Ave., said he believes the charges for additional outlets are hitting some customers "pretty hard" and Commissioner George Young said that in his case and in other similar circumstance the solution is to install a meter and pay only for the amount of water used.

Lionel Beaumier, 1710 Marble Ave., said he thought the last raise in the water rates was to have met needed improvements, but now with this additional charge he believes the city should install meters in all homes as people are using water day and night. Commissioner Young agreed that meters are the only fair method, but that a proposal to have meters installed had been defeated by the voters.

The city is not in a position at this time to provide meters for everyone, but persons desiring meters may install them at their own expense, Young said.

Rate Debated

Mrs. Florence DeHooghe, 1318 Delta Ave., asked what the rate for average consumption and she was told that based on the average consumption of 3,000 gallons per month the cost would be $5, if metered, and $5.39 unmetered.

Annexation of nine 40-acre tracts of city-owned property along M-35 now in Escanaba Township drew considerable comment from residents in the area. The city had permitted Habitant Fence Co. to use the land for refuse disposal since the company has been prohibited from burning in the Industrial Park.

William Gartland, Rte. 1, Gladstone, said his property is near the area where the company had been dumping the refuse and he believes it will soon become a city dumping area and water would be polluted.

Water A Problem

Gartland said that water is standing in the area now and that if further dumping is permitted it would be unsightly as well as unsafe.

The city manager said further dumping of refuse in the area has been prohibited since a complaint was made by Gartland.

The question of licensing for dumping was raised and Leo Harvey, county sanitarian, said a license would be needed and the commission agreed to discontinue any action in the area until the health department rules on the health hazard. The resolution to annex the property was approved, however.

In other business, the commission approved upgrading to Class C the liquor license for a tavern owned by William Engle, 1015 Delta Ave. and Frank and Lila Stipech, 1011 Delta Ave.; referred the matter of a proposed trailer park on the bluff to the Planning Commission and approved payment of $33,473 to Champion, Inc., for work on the water filtration plant.

Theft Of Bonds Big Problem

WASHINGTON (AP) — Theft of government securities has become so widespread that some insurance firms have balked at covering U.S. Treasury bonds, the Federal Reserve Board says.

Losses reached $20 million last year for banks in New York City alone. Wall Street brokerage firms were hit hard also, the board said.

The FBI, keeper of the only full list of which securities are stolen, won't market its data available to banks that may be confronted with a suspicious bond, the board told Congress.

The report was sent privately from the Federal Reserve Board to a House investigating subcommittee. A copy was obtained by the Associated Press.

The board made no mention of Mafia involvement in the rash of thefts from the multibillion-dollar flow on Wall Street of Treasury bills, bonds and notes —each a type of loan to the government that can be cashed in or sold.

But it said insurance firms have been hiking their fees for covering the government bonds in Wall Street hands since last fall and, in several cases, have refused to furnish any more protection.

The theft losses last year were substantially higher than any other year in history, the report said.

It cited the $13 million disappearance from the Morgan Guaranty Trust Co. as well as two other New York bank cases that each topped $1 million.

Many Treasury bills are payable to the bearer and can be cashed easily. Other stolen securities have been used as collateral to get loans at banks ranging from Miami, Fla., to a small town in central Pennsylvania. Still other stolen bonds are carried overseas for sale.

Communist Vote Dwindles In Italy

ROME (AP) — Italy's first regional elections have given Premier Mariano Rumor's center-left coalition government a strong boost, while the Communists did not do as well as generally expected.

The voting Sunday and Monday put Rumor's coalition in control of 12 of Italy's 15 new regional legislatures, and the four government parties got 58.2 per cent of the 32.7 million votes cast, an improvement of 2.8 per cent over the last national election in 1968.

The Communists and their allies, the Proletarian Socialist party, took 31.1 per cent of the total vote, won a majority in the legislature of the northcentral region of Emilia-Romagna, which includes Bologna, and were the biggest vote-getters in Tuscany — Florence—and Umbria. But in the latter two regions they fell short of a majority and will have to win the support of one of the center-left parties to govern.

Voters Approve Millage, Elect Edwin Apelgren

Gladstone residents who Monday approved a 3.5 mill increase in the school tax rate for operating purposes will get a tax cut of 2.0 mills on their December bills.

Supt. of Schools Wesley Fleet said today the Board of Education will reduce the debt retirement millage rate as promised before the election, assuring the reduction in total school taxes.

The 3.5 mills for school operating to meet local tax support levels to qualify for full state aid was overwhelmingly approved in a slim turnout of voters. A total of 460 voters favored the proposal. There were only 86 opposed.

Voters also elected Edwin Apelgren, 425 Minneapolis Ave. to the Board of Education over incumbent Jerrold Becvar. Apelgren received 296 votes for the four-year term. Becvar had 256 votes, according to the unofficial returns.

Apelgren is a partner in the Bay de Noc Lure Co. He is married to the former Marjorie Ann Wyatt. They have four children, Mrs. Stephen (Cynthia) Cowen, a teacher in the Calumet school district; Scott Apelgren, a gradaute of Bay de Noc Community College who will attend Ferris State College this fall; Jana, a 1970 graduate of Gladstone High School who will attend Bay de Noc Community College in the fall and Brett, 14, a junior high school student.

Tonight's Game
Manistique at Powers

The Escanaba Cubs opened defense of their Waubung League Championship, which they shared with Manistique last year, with a 29-4 victory over Schaffer Sunday.

Coach Jim Bruce's Cubs leading 3-0 going into the fourth inning exploded for 10 runs when Wayne Peterson and Al Larsen walked, Steve Vanlerberghe was then hit by the pitcher to load the bases. Bob McGinn was safe on a fielders choice and Peterson crossed the plate for the first run of the inning.

Doug Howard, who carried a heavy bat all day for the Cubs, hit a grand slam homerun to put the Cubs out front 8-0, Dan Mylander followed with another homer, before Mike Cousineau and Joe Joran grounded out. With two out, Bill Baum and Peterson singled and Larsen walked again to load the bases. Vanlerberghe uncorked another grand slam homerun as the Cubs ended the inning leading 13-0.

Howard, who pitched the first four innings gave up only one hit and struck out three before being relieved in the bottom of the fifth by Larsen who went the last five innings, striking out ten and giving up four runs and five hits.

As the game progressed, it became a struggle for homerun power as Schaffer belted three consecutive homers by Russ Pirlot, Dale Klein and Bob Robinette while the Cubs were also continuing their homerun derby, as Howard blasted his second and third homers of the afternoon and Joe Joran, his first, as the defending champs raced to their first loop victory of the young season.

For the day Howard had five of six hits while Vanlerberghe and Joran had three hits apiece.

Next Sunday the Cubs will make their first home appearance of the season when they face Powers at the Al Ness Field at 2:00 p. m.

McLain Ready To Pitch July 1 Against Yanks

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP) — The kid on the mound had pitched the equivalent of 20 innings and his arm was getting sore, but he did as he was told and kept throwing because how can you say no to a pitching coach like Denny McLain?

In Bermuda shorts and teeshirt, McLain and coach didn't look like the Denny McLain who won 31 games for the Detroit Tigers two years ago. But the tanned young man with the sun bleached hair said he was looking forward to returning to baseball and pitching against the New York Yankees at Detroit July 1.

"My curve ball and slider are already in season form," said McLain as he coached 18-year-old Perry Benton on a slider and fast ball.

"All I've got to do now is get my fast ball in shape, and I'll have that back in a week or so," McLain said.

Benton, who pitched for Polk Junior College in Lakeland as a freshman this spring, whistled a beautiful slider across a corner of the plate.

"Whoooee," roared McLain.

"When I was 18 I didn't throw that good."

Benton followed with a fast ball that streaked across the center at belly heights.

"That's a major league pitch. I know a few pros who'd like to have that," McLain laughed.

McLain Warms Up

A few minutes later, McLain took over the mound and pitched to Jim Handley, a former Detroit Tigers catcher who now teaches and coaches baseball at Lakeland High School.

"Let's play a little 'piggy move up,'" McLain yelled, and the high school kids who had been watching scurried into the field and waited their turn to try and hit Denny McLain's pitches.

McLain took it easy, but most of the batters struck out, popped out or grounded out in three or four pitches.

But Terry Beasley, an 18-year-old who played for Florida Southern College, slapped a single and a series of foul balls.

"I want you to come back in two weeks, kid," McLain grinned, then whistled across a curve that sent the kid back to right field.

Eager For Yanks

"I've got a tremendous amount of eagerness about that first game," McLain said. "Because of that, I'm going to be trying to win just that much harder."

McLain was suspended for three months for involvement with professional gamblers.

But the Detroit fans don't seem to mind—the game against the Yankees July 1 is already sold out.

"Actually, I don't think it makes much difference who we'll be played against. It could be the Buffalo Bisons. I don't mean that as a rip at the Bisons. I just mean I'd be going all out to beat whoever we were facing," he said.

At 5-feet-11 and 203 pounds, McLain says he is slightly under his playing weight.

"I usually weigh anywhere from 200 to 210 when I'm playing," he said. "Basically, we're trying to build up my endurance now. I think I could step in and go seven or nine innings tonight, but it's also a matter of building up control.

"I'm not too worried about that, either,'" he said. "I'm hitting the corners already, and everything seems to be coming back without much trouble."

McLain Relaxed

McLain seems relaxed in Lakeland, enjoying the warm Florida sun, working on his golf game and putting in an hour or so on the pitcher's mound each night.

When he stopped to yell at 2-year-old Denny Jr. to get away from a lake, McLain looked like any young suburban father working out to keep trim..

But when he steps on the mound, his chunky frame moves with the powerful grace of a well-oiled athletic machine.

He struck out the last batter, then said, "let's get up a basketball game."

The kids trotted in from the field and the group moved toward the school gym.

"If you really want to play basketball," Handley told McLain, "I can get some guys up here for a game tomorrow night."

"Don't you go bringing in any stars on me," McLain said. "If I can't win, I don't want to play."

Defense Ends Case In Curt Flood Suit

NEW YORK (AP) — Curt Flood's $3.1 million antitrust suit against baseball is expected to end Wednesday after rebuttal testimony by the exeecutive director and counsel of the players' association and Bill Veeck, former big league club owner.

The defense finished its case Monday with a complete day of testimony by Dr. John Clark, an economist from the Arthur Little firm of Cambridge, Mass., who did an involved analyses of certain aspects of baseball.

After Jay Topkis, one of Flood's lawyers, finishes cross examination of Dr. Clark Tuesday, both Marvin Miller, executive director of the Major League Baseball Players Association, and Dick Moss, counsel for the group, were due to take the stand.

Veeck is expected to be the final witness Wednesday morning as both sides have told Judge Irving Ben Cooper the Federal Court case will be completed Wednesday.

Both sides will file written summations with the judge and it may be some time before a verdict is announced. No matter what the outcome, it is expected the case will be appealed to a higher court by the loser.

Dr. Clark said player salaries had increased from $19,500 in 1965 to $24,957 in 1969 and $28,088 in 1970 which actually became $28,376 with the addition of newly-won minimum salary increases.

Speaking of the pension fund by which a five-year player gets $300 a month at the age of 50 or $772.50 at 65 and a 20-year-player gets $800 at 50 and $1,945.11 at 65, Dr. Clark said Flood's current status as a 12-year-man would give him a monthly pension of $1,625.11 at the age of 65.

Dr. Clark testified from a percent analysis of baseball's revenue and expenses that the net margin (profit) had declined from 12.5 per cent in 1965 (up to 14.5 in 1966) to 3.7 in 1969. The figures showed player salaries and pension represented 20.5 per cent of costs (an increase of only 2 per cent from 1965) while costs of selling and general administrative expenses rose 4.4 per cent in the same period.

Dr. Clark followed the testimony of most baseball executives when he said elimination of the reserve system, which binds a player to a club for life, and most proposed modifications of the system would result in "the stronger teams getting stronger and the weaker teams getting weaker."

Whatever Became Of The Packers?

GREEN BAY — Remember those "old" Green Bay Packers who swept to three consecutive National Football League championships and two straight Super Bowl victories?

Well, the Packers aren't old anymore, but you'll need a scorecard to figure out who's playing next fall.

Quarterback Bart Starr will still be around to run the offense. And the defensive signal-caller, middle linebacker Ray Nitschke still wears No. 66.

Carroll Dale is ready to make more fantastic catches and Lionel Aldridge is still laying siege to enemy quarterbacks from his defensive end spot.

Willie Wood, Bob Jeter and Doug Hart roam the defensive backfield and Donny Anderson and Jim Grabowski are called on frequently to carry the football.

But many of the great names will be missing: Boyd Dowler, Henry Jordan, Zeke Bratkowski, Forrest Gregg, Bob Skoronski, Willie Davis, Tom Brown, Elijah Pitts, Jerry Kramer, Lee Roy Caffey, Jim Taylor and Paul Hornung.

Now the green and gold-garbed warriors bear names like Tim Mjos, Jim Heacock, Skip Butler, Larry Krause and Bob Lints — names unknown today but which could, in the future, take their place alongside the Johnny Bloods, Jim Ringos, Clarke Hinkles and Don Hutsons.

The Packers are in their third year under the direction of Coach Phil Bengtson. Following the highly-successful Vince Lombardi reign, Green Bay has finished third in the Central Division the last two seasons.

The climb back to the top will be arduous, at best, since the National Conference's Central Division also contains the Minnesota Vikings, last year's NFL Super Bowl representative.

Other stumbling blocks are the Detroit Lions and the Chicago Bears.

Bengston has completely revamped the Packers' interior offensive line and most of the defensive front four.

On offense, center Ken Bowman is flanked by guards Bill Lueck and Gale Gillingham and tackles Francis Peay and Dick Himes. Backing up the guards are Dave Bradley, a second year man from Penn State, and two rookies, Bob Reinhard and Lints.

Ready to speel Peay and Himes is Bill Hayhoe, the 6-foot-8, 258-pound sophomore from Southern Cal.

Defensively, the Packers have Aldridge at one end and big Bob Brown, a five-year veteran, at the other. Aldridge, 6-4 by 245, uses speer, quickness and his experience to complete the job, while Brown, taking over this season for the retired Willie Davis, puts his 260-pounds to work bowling over would-be blockers.

The defensive tackles probably will be manned by the youth brigade — second-year pro Rich Moore, last year's No. 1 draft pick, and this year's top choice, Mike McCoy of Notre Dame. Moore spreads 285 pounds over his 6-6 frame, while McCoy is 6-6 by 285.

Jim Weatherwax, 6-7 by 270 and a five-year veteran, will be in reserve if he has fully recovered from surgery that made him a 1969 part-time performer.

Nitschke teams with Dave Robinson and Fred Carr to give Green Bay a trio of hostile, agile and mobile linebackers.

The deep secondary will be manned mostly by Willie Wood, Bob Jeter and Doug Hart.

The Packers' strength, though lies in the quality and quantity of the running backs. Travis Williams and Dave Hampton are game-breakers. Add to that veterans Donny Anderson and Jim Grabowski, the "million-dollar backfield," and sophomore Perry Williams and Bengtson has a solid stable.

Don Horn and Bill Stevens back up Starr at quarterback.

Retirements have dug deeply into the Packer teams that rolled over all opposition in 1965-66-67. Hanging up their cleats have been Hornung, Bratkowski, Kramer, Gregg, Skoronski, Davis, Dowler and Jordan.

Trades removed Taylor, since retired, Brown, Pitts and Caffey.

Dowler surprised everybody earlier this year when he quit to help coach the Los Angeles Rams. The move puts second-year man John Spilis at one wide receiver spot. Other experienced help will come from Claudis James, who was traded, then brought back, then operated on last season, and Terry Fredenberg of the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee.

Sports In Brief

Former Akron, Ohio. South High School grid star Henry Matthews was the standout offensive player in Michigan State's 1970 spring wind-up game. He ran for 192 yards and scored twice to get the MVP award among the backs for his team.

Stewart Is Cleared In Sawchuk Case

MINEOLA, N.Y (AP) — The Nassau County Grand Jury decided Monday the death of hockey goalie Terry Sawchuk after a fracas with New York Ranger teammate Ron Stewart was "completely accidental" and declined to indict Stewart.

Dist. Atty. William A. Cahn, who reported the grand jury's findings, said both Sawchuk and Stewart were drinking in a bar when an argument over the cleaning of their rented house started and they "may have been slightly intoxicated."

Cahn said the case was "closed. . .so far as any further criminal investigation by this office is concerned."

He said that 3½ hours of testimony before the grand jury by nine witnesses including Stewart, disclosed that it was "mainly a verbal argument and while a lot of pushing and shoving took place at the bar and the home and although some blows may have been attempted, none was struck" by either Stewart or Sawchuk.

Accident Reported

The argument took place April 29 and the 40-year-old Sawchuk, after a fall at the house, was admitted to Long Beach Memorial Hospital, where he underwent surgery for removal of his gall bladder.

Several weeks later, he was transferred to a New York City hospital, where he died May 31 of a pulmonary embolism.

Cahn said that after Sawchuk and Stewart, 37, had words in a Long Beach bar, "The argument continued at the home. . .and apparently Stewart fell backward over an obstacle in the yard and Sawchuk and one Ben Weiner, who had hold of Sawchuk, fell and the injuries which caused the embolism leading to the death of Sawchuk occurred."

Weiner, manager of a restaurant, was identified as a friend of Sawchuk's.

Cahn said that while "the exact cause of Sawchuk's injury remains unknown. . .there was no evidence by any of the eyewitnesses that any blows were struck."

Tragic, Senseless

Cahn termed Sawchuk's death "tragic, senseless, bizarre."

Stewart, who testified under a waiver of immunity, was on the stand for about 45 minutes, longest of any of the witnesses. The other witnesses were Dr. Denis Nicholson, who first examined Sawchuk after the fall; Dr. Elliott Gross, a deputy New York City medical examiner who conducted the autopsy; Rosemary Sasso, a friend of Stewart's who was at the house during the second scuffle; Emile Francis, general manager and coach of the Rangers; Weiner; Margaret Wilson, a waitress at the Long Beach bar where the argument started; Joseph Craine, the bartender, and Detective Conrad Kessler of the Nassau County Police Department's homicide squad.

Sawchuk, one of hockey's great goalies who played 20 seasons in the National Hockey League, and Stewart, a veteran right wing, had rented a house for the season in East Atlantic Beach, a suburb on Long Island.

They were due to move out a few days after the accident.

Roger Olsen led the Independents asault with four hits, while Earl Groleau, Ray Taponi, Dick Stanchina and Hank Lukinen, who played a good defensive game, all chipped in with two hits apiece.

Don Alimenti snared the mound victory while Bob Moran suffered the defeat.

River Post, trailing 3-0 in the early stages of the game, went ahead in the fifth and hung on to nip Lombardi's 6-5 in a real barn burner.

Norm Panganis got his second homer of the year for River Post, while Jim Sargent connected for a two-run homer to help pace the River Post to victory. Miron Johnson chipped in with three big hits also for the Post team. Phil Hiney picked up the victory while Joe Hiller took the loss. Bill Hay had a homer to lead the Lombardi's attack.

All team managers and players are reminded of a special meeting at the diamond after Thursday's game.

The Papermakers took a early 1-0 lead in the first inning before the Hotelmen scored three times in the third on singles by Lee Miller and Joe Johnson and a triple by Bunny Martin to take a 3-1 lead into the fourth.

Three singles by Elliot, Vandeville and Harold Anderson sparked the fourth inning uprise by the Papermakers as they raced out to a 6-4 lead.

The Mill scored again in the top of the seventh, which came to be the winning run of the game, as Michigan Hotel rally back in the top of the seventh with two runs and had a runner in scoring position as the game ended.

Ron Smith went the distance for the Papermakers to pick up the mound duel from Porath who took the defeat. Michigan's Denesha paced both teams at the plate with two hits.

In a exhibition game played Saturday at the Marquette State Prison, the defending league champs the Escanaba Merchants belted the Prison nine by the tune of 7-1.

Tony Derkos and Bill McGovern shared the mound duties for the Merchants allowing only one hit while fanning ten. John Martinac, hard hitting catcher for the Papermakers led the Merchants with three hits including an inside the park home run.

Harper Homers; Brewers Triumph

By The Associated Press

All good things must come to an end and so must all bad ones. A good thing ended for Houston's Jack Billingham Monday night and it helped a bad one end for the New York Mets.

Billingham was duelling Jim McAndrew in a scoreless match through five innings and had extended his personal shutout streak to a healthy 25 innings. Then Art Shamsky did a very unhealthy thing to the streak, cracking a two-run homer that carried the Mets to a 2-0 victory over the Astros.

Shamsky's shot not only ended Billingham's good thing but also halted New York's bad one—a five-game losing streak.

It was New York's fourth straight victory over the Astros—two more than the Mets managed against Houston all of last year. And it came in the Astrodome where the Mets were 0-6 en route to their World Championship in 1969.

McAndrew allowed just five singles and had his only trouble spot in the seventh inning when the Astros bunched three of their hits. But a double play pitch to Jimmy Wynn pulled him out of the jam.

The victory moved McAndrew's record to 2-4. Billingham is 3-1.

In the only other game scheduled Monday, Milwaukee trimmed the Chicago White Sox 5-2 with Tommy Harper's first-pitch homer setting the pace.

Lew Krausse scattered six hits to pick up his fourth victory with the Brewers making it easy by bunching four hits for four runs in the third inning.

Ed Herrmann homered for the White Sox.

Obituary

ERNEST A. KRALIK

Msgr. F. M. Scheringer, pastor of St. Francis de Sales Church, was the celebrant of a 9 a.m. Requiem Mass Monday for Ernest A. Kralik, 45, 530 Alger Ave. who died suddenly June 4 at his home.

Pallbearers were Lyle Bouchard, Alvin Popour, Merle Archey, Bert Barr, John Welch and Alex Busch. Burial was in the Fairview Cemetery under direction of the Messier-Broullire Funeral Home.

Fastest American Liner In Storage

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — The proud liner United States, which holds the record for the fastest transAtlantic crossing by a ship, is being placed in dead storage —a victim of the jet age and the fiscal balance sheet.

The liner lost more than $4 million last year despite a $12 million federal subsidy.

The United States Lines said Monday it will pay the Norfolk Port and Industrial Authority $9,000 per month to keep the 18-year-old superliner at the Norfolk terminal.

She was rejected for storage by her builder the Newport News Shipbuilding & Dry Dock Co., whose officials said they had no room for her 940-foot length.

The British liner Queen Elizabeth left Cherbourg on a Thursday morning in August 1952 about 30 minutes before the United States left LeHavre. The next day the U.S. ship overtook the British liner near Cornwall, England. When the vessels were about one mile apart they dipped their ensigns in salute.

With that, the U.S. ship went on to beat the Queen to New York by about 12 hours. The United States' official record, set on another crossing, is three days, 10 hours and 40 minutes.

MANISTIQUE

Manistique Facing Crisis With Water

By BARBARA JOHNSON

Manistique residents are drinking "potentially unsafe water" and the city must take immediate steps to correct the problem and begin planning construction of a filtration plant estimated to cost about $500,000.

This was the warning from the Michigan Dept. of Public Health to City Council Monday night.

The Health Dept. expects the city "to take positive action" on the water problem, said Engineer John Erickson of Escanaba, and should reorganize the water treatment plant operation by hiring additional men to check the chlorine content of the water.

Next, the city must update engineering plans of a proposed filtration plant and seek financing.

Court Action Possible

Unless the city agrees to "voluntarily follow the state agency's recommendations within a reasonable time" court action will force compliance, Erickson said.

A sampling of city water last September revealed a very low chlorine content, he said.

"This could happen again," he said. "Your water is potentially unsafe and our aim is to prevent this possibility."

Chlorine injections are manually adjusted relative to incoming water quality and the present operation relies too much on machinery treatment without human supervision. The equipment is not monitoring the water quality, Erickson pointed out.

Chlorine is added to the water after it is pumped from the Indian River and before it reaches the reservoir with samples taken beyond this point and just before it flows into the mains. By the time the chlorine checking is done, it's too late to corect an improper content.

Quality Changes

Erickson and Cletus Courchaine, Escanaba, chief engineer of the Northern Division of the State Health Dept., and water plant operators Ormel Repp and E. J. Doyle agreed that shallow Indian Lake, which feeds the Manistique River, is subject to turbulence (storms, shifting winds, etc.) which create an intake of dirt. The quality of water can change from clean to dirty rapidly and chlorine feed should be adjusted to cover such a contingency.

If such a situation develops over a weekend when no water plant operators are on duty, the water is potentially unsafe.

The plant is manned eight hours daily, five days a week with five weekly samples of bacteriological content taken. These samples reflect the water properties related to the spread of disease.

The Health Dept. has done a thorough survey of both treatment and system and found the water quality, turbidity (sediment content) and bacteriological count far above recommended levels with a suggestion that the quality is getting worse.

"A filtration plant will cope nicely with all three of these problems," Erickson said.

System Leaks

The conveyence system has leaks, is unable to carry water where needed because of inadequate pipes and contains many dead ends (mains that end without looping any other pipes for continuous flow and thus provide nests for sediment accumulation).

Flushing helps correct this deficiency, but city workers say they have noted a lengthy gush of black matter (sediment) when flushing operations are begun and an accumulation of dirt has been found caked inside pipes.

Erickson effectively contrasted the difference between Manistique's product and a filtered system when he showed slides of water samples taken from a city hall drinking fountain in 1964.

At that time the water was undrinkable because of color and taste. Although no disease elements or toxic materials were found in the samples, organic materials were much in evidence as the slides were speckled with amoeba and other bugs.

A filtering system would produce a clear, almost totally spotless specimen, he noted.

To Explore Bonds

Council agreed with Councilman A. J. Cayia's comment that the city has the responsibility of providing the community with good, safe water, but hedged on signing a "voluntary agreement" with the Health Dept. Instead, Council will further explore the possibility of requesting a voter approved bond issue to finance a filtration plant.

Councilman Leo DeMars commented that the current development creates an additional obligation on a city faced with complying with state directives to construct a phosphorus removal plant, deal with the Weston Ave. pollution problem and upgrade city dumping facilities.

Nelson, Mrs. Waters Retain Board Seats

Denton Nelson and Mrs. Margaret Waters won re-election to the Manistique Area Board of Education in Monday's annual school election.

They led a field of five candidates by polling 855 and 762 votes, respectively, to reclaim their four-year seats.

Ronald Morton was third with 582 votes, followed by Boyd Briggs with 572 and David Kelly with 305.

About 1,500 of the 3,922 registered school district electors voted in the election.

Nelson and Mrs. Waters were first elected in 1962. He is currently president on the board and she is secretary.

The results will be certified by the Board of Canvassers tonight. The unofficial returns.

Compensation For Fishermen Under Study

LANSING (AP) — Gov. William Milliken has named a special task force to make recommendations about compensation for those affected by the ban on commercial and sport fishing caused by mercury contamination in Detroit area waters.

Chairman of the task force will be Carl Johnson of Grand Rapids, a member and former chairman of the Natural Resources Commission.

Also named by the governor were Robert Fraser, assistant city attorney for St. Clair Shores and counsel for the Michigan Marine and Snowmobile Dealers Association, and Fred Peterson of Monroe, a commercial fisherman.

Sen. Garland Lane, D- Flint, and Rep. David Serotkin, R - Mount Clemens, were named by the Legislature to serve on the task force.

"I expect the group to take an in-depth look at the hardships which the mercury contamination problem and the fishing limitations have caused in the affected areas," said the governor.

"The task force also will investigate all possible sources of compensation, especially, in existing state and federal government programs as well as explore compensation questions relating to those firms which were discharging mercury into the affected waters," Milliken said.

"I have asked the task force to develop a series of specific recommendations to be delivered to me by Sept. 30, 1970."

Under study will be effects of mercury contamination in Lake Huron, the St. Clair River, Lake St. Clair, the Detroit River and Lake Erie.

Milliken banned all fishing on most of those waters for a time, then loosened the ban to allow some sports fishing on a "catch-and-release" basis.

Jury Selection Slowing Trial

ANN ARBOR (AP) — The attempt to select a jury to hear the trial of John Norman Collins, accused of first-degree murder in the slaying of an Eastern Michigan University coed, continued for the seventh day today.

During Monday's session in Washington County Circuit Court, 13 prospective were dismissed, leaving 13 tentatively seated on the panel. Twelve jurors and two alternates will be chosen to hear the trial.

Of the original panel of 70 prospective jurors, only 12 remain to be interviewed.

Collins is charged with the murder of 18-year-old Karen Sue Beineman, who was the last of seven young women to be slain in the Ann Arbor area during a two year period which ended with her death last summer.

Meanwhile Monday, defense attorneys received permission to re-examine the basement of state trooper's house, where investigators believe Miss Beineman was slain before her body was taken to a wooded area outside Ann Arbor.

Attorneys obtained permission from Cpl. David Leik to have Dr. Samuel Golub of Dedham, Mass., to inspect the basement. Dr. Golub is expected to give expert testimony concerning hair found on the clothing of Miss Beineman.

Leik is Collins uncle and said he had given Collins the key to his home while the Leik family was on vacation last summer. The slaying occurred during the vacation.

Lawmaker Plans Sentence Appeal

MASON (AP) — State Rep. George Montgomery, D-Detroit, plans to appeal a drunken driving sentence of $100 or 30 days in jail, handed down Monday by Ingham County District Judge James H. Edgar.

Edgar imposed the sentence, which also included a $3 judgment fee, after Montgomery was convicted of the charge filed by State Police in late May 1969.

The appeal, to Ingham County Circuit Court, was expected to be heard in about one month, officials said.

Honor Guard Unit

LANSING (AP) — A Port Huron unit, Company C of the First Battalion 125th Infantry, has been named Michigan's outstanding Army National Guard unit for 1969, announced Maj. Gen. C.C. Schnipke, Adjutant General.

GOP To Hear Elly At Supper June 22

Mrs. Elly Peterson;, assistant chairman of the National Republican Committee and "one of the finest state chairmen and national committeewomen we've ever had" according to Republican National Committee Chairman Rogers C. B. Morton will be the main speaker and guest of honor at a fund-raising buffet supper June 22 at the Terrace sponsored by the Delta County Republican Committee.

Mrs. Elly Peterson was designated assistant chairman of the Republican National Committee by Chairman Morton on April 14, 1969, succeeding Mrs. Mary Brooks recently named by President Nixon as Director of the U.S. Mint. She will be accompanied to Escanaba by her sister, Mrs. Mary Richmond and Ray Chambers of Congressman Philip Ruppe's staff.

Elly M. Peterson

As assistant chairman of the GOP national committee Elly serves as liaison between the White House and government agencies on patronage, a brand new assignment for that position.

GOP Activist

Considered the best woman pro in politics Chairman Morton rates her "the most efficient, knowledgeable and the most likeable."

Elly's work in organizing GOP women is credited with being a vital factor in George Romney's gubernatorial campaign victory in 1962 which ended 14 years of State Democratic rule.

The first woman to be elected a state chairman in her party (1965), Elly was also the first woman in the National GOP chain of command to be designated as the person through whom all patronage requests are to be routed.

She hedgehops the country helping to beef up State GOP organizations and is an activist from the word "go" and seems to thrive on it. The first Michigan woman to seek a Senate seat, she is married to Army Col. Merrit Peterson who is attached to the Michigan Military establishment.

Elly's first major plunge into state-wide campaigning in Michigan was in 1852 as a volunteer for former President Eisenhower and the Republican candidate for governor of Michigan.

Tickets Available

From the White House to the ghetto Mrs. Peterson is making political history. She has set up "action centers" in the inner-city areas of Detroit, Hartford and Dallas where Republicans help residents with their day-to-day problems.

Elly is in charge of corralling more patronage for the GOP faithful with the accent on Negroes and women. She meets at least once a week at the White House with President Nixon's chief political advisor Harry Dent for a little polite arm-twisting.

Since taking the past as assistant chairman of the National Republican Committee, Elly has traveled extensively throughout the United States and Russia, keeping in touch with her Washington staff by long distance.

Everywhere she sells her ghetto action centers, an idea hatched two years ago to make friends and perhaps votes for the GOP in what have long been Democratic strongholds. This ghetto action center idea according to Elly, "is more than pure politics. It's the idea that built America . . . it is people helping people and learning to understand the problems of other people."

On the speakers podium, Elly is forceful, convincing and humorous. Tickets for the Delta County fund-raising event are availble at Gust Asp's, Ernie's Party Store, and in Gladstone at the First National Bank and Hupy's Insurance Agency and from members of the Delta County Republican Committee.
